CHEAPER TO LEASE?

Boom In Rental Cars Forecast

DETROIT (AP) — Sometime within the 1970s half the people sitting behind automobile steering wheels in the United States won't own the car they're driving William S. Pickett, sales vice president of American Motors Corp., says.

Pickett says the cars the driver's won't own will be those from company fleets, you-drive-it rentals or those leased, rather than bought, from dealers or others.

The reason, he said, is the snowballing sales of lease, rental and fleet cars.

Some others within the industry and even within Pickett's own company suggest his forecast of 50 per cent before 1980 is high, but such sales already account for something like 12 per cent and most industry executives anticipate growth.

Clyde Sutton, assistant sales manager of McCullagh Leasing Inc., of Detroit, agrees with Picket that possibly 50 per cent won't own the cars they're driving by 1980, and he pictures the leasing business as "growing by leaps and bounds."

"We think," Sutton said, "we honestly can show an individual it is cheaper to lease than to buy."

American Motors now has 141 dealers who lease, as well as sell cars. Chrysler reports 291 dealers in its leasing system with 70,000 vehicles under lease and the business growing at the rate of 10 per cent yearly. Ford reported 2,460 leasing dealers.

General Motors had no figures immediately available on the number of leasing dealers, but likely has more than the others, since it has many more dealers to begin with.

Advocates of leasing list these advantages: No capital investment through down payment, no worry about used car values at trade-in time, a possible tax write-off for business people, a new car every year or two and cheaper insurance and no repair bills in some deals.

The increase in car renting is reflected in gross sales of Hertz Corp. for example, which have risen from $138 million in 1961 to an estimated $375 million last year. This year they will have about 115,000 vehicles on the road.

Avis Rent-A-Car also has shown record growth, with sales up from $25 million in 1961 to $140 million last year. This year it will put 85,000 vehicles on the road, compared to 10,000 seven years ago.

One man leasing his car said he paid $95 monthly on a two-year lease two-door hardtop, receiving full maintenance by the dealer and both personal liability and property damage insurance coverage.

Had he bought the same car comparably equipped without a down paymetn and over a 36-month contract he said it would have cost him $105 a month, and by leasing, he added: "I didn't have to dip into savings for a down payment, I'll have a new car every two years and no worries or extra added expenses."

One organization recommends to its employees that if they drive more than 25,000 miles in two years to lease, otherwise buy.

The cost of a lease, like the sales price, varies with how far payments are stretched, the size of the cars and the options and whether insurance and maintenance are included.

Financing costs are a major item in new car buying. In Michigan, where law limits the interest to no more than six per cent annually on the total transaction, it costs $576 to finance a $3,200 car over 36 months—or $192 a year.

A cash purchase eliminates financing charges, naturally, and a high down payment would reduce them.

Increase In Auto Insurance Looms

Marin County auto owners would pay 11.8 per cent higher insurance premiums under a recommendation from an organization sponsored by firms writing about 30 per cent of California's automobile insurance.

Making the recommendation yesterday was the Insurance Rating board. Action is up to individual firms but in the past they have followed recommendations.

Affected would be new policies and renewals. Increases would include the cost of public liability, comprehensive and collision insurance.

The Marin increase was the third highest on the list, topped only by Northern San Mateo County, 14.1, and Santa Cruz, 15.7 — the highest for the entire state.

Other recommended increases: San Francisco, 6.3 per cent; metropolitan Oakland, 4.7; rest of San Mateo County, 4.6; northern Santa Clara County, 7.4; rest of Santa Clara County, 3.5.

In some cases, the rating board said, premium cost will go down for drivers with minor accident or traffic citation records.

The board advised member companies to modify safe driver policies by deleting accidents involving less than $100 damage when determining a driver's record and his premium. The present limit is $50.

Sentinel Missiles Speedup Ordered

Bay Site Could Be Affected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, declaring the United States must negotiate with Russia from strength, today ordered work on the Sentinel anti-missile system pressed forward.

A SURPRISE

His action came several days after it was learned that Pentagon officials were discussing possibility of deferring start of the Sentinel for some months, in part, because Communist China is nearly a year late in testing its first long range ballistic missile.

(Two sites in Marin County are under study for protection of the Bay Area, one on Angel Island and another on Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito. A third Bay Area site is located on San Pablo Ridge in Contra Costa County. Which of the three will be chosen is undecided.

(The Marin County sites have had the backing of San Rafael City Council and some chambers of commerce and business-oriented groups, but the city councils of Tiburon, Sausalito and Mill Valley, as well as conservation and recreation groups have voiced varying degrees of opposition.)

Speaking to the National Press Club, Clifford also defended the pushing ahead with tests of advanced Minuteman and Poseidon missiles incorporating multiple warheads.

NOT FEARFUL

He noted the concern expressed by some critics that development of the antimissile system—which is currently designed to deal mostly with the

TRANSIT DISTRICT SEEKS RAIL IDEAS

Northwestern Pacific Railroad Wants To Abandon Route In Southern Marin

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin County Transit District directors last night decided to poll cities and shipping interests before taking a stand on the proposed abandonment of the Sausalito branch of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. (See also transit district stories, page 7.)

"Unless we all hang together we'll be lynched by our friendly Southern Pacific," commented Peter H. Behr. Southern Pacific owns Northwestern Pacific. He suggested that each city affected by the railroad line, shipping interests, and a representative from the transit board get together for a meeting to air problems and how best to resolve them.

Once opinions become polarized and a vote is taken, it will be difficult to change the votes, said Behr.

Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen added that the Interstate Commerce Commission should be notified that meetings are taking place in Marin and that the county needs time to reach a consensus.

This was incorporated in Behr's motion and approved unanimously by the seven-member board.

NWP has applied to the ICC for abandonment of the 7.5-mile-line from south of Greenbrae where the railroad crosses under Highway 101 into Corte Madera, then to Mill Valley along Miller Avenue and into Sausalito.

As each director expressed his views, it became evident that opinions within Marin are divided.

Ever since 1956, the Corte Madera general plan has contemplated use of the railroad right-of-way, particularly as a connector route to Mill Valley, said Mayor Edward W. Colthurst. The Town of Corte Madera has not taken an official stand.

"Mill Valley supports the abandonment," said Dean N. Meyer, mayor of Mill Valley. As a member of the county transit board, however, Meyer said he would base his vote on what is best for all cities, not just Mill Valley.

Meyer noted that cities like Mill Valley and Tiburon are considering bicycle and riding trails along the right-of-way, and he supports this wholeheartedly.

"Even if the right-of-way is paved for a bus system, I see no reason why it can't include a riding trail which would be better than bumping over railroad ties."

Mayor Earl F. Dunphy of Sausalito reported his council is opposed to the railroad abandonment because the line is needed

Behr Says He Wants To Be The New Judge

Supervisor Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley acknowledged today he has asked that his name be included with other attorneys seeking the newly created post of Marin's fifth superior court judge.

"I just wanted to admit my availability, recognizing that there is a large number of well-qualified candidates," said Behr.

The Marin County Bar Association is conducting a plebiscite on the various applicants for the judgeship, and the results will be sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Behr said he asked that his name be considered in the plebiscite. "I felt it was time to let everyone know that I am, by profession, an attorney," commented Behr, who will retire from the Marin County Board of Supervisors at the end of this year.

Among those considered for the judgeship are E. Warren McGuire, San Rafael attorney and former county counsel; and Henry J. Broderick, active Republican with a law practice in San Francisco.

Broderick is not as well known among Marin lawyers as McGuire, but he is active in the Marin Republican Council, the largest Republican organization in Marin. Broderick also is a close friend of the governor's appointments secretary, Paul J. Haerle.

Solitary Sailor Finally In Port

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (AP) — Wolfgang Hausner brought his 32-foot yacht Taboo into harbor today after a 29,900-mile voyage from Australia. It was believed to be the longest solitary trip ever made in a catamaran.

The 29-year-old Austrian said his home-built twin-hulled plywood boat had behaved wonderfully, even in rough seas.

He said the most terrifying moment came when a powerful wind knocked him overboard. At times, he said, the catamaran was pounded by 30-foot waves.

12th Heart Transplant In Houston

COMBINED AP & UPI

James Elbert Singleton, 47, Fort Worth, was reported progressing satisfactorily after receiving the heart of Paul C. Mason, 17, Long Beach.

Mason received fatal injuries in a motorcycle accident Tuesday in California and was flown to Houston as a prospective donor. He is the son of Mrs. Charlene Duden of Liberty, Mo., and Frank Mason of Long Beach.

DeBakey headed a team of 60 surgeons and specialists last Saturday while performing a multi-organ transplant involving four recipients and one donor. The operation involved transplanting a heart, a lung and two kidneys. All receivers were reported in continued satisfactory condition.

Saturday's heart recipient, William C. Carroll, 50, Scottdale, Ariz., was reported in satisfactory condition today.

Singleton became the second heart recipient at Methodist. A team headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley performed the 10 previous heart transplants at the nearby St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital

While Houston surgeons announced their 12th heart transfer, the Cleveland Clinic reported that surgeons there had transplanted the heart and kidneys of a 25-year-old woman into three patients yesterday. The recipients were reported in satisfactory condition today.

The heart of Mrs. Barbara Lancaster Smith of Walnut Ridge, Ark., who died earlier yesterday as a result of a Labor Day traffic accident, was placed into the chest of Dellett H. Lawson Sr., 50, of Akron, in Ohio's first heart transplant operation.

Mrs. Smith's kidneys were implanted in Robert Clapper, 29, of Minerva, Ohio, a supermarket clerk, and Airman 3.C Charles Mundy, 29, of Berkley, Mich.

Panther Vigil Starts; Newton Jury Debates

OAKLAND (AP) — Black Panther Huey Newton's eight-week trial for the street slaying of a white policeman went to the jury today at 10:27 a.m.

Outside on the courthouse steps, shortly before the trial judge began his 40 minutes of instruction, a Panther leader told two dozen leather-jacketed Negro militants "if Huey Newton is convicted, the sky's the limit."

Superior Court Judge Monroe Friedman told the seven women and five men they could find Newton guilty of first or second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter or could acquit him in the case of the slain officer.

He said they must also decide if Newton attempted to murder a second policeman.

Judge Monroe also pointed out that, if the jury felt the 1964 conviction of Newton for a knifing was a felony, then it made him automatically guilty of a felony to have a gun at the scene of the police shooting last Oct. 28. The prosecution charges Newton did have a gun but that weapon never has been found.

"It means that black people aren't going to go for them jiving over Henry P. Newton and that's all there is to it."

"Pigs occupying our community like foreign troops are the ones trying to turn Oakland into another Detroit," shouted Seale, out on bail while awaiting trial on a charge of keeping a sawed-off shotgun in his apartment.

In the courtroom yesterday Newton's lawyer said: "The answer is not to put Huey Newton in the gas chamber; the answer is to wipe out the ghetto."

Newton is charged with slaying of officer John Frey, who halted his car in a Negro neighborhood last Oct. 28.

Also, Charles Garry said, Frey stopped the car only because it was on a police list of Black Panther vehicles. He said the case was a "diabolical attempt" to get Newton, and he accused the prosecution of doctoring testimony.

Prosecutor Lowell Jensen displayed anger for the first time in the 31 trial days when he said Garry's accusation was false.

"I don't do that, and I haven't done it and I resent being accused of it," he said. "We do not doctor evidence. We do not put on witnesses that perjure themselves."

Minister's Novel Biafra Fund Idea

KING CITY, Ont. (AP) — A Presbyterian minister is asking the drinkers in his congregation to bring the price of a bottle of liquor or a case of beer to church Sunday for starving Biafrans.

Rev. Norman Gibson of the United Church says he is asking teetotalers to subsist one day on orange juice and sugarless tea or coffee, and donate the cost of food they don't eat.

The minister, his wife and two children fasted yesterday to make their contribution to the fund.

Audie Murphy Cites Financial Woes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Audie Murphy, the most decorated U.S. soldier in World War II, blames a more recent war for bankrupting him.

Murphy

The actor testified in superior court yesterday that he was broke and was under constant scrutiny from federal and state tax collectors.

Murphy, 44, said he lost $260,000 in an Algerian oil venture when the six-day Arab-Israeli war broke out in the Middle East in June 1967. He said he hoped to "resurrect the venture."

Appearing as a judgment debtor, Murphy told Superior Court Commissioner Hyman O. Danoff he is unable to pay off $13,260 due on a $15,00 promissory note he signed Nov. 13, 1964 in favor of the First National Bank of Dallas.

TRASHCAN ROCKET

The Viet Cong are firing this type of rocket at allied shipping in Mekong Delta waters. This one was recovered from river waters 16 miles south of Saigon after it missed a ship. It is 82 inches long and has a homemade 220-pound warhead. The booster is part of a Russian 122-mm rocket. U.S. ordinance experts say the rocket is cumbersome but effective at ranges up to 1,000 yards. (AP Wirephoto)

New Surges Claim 408 U.S. Deaths

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. casualties surged upward again last week, reflecting the heavy fighting that had continued for a second week after a prolonged lull.

The U.S. Command said 408 U.S. troops were killed and another 2,513 were wounded, 1,398 seriously enough to require hospitalization. The toll was the highest since the week ending June 1, at the end of the Communists' second major offensive of the year.

The U.S. Command reported 4,476 enemy troops killed by allied forces last week, virtually unchanged from the 4,474 reported the week before. But that earlier total was increased to 5,329, and last week's figure will probably be boosted similarly as more reports come in.

American casualties in the previously reported week, ending Aug. 24, were 308 killed and 1,144 wounded.

Despite the increase in fighting, South Vietnamese government casualties dropped off slightly to 484 killed, 1,768 wounded and 40 missing compared to 495 killed, 1,833 wounded and 49 missing the previous week.

Allies Begin Assaults On Cong Saigon Push

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces launched air and ground assaults today to block Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops moving toward Saigon from the north and northwest.

But U.S. intelligence officers said the earliest the enemy could attack the capital was Sept. 15, and that any plans to attack may depend on success against allied troops in the outlying areas.

South Vietnamese rangers repulsed an enemy force only two-and-one-half miles southwest of Saigon yesterday in the biggest outbreak of fighting near the capital since enemy troops battled their way into the city in May and June.

Vietnamese headquarters said seven rangers were killed and 17 wounded, and 31 enemy bodies were counted on the battlefield.

The attackers were believed part of a large reconnaissance force probing for weak points in Saigon's defenses. Another enemy unit about a mile away fired eight mortar shells at government rangers and wounded five, a South Vietnamese spokesman said.

More than 2,000 American and South Vietnamese infantrymen launched a drive early today into the Boi Loi Woods, 30 miles northwest of Saigon, where a former enemy base camp has been leveled by bulldozers and saturation bombing raids. First reports said there was no contact with the enemy.

Elements of two regiments from the Viet Cong 5th Division are believed to have pushed into the Boi Loi Woods during the past few weeks. The allies aim to keep the enemy from using the woods as a staging area for attack on allied installations and government towns along the defensive lines leading into Saigon. These include the headquarters of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division at Cu Chi, about 10 miles to the south.

Meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers dropped tons of bombs on suspected positions of two North Vietnamese regiments reported to have moved to within 38 miles north of Saigon from jungled border hideout.

Whites Beat Panthers In Court Building

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay has ordered an immediate report on charges that off-duty policemen were among a group of 200 white men who attacked about a dozen Black Panthers and white sympathizers in the Brooklyn Criminal Court building.

The clash took place yesterday in a sixth floor corridor outside a packed courtroom where three Black Panthers had a hearing on charges of beating three policemen Aug. 20. Three persons including a white girl were injured.

WHITE MEN

Witnesses said the group of white men—some known to newsmen as policemen—who had been unable to get into the courtroom slowly converged on the smaller group and then suddenly rushed them.

Blackjacks were seen swinging down through the air during the melee which was broken up by uniformed officers assigned to the building. No arrests were made.

David Brothers, leader of the Brooklyn Panthers, and Thomas McCreary, a member of the militant group, charged that their attackers were members of the Law Enforcement Group of New York, a militant group of police officers.

REPORT ORDERED

Mayor Lindsay ordered Police Commissioner Howard R. Leary to have a complete report on the incident.

Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Aaron Koota ordered his chief assistant, Elliot Golden, to investigate. Golden said that if they found "evidence of the commission of a crime by the police or anyone else we will take immediate and appropriate action."

Convention Center Under Construction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Construction is under way for a $38.5-million convention and exhibition center on the southwest edge of downtown Los Angeles.

Ground was broken in a ceremony yesterday. The facility, in the planning stage for 34 years, is expected to be open by spring of 1971.

Miami's Violence: Planned Activity

Lt. William P. McClure, a homicide investigator, made the charge in testimony at an inquest into the deaths of two Negroes shot by police during the violence. The deaths were ruled justifiable homicide.

John J. Austin, 29, and Moses Cannon, 23, were killed Aug. 8. Justice of the Peace Charles Snowden ruled they were shot while fleeing "after committing a felony of violence."

Disturbances occurred in three Negro business and residential districts in Miami. The focus was in Liberty City where the violence began Aug. 7.

"This was not civil disorder, not civil disobedience, not a group of boys being disobedient," McClure testified. "This was mass, planned, criminal activity."

McClure said the second day of violence began about 1 p.m. and then, "as though on signal, just after 4 o'clock, our officers reported being shot at in six different localities along 62nd Street" in Liberty City.

"I saw a garbage can of rocks, and there was other evidence of stockpiling," McClure said.

Four policemen testified at the hearing they saw Austin crouched behind a waist-high wall with other men. Officers said the Negro men fired at police, using women and children as a protective screen.

McClure said he saw other Negroes take a gun from Austin's body. He fell behind an apartment house 100 feet from where he was shot.

Snowden's ruling covered Austin and Cannon. No testimony or evidence was introduced to show Cannon had a gun or fired at any one.

Patrolman Arthur E. Miller, 22, said he "saw one man shooting who was later identified as John Austin. I drew my revolver and I immediately fired two shots. To be safe that I hit no innocent bystanders, I fired two shots into the wall. Then the crowd cleared back and volley of fire opened up from the police officers and the two subjects (Austin and Cannon) were hit."

'AGONY OF AMERICA'

Nixon Avoids Chicago Unrest Slap

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said today the disorders in Chicago last week "could have occurred in any other city."

At an early morning news conference he was asked to elaborate on a statement he made about the violence during an hour-long telecast last night. He said that criticism of either the Chicago police or the demonstrators would not be helpful.

Nixon added, "What happened in Chicago was not the agony of Chicago. It was the agony of the Democratic Party. It was the agony of America. It could have happened in any other city."

CITES BALANCE

Nixon said the question was the proper balance between dissent and maintaining law and order.

He said that he has stated repeatedly, "that no cause justifies the use of violence."

He advocated a study of that question.

He said he was not advocating a federal police force but the development of "highly trained local forces."

He said the national study should touch on the question of, "once the law is broken, what degree of force is proper? That is a difficult decision for the individual officer."

TO DISCUSS CHICAGO

He said that during his campaign for the presidency he will discuss the question of the violence in Chicago and the need for a national study.

Nixon held the news conference just before carrying his campaign to San Francisco.

Nixon said yesterday political figures should not make partisan comments on last weeek's violence while federal and local investigations of the disorder are in progress.

"I'm not going to get into it," he said.

The Republican candidate for president made the statement on a question-and-answer program, televised live in Chicago last night. He said stations in Missouri and Indiana also were broadcasting the session.

1960 TELECAST

It eminated from the same studio where he held the first of his debates in 1960 with John F. Kennedy.

A panel of seven men and one woman asked Nixon 17 questions on domestic and foreign problems during the hour-long session. A partisan studio audience of about 300 applauded after Nixon finished each answer. Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, former football coach at the University of Oklahoma, acted as moderator.

On the question of the appointment of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas as chief justice, Nixon said it should be postponed until after the election of President Johnson's successor.

ABLE JUSTICE

Nixon characterized Fortas as "one of the ablest justices in the court." But he said:

"Before the appointment was made and before the name of Fortas was suggested, I urged that President Johnson not fill the appointment of chief justice until the American people had a chance to speak in the election. And then let the new president, be it Hubert Humphrey or Richard Nixon, make that appointment."

On Eastern Europe in general and in Czechoslovakia in particular, Nixon said:

"We have to remember that our choices are limited. I can say here that the U.S. can march and help them. But if we were to do that, it would mean risking a world conflict. I do not think any of us would want that because it would mean the destruction of those countries, too."

After the telecast, Nixon said he was surprised that no questions were posed about ending the war in Vietnam or about the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship, Pueblo captured by North Korea.

Clearing Air Congestion Plans Firmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's major airlines say they expect federal controls aimed at clearing the cluttered skies of New York, Chicago and Washington to become law by Nov. 1.

This was the airlines' resigned reaction yesterday to the Transportation Department's listing of what would be the first-ever federal controls on air traffic.

VOICE FIGHT

The regulations proposed by the Transportation Department would slash takeoffs and landings during peak hours a O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the world's busiest, by 82.

At New York's Kennedy Airport peak traffic periods would see a drop by 48 takeoffs and landings per hour. Small places would be barred from 5 to 8 p.m. daily.

Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, representing the nation's commerical airlines, didn't object to the proposals, although he said they should be considered only stopgap measures.

NOT FAIR PLAN

But the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, which counts 145,000 private pilots as members, said: "The AOPA intends to forecefully oppose this proposed rule making with every means at our command, while we continue to press for the fair and proper solutions to the air traffic management problems."

The Federal Aviation Administration plans a public hearing on the proposed limits Sept. 25.

Air traffic controllers attracted attention to the problem by strictly enforcing safety clearances between planes, leading to delays of as long as five hours at busy East Coast airports.

TO FARE IDEA

The airlines came up with plans for a joint airline committee to act as a schedule coordinator and a scheme of sliding fare rates to encourage travel at slack periods.

The airlines were to meet with the Civil Aeronautics Board today to discuss the voluntary measures.

The Transportation Department proposals set an hourly limit of 80 takeoffs and landings at York's Kennedy, where as many as 128 have been recorded in a single hour.

Chicago's double-runway O'Hare has logged as many as 217, but would be restricted to 135.

At Washington National, just across the Potomac from the capital, the top limit would be 60 an hour. The same limit was proposed for LaGuardia and Newark in the New York area.

GRID SEASON TRAINING COMES FIRST

PLACENTIA (AP) — Bill Zures, 17, now sits on the city recreation and parks commission but the first meeting yesterday went past 10 p.m. too late for Bill to stay up.

"Excuse me," he told the other city commissioners, "I've got to go to bed. I'm in training for football season."

Young Zures was named to the commission this week after the city council passed a special ordinance allowing a ninth member. He is president of El Dorado High School's Student Council and captain of the football team.

In Marin, two youths were recently named to county commissions. Terrance Keenan, 20, of Greenbrae, serves on juvenile delinquency prevention, and Raymond A. Bresnan, 15, of Novato, on parks and recreation.

Soviet Press Assails LBJ On Party Role

MOSCOW (AP) — Izvestia says President Johnson is "ambitious and power-loving" and has "crushed the dove-like gestures" on Vietnam of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The Soviet press rarely goes into personalities in its criticisms of other countries' policies, and the sharp remarks about Johnson, threw doubt on speculation of a summit meeting of U.S. and Soviet leaders in the remaining months of Johnson's term.

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said yesterday day that Johnson changed from "supporting Humphrey to supporting the vice president of his policies." This apparently meant Izvestia believes Johnson supported Humphrey's presidential candidacy only on condition that the vice president continue to back Johnson's Vietnam policy.

In a long commentary on U.S. politics, Izvestia said Johnson's policies on such issues as Vietnam and violence in the cities had aroused opposition in America. "Having drained the cup, the 60-year-old ambitious and power-loving Texan found it so bitter to the taste that he preferred to pass it on to another," the paper continued. But it charged that Johnson "dictated" the Democratic platform from his ranch in Texas.

In Washington, presidential press secretary George Christian declined to comment on the Izvestia article. He also refused again to comment on continuing reports that Johnson wants to go to Moscow or to meet the Russians at some neutral site to discuss proposed missile curbs.

Thousands Of School Bells Fail To Ring

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Teachers striking over salary and other grievances have postponed the opening of the fall school term for thousands of pupils around the nation.

In Michigan, 67,700 youngsters continued their summer vacations as 12 districts remained closed. Teachers in another 35 districts agreed to work while contract talks continue.

The New York City public school system with 1.1 million students was threatened with a repeat of last fall's teachers' strike as the head of the teachers union said he would recommend a walkout Monday.

Last ditch negotiations between teachers and the school board continued in Philadelphia to avert a strike in the 276,000-pupil system which starts classes tomorrow.

A teacher boycott in East St. Louis, Ill., was in its second week with 23,600 pupils affected. Negotiations yesterday were fruitless as the 900-teacher union sought higher pay and a formal working agreement.

In Madison, Ill., where some 35 of the town's 3,000 pupils picketed to get back in class, the school board went to court in an effort to return teachers to their jobs.

Six of 13 public schools in East Chicago, Ind., were closed with 372 of the city's 496 teachers out on strike. School Supt. Ernest Miller said about 70 per cent of the 10,300 pupils attended classes.

The 500 teachers in the Clarksville-Montgomery County, Tenn., school system walked out Tuesday night to protest budget cuts. Registration for 14,000 pupils—many dependents of servicemen at the Fort Campbell, Ky., Army base — was set for tomorrow.

Darien, Conn., teachers voted to stay away from classes again today to support demand for higher pay. Affected were about 5,200 pupils in the city's 10 public schools.

Despite some tension, classes in all but one of Boston's 189 schools opened without incident.

Poll Shows LBJ Slips In Popularity

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — President Johnson's popularity among Americans has hit a record low, according to the Gallup Poll.

A nationwide survey shows that only 35 per cent of those questioned approved of the way the President is performing his job, the poll said yesterday. Some 52 per cent disapproved.

President Johnson's previous low in popularity was 36 per cent last March, just before he said he was limiting bombing of North Vietnam and would not seek re-election.

The public's attitudes toward the Vietnam War have influenced the President's popularity, Gallup said.

"As the unpopularity of this conflict has grown," the pollster added, "the President's rating has declined."

An August 1965 poll showed that only 24 per cent disapproved of sending troops to Vietnam. That figure has now reached 53 per cent, according to the poll.

By comparison, Gallup said Johnson's popularity rating has declined from 65 per cent three years ago to 35 per cent now.

Liberals Back Demo Ticket; Rap Chicago

NEW YORK (AP) — The Liberal party has widened its 1968 political stance by endorsing Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for president but at the same time calling for an immediate bombing halt in North Vietnam, a policy Humphrey opposes.

The party's state committee yesterday selected a Democratic-Liberal slate of electors who are pledged to support Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for vice president.

Earlier the group, by an overwhelming voice vote, urged "an immediate halt in the bombing of North Vietnam," as one of six steps to achieve peace in Vietnam.

The Liberals already have endorsed Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits for re-election to his Senate seat from New York.

In another resolution, the state committee condemned "the police brutality manifested in the streets of Chicago during the Democratic convention," and the suppression of dissent there.

Party leaders said they had previously notified Humphrey that their Vietnam position "would go beyond the plank adopted at Chicago."

The six-step peace plan includes, besides the bombing halt, a request for "immediate negotiations to conclude a cease-fire agreement," and free elections in South Vietnam.

The Liberal Party, which exists only in New York State, polled half a million votes in 1966. It endorsed Democratic presidential nominees throughout its 24-year history.

Sidewalk Ordinance Aimed At Hippies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The city council passed 12-0 yesterday an ordinance forbidding anyone to hinder the free access of people to sidewalks.

The ordinance, which Mayor Sam Yorty must sign to make law, is designed to keep hippies off sidewalks, especially in Hollywood.

King Herod Pavement Discovered

JERUSALEM (AP) — Exactly a year to the day after Israeli paratroopers seized the holy Wailing Wall and the rest of Jerusalem from Jordan, a team of enthusiastic Hebrew University archaeologists made an exciting find beneath the wall's time-worn face.

Far below the rubble of 2,000 years of battles and conquest around the wall they discovered a pavement built by King Herod to lead to the platform of his fabulous and revered second Jewish temple.

Herod's temple rose 200 years before Christ on the sacred Mount Moriah in the old Holy City.

Herod's temple was razed by the triumphant Roman Titus in 70 A.D. to mark his victory over the rebellious Jews. The best preserved part to the present day was the Western Wall — The Wailing Wall.

Soon after the 1967 Israeli-Arab war Professor Benjamin Mazar, 61, one of Israel's most noted archaeologists and historians, started to dig around the foot of the Southern Temple Wall which runs at right angles to the Wailing Wall.

Twenty foreign volunteers worked in his team of 120, and one of them — a girl from London — helped shift the last layers of soil which covered the pavement.

Sylvia Nisbeth, who owns a ceramic shop in Brompton Road in London's chic Knightsbridge district, was working late June 6 with Johana Mizrahi, an Israeli workman.

Mazar described the discovery:

"The pavement is of large slabs, beautifully carved in gray Jerusalem stone, measuring almost two yards by one yard and weighing about three-fourths of a ton each.

"Over it lie great boulders and charred wood — debris from the destruction wrought by Titus.

"There are a considerable number of coins dating from the first century after Christ, some minted during the Jewish rebellion against Rome. There are also pieces of pottery and lamps — all unbelievably well preserved."

The pavement was part of a broad plaza leading to the temple platform. It was from a double gate on this side of the wall that worshippers entered the temple compound.

Inside the compound now are two mosques: the Dome of the Rock — a magnificent mosque built around a rock from which the prophet Mohammed is said to have ascended to Heaven — and the Aksa Mosque, considered to have been a basilica built in honor of St. Mary by Justinian in 536 A.D., then claimed and converted by Moslems.

The Southern Wall now exposed is 90 feet high, including additions throughout the centuries. The dig went down 30 feet from ground level and through 13 layers of occupation.

The archaeologists now plan to extend their work farther along the Southern Wall and alongside the Wailing Wall. They believe much more remains to be found.

12 Gonorrhea Cases In Marin Last Week

Gonorrhea, with 12 cases in the county, led last week's list of communicable diseases reported in Marin, said Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

There were eight cases of streptococcus infections, three of infectious hepatitis and two of syphilis.

Peasants Protest Living In Peonage

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—A group of peasants from the district of Ancash complained to the Ministry of Labor that in spite of laws to the contrary they were still living in peonage.

The peasants said they were forced to work without pay and, if they lost a sheep they were guarding, were beat up.

Defense Says Killer Insane, Wants Death

Convicted killer Joaquin Antonio Herrera is so crazy that he would rather go to the gas chamber than be judged insane, his attorney said today.

This theory, offered by Asst. Public Defender Harold J. Truett, came in the closing arguments of the sanity phase of Herrera's trial.

The immigrant from San Salvador was convicted two weeks ago of first degree murder in the Jan. 9 execution-slaying of soldier Ronald Lee Washburn in San Rafael.

"He's defending himself not against a charge of murder—he never has defended himself against the murder charge in this trial—but against the contention that something's wrong with him, that he's insane," Truett said.

The attorney recalled that, when Judge Joseph G. Wilson expressed a doubt as to his sanity, Herrera aligned himself with the prosecutor, against his own attorney, and told a jury in his sanity hearing that he was sane.

Truett also recalled that the sanity phase of the present trial is being held at the insistence of Judge Wilson, not Herrera. The judge had to enter the plea of not guilty by reason of insanity for Herrera.

"He thinks he's perfect. That's why he can't stand this attack on his sanity," Truett said of his 23-year-old client.

The sanity phase of the trial was so brief, Truett said, because the jury heard from all psychiatrists in the case during the guilt or innocence phase.

Mansfield Says Opposition To Fortas Has Hardened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield said today he thinks opposition to President Johnson's nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice "has hardened and may well have increased."

The Senate Democratic leader said he had so informed Johnson at a morning meeting of Democratic congressional leaders with the President at the White House.

Asked about the outlook for Senate confirmation of Fortas, Mansfield replied he would say it is "not encouraging."

He said, however, he doesn't think there is any chance Johnson will withdraw the nomination of Fortas to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren, who has asked retirement.

Both Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen have expressed doubt that a Senate filibuster against confirmation of Fortas could be broken. Opponents have said they would use that tactic to delay or prevent Senate approval.

Mansfield said that to halt a filibuster against confirmation, he will try at least twice to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule.

Mansfield was asked whether, if both attempts fall short of the necessary two-thirds majority of senators voting, he will move to drop further consideration of the nomination.

"We'll cross that bridge when we get to it," he replied.

Dirksen said that it is customary, when two cloture moves fail, to drop any pending legislation or nomination being filibustered by opponents.

Dirksen meanwhile reaffirmed his intention to vote for Fortas, but stopped short of saying he will push actively for Senate approval of the nomination.

RAIL

for existing and potential industrail land in and around Marinship.

If the abandonment goes through, Mayor Dunphy said he believes the city would support the transit district if the right-of-way is needed for rapid transit.

"As an individual I'd oppose abandonment," said Kettenhofen. "But if it is used for a bus system, I'd approve abandonment."

Planning Commissioner Hugh Dougherty, who was in the audience, wondered whether the district could take over the right-of-way and maintain the rail line for occasional train use that is not incompatible with use by buses.

"Personally I don't want to vote for any abandonment of any railroad," said William A. Gnoss. "Fifty years from now, who knows. We may want to use it for something, maybe even a runway for an airport."

Noting the divergent views, Behr called for a meeting of cities, shippers like A. G. Schoonmaker Co. Inc., of Sausalito and transit district representatives to "arrive at a mutual approach."

John F. McInnis said he would like to see in particular some summary of the value of the line to shippers.

Lindsay's Aide Pleads Guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — James L. Marcus pleaded guilty today in Manhattan Supreme Court to charges of conspiracy, taking unlawful fees and accepting a bribe while serving as the city's water commissioner.

Marcus, 37, could receive a prison term of up to seven years when he appears for sentencing Oct. 14.

In addition, the former associate of Mayor John V. Lindsay faces a possible maximum five-year prison term when he appears in federal court for sentencing Sept. 9.

Landscaping Plans To Be Explored

Loch Lomond Homeowners Association members will explore landscape plans for the entrance of Lochinvar in the Loch Lomond development.

Named to a committee to talk with Robert McCarthy Sr., developer, were Andrew J. Ring, Dr. William Miller, Frank Battat and Joseph Garbarino. Good progress was reported on the third stage of construction of San Pedro Road. The group will meet again Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. at the San Pedro School.

Recreation Attendance Reported

San Rafael parks and recreation commissioners were told last night that total attendance at the summer recreation programs was 81,899.

Andrew J. Snyder Jr., parks and recreation department director, presented a statistical report that showed an average daily attendance of 3,536. A total of 110 part time staff members assisted the full time recreational staff.

Members approved unanimously the fall recreation program to begin Sept. 23 with after-school projects. Activities will include music and dance, sports and athletics, arts and crafts and will be operated at 16 school playgrounds. An activities brochure is being prepared for distribution to schools.

In discussing plans for a new recreation center, commissioners agreed to tour recently constructed centers in other Bay Area cities. The tour, planned for next month, will include Palo Alto, San Jose, San Mateo and Menlo Park.

Snyder reported the "Buy a Brick" project for raising funds for the center had reached $134, mostly in $1 donations. Chairman of the project is Ernest Blagg of San Rafael.

The San Rafael Park and Recreation Commission also:

RALLY — Delayed decision on the request by the Marin Republican Council for use of Albert Park on Oct. 12 for a political rally pending investigation of city ordinances.

IRRIGATION — Studied cost figures estimated at $8,000 for proposed improvement of tunnels at Boyd Park which are supplying spring water for watering the park.

MEETS — Agreed to meet with California Roadside Council and local groups at 1 p.m. Sept. 11 at the Civic Center on development of bicycle paths in Marin County.

School District Gets Offices

The new Shoreline Unified School District board entered an agreement last night with the Tomales Bay Elementary School to place district offices temporarily in a classroom at the school.

Charles E. McCully, who is serving as acting district superintendent until a permanent one is hired, told the board that a committee will begin screening applicants for the superintendent's job on Sept. 11.

The board hopes to begin interviewing applicants about Oct. 1 and hire a superintendent by Jan. 1.

Store Owner Finds Deposit Fund Missing

Money from a bank deposit bag was missing when he took it to the bank, Eugene R. Trombley, owner of Trombley's Hardware store at 1559 South Novato Boulevard, reported yesterday to Novato police.

Trombley, a Marin County Planning Commissioner, said that he made a deposit slip and had $190 in the bag. He left it in the back office of the store. When he took it to the bank all that was left was the deposit slip, he reported. Although it happened last Friday, he did not report it until yesterday, police said.

Church's Statue Is Ripped Down

Vandals ripped a five foot statue from its pedestal in front of St. Sylvester's Church, 1115 San Pedro Road in San Rafael, and broke three stained glass windows some time Tuesday night, Father John P. Tierney reported to San Rafael police yesterday.

The pastor said the white marble statue was pried from its decorative rock base and dropped across the road. The head was missing when he found the statue, which is valued at $500. Police said the windows, valued at $120, had been broken with beer bottles and rocks.

Labor Council Promises Aid

The Marin County Labor Council last night promised its cooperation in the planned senior citizen employment program.

Homer Crowell of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council spoke of the program which is expected to begin in October.

The program is aimed at utilizing talents and experience of senior citizens on a part or full time bases and to help those on a fixed income to fight inflation.

Genocide Law Due Bonn Again

BONN, Germany (GF) — Right after its summer recess, Bonn's parliament is expected to deal once again with the currently most controversial paragraph of German law: the statute of limitations on murder and genocide.

The big question the parliamentarians will tackle is how to prevent the few remaining unpunished criminals of the Third Reich from getting off the hook if they are not discovered before the statute's expiration date.

It is not the first time Bonn's parliamentarians have had to face the issue, a ticklish one for domestic as well as foreign politics, even though the paragraph is clear and unambiguous and has been around on German lawbooks since 1871. According to it, the statute of limitations on crimes carrying a penalty of life imprisonment is 20 years.

In 1965 the west German parliament, in a move skirting the preliminarily assigned cutoff for punishment of Nazi crimes, extended the law four years to 1969. Originally the cutoff was slated to be 20 years after World War II, but the parliamentary deputies decided the count should not begin till 1949, the year Germany received back jurisdiction over its legal system from the wartime Western Allies.

The 1965 decision was accompanied by the belief that most if not all of the remaining culprits would be bared by the Dec. 31, 1969, date. In the meantime, however, it has become clear this will not be the case.

There is thought to be considerable material in East Europe, which prosecutors in the West have never seen and which could lead to charges against a number of Nazi criminals presently unknown.

As a result, politicians and legal officials obviously feel compelled to discuss new, possible judicial measures.

A solution to the problem will not be easy. Besides the serious constitutional and other legal problems involved, there is also the question about the practicality of carrying out trials in which most of the evidence has become clouded and only halfway reliable.

Not only is the prosecution more difficult because of the time separating the crimes and their trials but erroneous verdicts are more likely.

Bonn's Minister of Justice Gustav Heinemann, nonetheless, is supporting a move which would make the crime of murder punishable regardless of how much later the criminal was uncovered, or a statute of limitation for murder than ran at least 30 years.

The statute of limitations problem is also being discussed on an international plane: the United Nations is studying a proposal to do away with such a statute on crimes of war and crimes against humanity.

Chinese threat—and development of the multiple warheads would cause Russia to react with a big stepup in its own weapons and would harm the prospect of U.S.-Russian arms control talks.

Clifford declared that he does not share these fears. He said the United States is pushing the new weapons developments "on the basis that a position of substantial strength is essential and is the best position from which we can negotiate agreements that may make the threat of nuclear war increasingly remote."

The $5 billion Sentinel system, while aimed at China, may grow into a $45 billion project against Russian missiles, in the view of some critics.

Clifford voiced the hope that "at an appropriate time" arms control talks can take place between the United States and Russia.

It was evident that Clifford feels this is not an appropriate time because of the Russian-led invasion of Czechoslovakia and an apparent return by the Soviet Union to hard line policies in Central Europe.

In this same vein, Clifford declared that the events in Czechoslovakia "have clearly demonstrated that a significant American military presence in Western Europe is still needed."

Thus, he came down hard against any further reduction in U.S. forces in Europe, as had been strongly urged by some in Congress before the Czech invasion.

At the same time, Clifford called on North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries to "review these events from the standpoint of the effect upon our common security."

This appeared to be a call for NATO countries to meet their troop commitments to the alliance—something which most NATO countries have failed to do until now.

Flood Control To Be Discussed

The Corte Madera Creek Control Advisory Board will discuss again a proposed change in the flood control project to alleviate flooding in Kent Woodlands during a meeting at 4 p.m. Friday in the Corte Madera Town Hall.

The board last week agreed to the change, which will cost approximately $100,000, if residents of the flood zone, which includes Corte Madera, Ross, Larkspur and unincorporated areas in Kentfield, are not saddled with the cost.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Tuesday asked the advisory board to reconsider this position and went on record as favoring anunderground channel up Woodland Road rather than the original plan of constructing concrete banks for Tamalpais Creek.

Bridge Jump Kills Woman

A woman identified as Kathryn W. Layton of San Francisco leaped to her death last night from Golden Gate Bridge.

A witness, Larry James Blackwell of Hilarita Housing, Tiburon, said he saw the woman stop her car at 10:15 p.m. near the north end of the bridge, run to the rail, climb over and jump.

The body was recovered from a service road on Fort Baker. Asst. Coroner Eugene R. Fontaine said Mrs. Layton was an office supervisor for Manpower, Inc., in San Francisco.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Robert Greene of Kailua, Hawaii. Funeral is pending at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley.

DRIVEWAY RAMPS

ALLAN WILSON

An attractive, red-haired young housewife this morning stubbornly continued her battle to keep the Marin County Public Works Department from chiseling away a ramp to the driveway of her Oak Manor home, while her neighbor threatened to install a similar illegal fill.

Gail Rickets, divorced mother of two young sons, has kept her car parked on the homemade ramp at 68 Gregory Drive since yesterday, when workmen under orders from Michael F. King, deputy public works director, sought to jackhammer the offending piece of concrete out of existence.

Her neighbor, artist Loi Wing of 62 Gregory, told King in a confrontation yesterday that she intended to bridge the six-inch-deep gutter as some 90 other residents had done. All the fills except that of Mrs. Rickets were removed Tuesday and yesterday. King told Miss Wing that anything she installed would also be removed.

Fairfax's Oak Manor subdivision was built 15 years ago by contractor A. Von Rotz with V-shaped gutters which, residents claim cause the front ends of their cars to jar out of line and wrecks tailpipes and mufflers.

To alleviate the condition, many residents filled the gutter at the driveway entrance with concrete. Some, but not all, ran a pipe through this to allow water to drain through.

King said the small pipes don't do the job, and often let water bypass catchbasins. On Aug. 22, he wrote homeowners that the fills block drainage and obstruct street sweeping and that they were a violation of the County encroachment ordinance. "The County will remove these gutter fills at no expanse to the property owner," he wrote.

King estimated yesterday that removal of the fills by a crew of two men and heavy equipment cost approximately $3 per fill. He also estimated that cutting away the sidewalk and installing a legal sloping driveway across the sidewalk would cost homeowners approximately $150.

King conceded that of the 90 people affected, five had not received letters warning of the removal. On of these was Mrs. Richard Greenblatt of 14 Gregory, who said she was on the phone when she heard a jackhammer outside, and went out to find her gutter fill half removed.

Workmen Alan Wilson and James Alberigi of the public works department were embaressed by the whole thing. Said Wilson "We're the two goats — caught in between."

Recipt of the warning letters triggered a Sunday night meeting of the Oak Manor Homeowners' Association at which it was decided to ask for a time extension. However, since Monday was a holiday, Mrs. Leo A. Toumanen of 86 Laurel Lane, delegated to contact the public works department, was unable to do so until Tuesday. She was told that removal had started.

King pointed out that similar removals of fills had been done in Kay Park, Tamalpais Valley, in Santa Venetia, and in Bel Aire.

When King talked to Mrs. Rickets and Miss King yesterday, the former asked why the department did not enlarge the 36-inch storm drain to take pressure off the streets. King replied that "it's much cheaper to do the street than the storm drain."

"For you it is," snapped Miss Wing. "Not for us!" She asked what legal recourse the homeowners might have. "Talk to the board of supervisors," said King.

King revealed that his department was going to pave into the deep gutters on Oak Manor Drive, up the hill from the Rickets and Wing homes, thereby cutting the gutter depth.

This brought a demand from the two women that the same be done on Gregory Drive. King said it would not be done there, and indicated that the 24 per cent grade on Oak Manor was in worse repair and this was the reason for the additional paving.

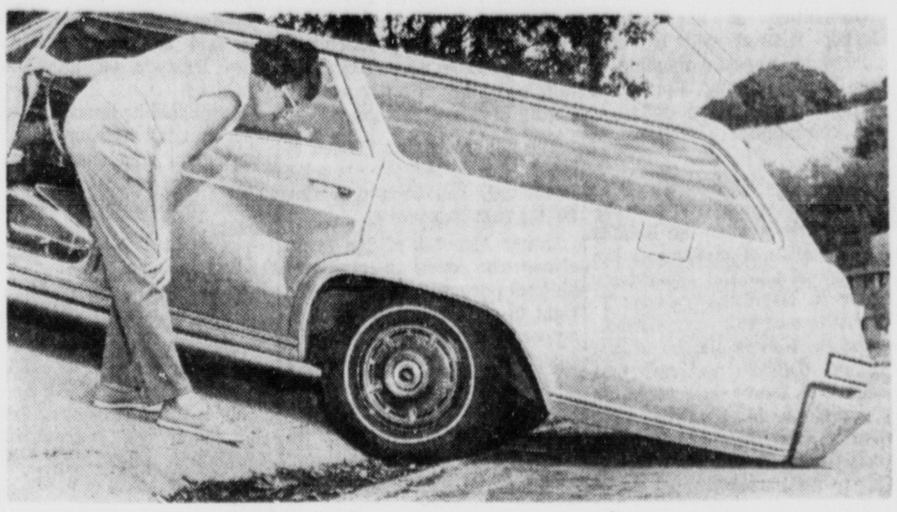
Meanwhile, at several homes where fills had been removed, pieces of two-by-four and four-by-four lumber appeared in the gutters to keep cars from dipping deeply. King said the works department would remove these as fast they appeared.

While all this was going on, another work crew was paving holes in the street with blacktop fill. They did not have a roller and left uneven and unsightly patches on the streets. Mrs. Rickets and Miss Wing demanded of King when this would be cared for, and he said "We'll clean it up shortly," as he drove away.

So today, Mrs. Rickets waited to see whether the California Highway Patrol would tow her car away for parking in a driveway illegally, thereby allowing the men with the jackhammer to go to work. Oak Manor is in County territory and under CHP jurisdiction.

Miss Wing said she had a friend who was going to help her pour concrete for an illegal fill.

Mrs. Rickets had called Supervisor Ernest Kettenhofen for help, as well as Peter Arrigoni, who will succeed Kettenhofen next year. The young housewife admitted that she might be legally wrong, "but morally I'm right, and I'm going to fight all the way," she said.



A DRAG — A combination of steep driveway and deep gutter causes Mrs. Charles E. Ott's station wagon to drag its rear. Mrs. Ott, of 67 Gregory Drive, had been bridging the gutter with sheet metal, which the county removed.

Hell's Angels Vigilantes Action Urged

CLOVERDALE, Sonoma County — Formation of vigilantes to meet invading Hell's Angels motorcyclists with armed force has been urged by the mayor of Cloverdale.

Mayor Wayne Cripps made his proposal at a stormy city council meeting Tuesday night, which heard many complaints about 300 Hell's Angels who invaded Cloverdale on Labor Day, frightening citizens and fouling up traffic so badly that cars reportedly were backed up all the way to Willits, 50 miles away.

Said Mayor Cripps, a former policeman: "Name it anything you want — a shotgun club or anything. When we hear the Hell's Angels are coming to town, give the police a day's vacation and meet these birds with shotguns."

When the rest of the city council refused to back the proposal, the mayor declared: "I'm sick and tired of everybody sitting on their duffs and doing nothing. I'm ready to do something."

Iranians Donate Cash, Clothing

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Thousands of Iranians lined up today to give cash, clothing and household goods for the thousands of earthquake victims in northeast Iran, and two orphans received direct aid from the shah.

Touring the areas where quakes killed more than 10,500 persons over the weekend, the Shah and Empress Farah took custody of two orphaned children in Khezri. Court Minister Assalullah Alam said they will be brought up in Tehran under royal patronage.

The royal couple continued inspecting devastated areas today, speaking with many victims and assuring them the government would rebuild their homes as soon as possible.

Water Board Accepts Pipe Transfer Plans

Marin Municipal Water District directors approved an agreement yesterday with the state Dicision of Highways for the $127,000 relocation of 24-inch water pipe made necessary by the widening of Highway 101.

Cost to Marin County was estimated at $70,000 with the state picking up the remaining $57,000.

The relocation will begin in the vicinity of Rafael Drive to North San Pedro Road at the viaduct. William R. Seeger, district general manager, noted that if the work had been done last year as considered, the county would have had to pay all expenses and not have benefited from new state laws.

Seeger also noted that $15,000 in materials for the project are already on hand and that bids for $105,000 will be offered on Sept. 25, the next regular board meeting.

Also approved was the district's participation in an antitrust suit against various manufacturers of water meters. Hoping to prove conspiracy and violations of antitrust regulations, directors retained Broad, Busterud and Khourie, of San Francisco, who also represent many Southern California water districts in the suit.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

BIDS — Opened bids on butterfly valves to be held for study and awarding at the next meeting.

PURCHASE — Approved purchase of 3.88 tons of copper sulfate at $438 per ton from Great Western Chemical Corp. Requests for bids for a full year's supply will be issued again in a few months.

PIPELINES — Approved pipeline extension off Miller Avenue in Edgmont Highlands, Mill Valley; cost of $13,956 to be assumed by John Ribiero, developer. Director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. abstained. Approved pipeline extension and fire hydrant installation on Alexander Avenue, Sausalito; cost of $2,965 to be paid by Ethel Mitchell, San Francisco.

RECLASSIFIED — Approved reclassification of job positions in the survey department for Russell Walsh and John Grange. Also reclassified Stanley Soldavini as assisted to department manager, and Jerome Brunner, as senior field technician.

PAYMENTS — Approved progress payment of $12,702.60 for Phoenix Dam renovation project; payment of $6,456.60 for tank coating, and in advance payment of demands received prior to Sept. 25 meeting so that two per cent discount can be achieved.

DIRECTOR — Encouraged Seeger to accept a directorship on California Water Resources Authority.

AWARDED — Awarded contract for Bolinas Grade pump enclosure to Sun Iron Works, San Rafael — with low bid of $13,004.

Pueblo Crew Won't Be Tried, Reporters Say

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — Some North Korean reporters cering an armistice commission meeting said today that the Pueblo crew are basically spies, but they would not be put on trial as criminals.

The Communist reporters commented on the Pueblo case for the first time since the U.S. intelligence ship was seized off North Korea's east coast Jan. 23.

One reporter said: "The Pueblo crew are not prisoners of war but espionage agents. However, they are enjoying humanitarian treatment as accorded to war prisoners under international agreements."

These remarks aroused speculation that the American crew might be set free in the near future.

Court Witness Testifies That Sommerhalder Admitted Murder

By STEPHEN COOK

Shirley Ackley, murdered three ways on the night of Jan. 12, was a hard woman to kill, according to the man accused of snuffing out her life, a trial witness said yesterday.

A friend of Johnny Lee Sommerhalder, accused of murdering Curtis and Shirley Ackley in their Santa Venetia house trailer, told a Marin Superior Court jury that the motorcycle gang leader told of the killings in a hushed county jail conversation Jan. 14.

Ronald Edward Long, a former motorcycle gang member himself, returned from state prison yesterday to offer testimony aimed at sending his buddy to the gas chamber. He said Sommerhalder told him:

"They were burgling the place and they (the Ackleys) came home. A gun went off accidentally. They had to kill them. He said they shot, stabbed and strangled the woman. He said she was hard to kill."

At the time of the conversation, Long, Sommerhalder, Kenneth Allen Preston and Thomas Caswell, all of Santa Rosa, were in Marin County Jail on suspicion that they killed the Ackleys or aided in the murder after the fact.

Ultimately, Sommerhalder and Preston, aged 24 and 20, were the only men charged with the killings. Preston has been convicted and sentenced to death for the crimes.

Long, a member of the Gypsy Jokers motorcycle gang, said he returned to his Santa Rosa cabin late that night to find Grim Reapers Sommerhalder and Preston inside with the door locked.

"Ken and I have something going," was Sommerhalder's cryptic explanation for the locked door, according to Long.

Long told the jury that he went to bed, but awoke an hour later to the smell of smoke coming from Preston's bedroom. When he entered the room, he saw Sommerhalder and Preston burning papers in a brass pot in the room, he said.

"There were a lot of strange guns around the house," he recalled. "John was wearing a gun in a holster around his waist."

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales maintains the guns and the burning papers came from the Ackley trailer house. Long identified a gun stolen from the Ackleys as the one Sommerhalder was wearing.

Long told the jury that, sometime before dawn, Sommerhalder came to his room to ask that he dig a bullet out of his arm.

"He said Ken had shot him," Long recalled.

The convict, serving time for three counts of assault with a deadly weapon, told the jury that he dug the bullet from Sommerhalder's arm, disinfected the wound with whiskey, drilled a hole through the bullet, put it on a chain and gave it to Sommerhalder as a souvenir.

Later, he said, Sommerhalder and he huddled in the living room and Sommerhalder told him: "They were burgling a home and had to kill two people. They had to kill the occupants." At that time, though, Long had his own troubles, he said. He had received word that members of a rival motorcycle gang, the Misfits, were going to firebomb his house.

"I rigged up spotlights, put a homemade bomb out in the front yard and wired it up to inside the house. I put mattresses along the walls and taped the windows. Then I waited," he said.

At 4 a.m. Jan. 14, he thought his time of battle had come. Asleep in a living room chair, he awoke to hear someone kicking against the door.

"I thought it was the Misfits. I fired my .38. I emptied it through the door," he said.

Long surrendered when a machine gun burst and a voice announced that the visitors were sheriff's officers, come to question Sommerhalder and Preston about the killings.

He, Sommerhalder, Preston and Caswell, a chance visitor at the cabin, were arrested for investigation of the Ackley murders.

It was at county jail, later that day, that Sommerhalder told him more about the murders, he said.

"He said they got about $225 cash from the trailer," Long recalled.

Long recalled that, when talking about the killings, Sommerhalder "was upset, but calm too."

Probbed by Bales, he agreed that Sommerhalder was nonchalant.

When first brought to the stand yesterday, Long refused to testify on grounds that he might tend to incriminate himself.

After consultation with a court-appointed attorney, Long agreed to testify if Bales would recommend he be transferred from Jamestown to another prison conservation camp for security reasons and if the adult authority would be told that, when he fired at police officers, he really thought he was shooting at rival motorcyclists.

Fire Damages Chemical Plant

OAKLAND (UPI)—A fire which caused $200,000 damage and nearly destroyed a block-long chemical plant of Vijon Laboratories yesterday was believed caused by combustible fumes coming in contact with a heater.

Columns of thick, black smoke from the chemical-fed blaze rose high above the plant on Peralta Street in the industrial section of West Oakland when the fire broke out shortly after noon.

The plant's 18 employees escaped injury, but four firemen were treated for smoke inhalation and minor cuts.

District Dissolution Talks Tonight

Dissolution of the Bolinas Harbor District will be considered at a special meeting of the Local Agency Formation Commission at 8 p.m. today at the community clubhouse in Bolinas.

This is a continuation of a public hearing that was postponed last month when the Bolinas Harbor District challenged the legality of allowing supervisors Peter H. Behr and Thomas T. Storer to sit on the commission. Attorney Robert Haight of the harbor district declared that Behr and Storer had voted as supervisors to dissolve the district, and their presence on the five-man LAFC would be unfair to the harbor district.

The county counsel has ruled that the two supervisors have the legal right to hear the dissolution question.

If the LAFC votes to dissolve the district, the matter goes back to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for another public hearing. The question would go to the voters of the harbor district for decision.

Napalm Dumped From Truck

MARTINEZ (UPI) — A truck loaded with 1,000-pound cannisters of napalm overturned near the Contra Costa County community of Brentwood yesterday, spilling the 36 sausage-shaped containers into a field.

The Highway Patrol said several of the containers of incendiary material broke open, but there was no fire.

Patrolmen said the accident occurred when the truck-trailer, driven by Gaston H. Sandiver, 36, failed to negotiate a turn on Highway 4.

Home Is Looted During A Trip

George E. Eickmeyer, 145 Currey Avenue, Sausalito, discovered $865 worth of items had been stolen when he returned home last night from a two-day trip, police said.

A television set, lamps, camera, binoculars and clock were taken by the thief who gained entry by smashing a lower bathroom window, according to police.

Zoner Rules Billiards Parlor Can't Sell Beer

Town and Country Billiards in Kentfield will not be allowed to sell beer but may be allowed a couple of amusement machines, Marin County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill declared yesterday.

The billiard parlor, located at 941-B Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, has been operating for the past two years.

Owner Alec Liu of San Francisco, who owns a chain of billiard parlors, asked for the right to sell beer and to put in amusement machines to keep customers occupied while waiting for billiard tables. Don De Survile of Fairfax operates the parlor under franchise from the owner.

Mrs. F. G. Burt of 11 Stetson Avenue objected strongly to beer sales. "I can't see serving beer so close to the college and with hippies running up and down." The College of Marin and two other residents protested the beer sale by letter.

Liu argued that his billiard parlor in Sausalito serves beer, and no trouble has occurred. "A glass of beer and a game of billiards goes nicely."

"So does a cup of coffee," replied Cordill.

Cordill denied the beer request but said he would look with more leniency on amusement machines.

Cordill said he intends to issue a permit next week for up to two amusement machines, just so they do not congest the billiard parlor or reduce the number of tables.

The Marin County Zoning Administrator also:

CHILD CARE — Granted a one-year permit to Mrs. Helen D. Johnson to operate a child care center for up to 20 children at the McNear's beach clubhouse at McNear's Point. The center will operate from September through June between the hours of 9 a.m. and noon.

AUTO REPAIR — Gave tentative approval to Marin Sports Imports to open an auto repair shop at 5949 Entrada Drive, Ignacio. Cordill said he must check with the county counsel on some legal points before issuing a permit. E. R. Oden, the applicant, operates Marin Sports Imports on Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael.

Plaudits For One-Way Toll Move

Marin County Transit District directors last night commended the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District for initiating studies on a one-way toll collection system.

The directors asked Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen to send a letter to bridge directors expressing appreciation for the resolution passed Aug. 30.

Bridge directors had ruled that the modernization of the toll plaza be held up pending a study and experimental tests of one-way toll collection.

The Marin County Transit District directors also:

SPACE RENTAL — Authorized $690 to be paid for rental of space from the Marin County Library to provide for offices of the new projects engineer and transportation analyst. Space is needed temporarily until the transit district office moves into the new Hall of Justice next year.

VACATION — Voted four to three to give transit district employees the same vacation benefits (including three weeks vacation after the first year) granted to county employees. Thomas T. Storer, Peter H Behr, William A. Gnoss, and Dean N. Meyer voted for it. Opposed were Ernest N. Kettenhofen, John F. McInnis and Edward W. Colthurst.

BUSES — Agreed to request suggestions of cities, merchant groups and chambers of commerce on how to set up an intra-county bus system to connect population centers and the Civic Center.

Thirty-four persons were killed, 700 injured, in Detroit during riots in June, 1943.

Marin To Control Bus System, Seek Funds

An inter-county bus system between Marin and San Francisco will need financial aid from the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, but the Marin County Transit District should take the lead in setting up the system. (See also transit district story page 1.)

This was the decision of the Marin County Transit District board of directors last night. The action was a rejection of Chairman Ernest N. Kettenhofen's suggestion that the bus project be turned over to the bridge district because the job is too big and expensive for Marin to handle alone.

"Marin County has neither the resources, the geography nor the know-how to take on this fantastic burden alone," said Kettenhofen. Since the Golden Gate Bridge funds would be needed to finance the project, the bridge board should take over, he argued.

"To pass the buck to another agency for a project which we have now started is absurd," replied Dean N. Meyer. He said it is the transit district's responsibility to work out the project and then seek the necessary subsidy from the bridge district.

"It is just as absurd for us to design a program that we don't have the funds to carry out," said Kettenhofen.

Thomas T. Storer agreed that bridge funds would be needed. "But we can do it through a joint powers agreement." He said turning the whole project over to the bridge board would be like "changing bridges in midstream."

John F. McInnis then offered a motion acceptable to all, including Kettenhofen: Chairman Kettenhofen would write a letter to the bridge board, through the Tri-Partite Transportation Committee, asking the bridge district for views on how best to coordinate and finance an inter-county bus system.

Woman Pleads Guilty To Burglary

Susan Baggette, 24, of San Francisco, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary March 7, 1967, in Corte Madera and petty theft July 6, 1967, in San Anselmo.

Another charge of petty theft was dismissed. Miss Baggette was ordered to appear in Marin Superior Court Sept. 30 for judgment.

Plea Date Set In Marijuana Case

Gerald Thomas Coleman, 26, of San Francisco, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of assault and battery and possessing marijuana Monday in Fairfax.

Coleman was ordered to plead to the charges Sept. 18. He was jailed Monday on a citizen's arrest and Fairfax police said they found a quantity of suspected marijuana on him.

Power Company Purchase Authorized

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The State Public Utilities Commission authorized Pacific Gas and Electric Co. yesterday to purchase the Sierra Power Co.'s electric facilities in the Donner Summit area for $164,561.

Sierra power served 137 customers in the area in 1967.

Transit District Hires Engineer From Works Unit

An assistant engineer in the county department of public works was hired last night as transportation analyst for the Marin County Transit District at a salary of $847 per month.

He is Jerome M. Kuykendall, now assistant traffic engineer for the county.

The position of transportation analyst was authorized by the transit district directors July 10. Kupkendall's job will be to assist the newly hired projects engineer, Y. T. (Tito) Sasaki.

General Manager Seymour Kashin said the job of the transportation analyst will be in research and development. Typical tasks would be collecting technical information; preparing charts, graphs, tables and other information. He will assist in preparing traffic and transportation studies, including planning, surveys, data collection and models.

Kuykendall is the fourth employee on the transit district staff.

Sicilians Decry Lack Of Water

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Hundreds of women and children lay across the streets and erected barricades of stone and wood yesterday to protest a water shortage in Palermo.

The demonstrators moved only after firemen drove out in the evening with water trucks.

Palermo authorities cut water distribution this summer to seven hours a day—between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. They said a new aqueduct and a larger pipeline will soon boost distribution to 16 hours daily.

Demonstrators who blocked traffic in the suburbs of San Lorenzo for most of the day claimed the water didn't run when it was supposed to.

Nations Can't Afford Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Fifty-seven nations say they are carrying out sanctions against the white minority government in Rhodesia, but two neighboring black African nations say they can't afford to do so.

The U.N. Security Council called May 29 for U.N. members to cut off trade and other ties with Rhodesia. Secretary-General U Thant distributed letters yesterday from 57 countries describing their steps to carry out the resolution.

But Botswana said no government in its country could "survive the imposition of a ban on direct trade with Rhodesia," and its rail and cattle industries would be especially hard hit. Malawi said it could carry out the sanctions "only at the cost of severely imperiling its own economy, if not breaking it."

Baptists Urged To Raise Millions

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP— Delegates to the opening session yesterday of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A., Inc., were asked to raise $10 million for educational projects, including support of private Negro colleges and for scholarships.

The group, largest Negro organization in the United States, has nearly 5,000 delegates attending its annual convention in Atlanta.

MOUNDS OF GARBAGE

College Park Against Creek Plans Changes

A representative of the College Park Property Owners Association last night protested any change in the Tamalpais Creek portion of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

Ted Cooper, representing the association, told the Larkspur City Council he opposed any action that would slow progress of the project.

A group of Kent Woodlands residents last Friday protested plans putting concrete retaining walls in the creek and Marin County supervisors Tuesday requested a change to underground drainage from the Army Corps of Engineers.

Cooper said Kent Woodlands residents should "handle the project on their own" and not put the burden on other property owners in the flood control zone.

He wondered why the Kent Woodlands residents were making their protest now. "Where were they during the hearings?" he asked. A change now "would throw the project in turmoil and possibly stop it," he said.

Councilmen advised him to bring his protest before a meeting of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory Board at 4 p.m. Friday at Corte Madera City Hall.

Neil R. Brixon, a Larkspur councilman and advisory board chairman, said: "Last Friday the only people present were five or six property owners involved and they tried to boondoggle this through. If the people want tax relief, we need support."

Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. urged expediting the creek project, and said there was no reason for Kent Woodlands residents to "come in now" and "jeopardize the whole project merely for local interests."

The Larkspur City Council Also:

COMMISSIONER — Appointed David F. Scott of 250 Monte Vista Avenue, former city planning commissioner, to the parks and recreation commission, succeeding former commissioner Peter Krug, who resigned.

BID REJECTED — Rejected all bids on the Oak Road widening project, which came in above the estimate of $22,000, and agreed to readvertise for bids April 2, 1969. Low bidder was W. K. McLellan Co. of San Rafael at $26,651.

FIREARMS CONTROL — Postponed until December any action on a proposed resolution on gun control laws, since the issue is on the November ballot in Marin. The vote was 4-1 with Councilman William G. Fleckles dissenting after stating the council should request the state to review existing laws with a view toward plugging loopholes.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM — Authorized City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst to determine the costs of acquiring a new citywide fire alarm system under a lease purchase agreement over a three-year period. The cost for the installation previously was estimated at $36,000.

STREET LIGHTS —Voted to sell three city-owned street lights on South Eliseo Drive to Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for $500. The vote was 3-2 with Councilmen Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Fleckles dissenting.

PEDESTRIAN PROTECTION —Passed a resolution urging Marin County supervisors to appropriate funds and bear the full cost of providing a guard rail and sidewalk along the north side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from Eliseo Drive to Manor Road.

DRIVEWAYS — Continued until February, 1969, the appeals of Murray J. Rayden of 370 Eliseo Drive and Alex N. Kalsh, 363 Eliseo Drive and continued until Oct. 2 the appeal of C. S. Bergeron of 97 Corte Ramon on city requirements for driveway encroachments, part of a campaign to eliminate driveway construction that impedes water flow.

NONCONFORMING USE — Introduced an ordinance to set June 18, 1973, as the deadline for elimination of present nonconforming residential uses in commercial zones.

FIRE DEPARTMENT — Expressed its intent to consider restructuring the fire department organization during its next budget sessions to include a new post of assistant chief.

PUBLIC ACCESS — Set Oct. 2 for a public hearing on an ordinance to control public access to private property in the vicinity of Greenbrae Lanes and Lyon's restaurant, off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, near Eliseo Drive.

PROTEST — Continued until Oct. 2 an appeal by Michael Howell of 380 West Baltimore Avenue from a city attempt to collect $612 from him for tree removal.

BY LAWS — Received proposed by-laws for the planning commission and returned them to the commission for further study.

NEXT MEETING — The next regularly scheduled session is Oct. 2 at 8 p.m., but City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said a special session probably will be required before that about the Bon Air Bridge.

Council Sets Bridge Load, Speed Limits

Larkspur City Council last night increased truck restrictions on Bon Air Bridge after a report that Corte Madera Creek dredging has lessened stability of supporting columns.

As a result of the dredging the mud level around the columns has been lowered about five feet, thereby reducing lateral stability and load bearing capacity, reported City Engineer Roy H. Hoffman.

SPEED LIMIT

The council set a 10-mile-an-hour speed limit for trucks and a load capacity limit of five tons including the weight of the truck.

The new law replaces emergency law passed last Wednesday which only set the five-ton limit.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said dredging has been stopped in the area of the bridge columns, and the city has placed the Marin County Flood Control District on notice that it is liable.

BRIDGE DESIGN

Bathurst said the bridge design and financing problems will have to be studies and the council probably will have to have a special session for action later this month.

The council received a report from Warren Mistron, public works director, that a sewer force main was damaged, and Bathurst said he believed the damage was caused by one of the dredges operating in the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control project. He estimated that the repair would cost from $5,000 to $6,000.

The council authorized City Atty. Robert W. Elliott to review the matter for recovery of damages.

Driving Fine

John Leonard Lunt, 35, of 5 Crystal Court, Mill Valley, was fined $150 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court and placed on a year's probation for drunken driving Aug. 28 on East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley.

Another Fair-Marin Director Quits Post

A second member of the board of directors of Fair-Marin Inc. has resigned from the board.

He is Jack D. La Noue, an executive of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., who has been transferred to a new position with PT&T in San Francisco.

"It is impossible for me to continue with most of my outside activities," wrote La Noue in a letter to the Marin County Board of Supervisors. "With regret, I tender my resignation as director of Fair-Marin Inc."

Fred F. Enemark, president of the board, resigned Friday because of press of business and personal reasons.

The two resignations leave only five directors on the seven-man board. On Sept. 16, members of the Fair-Marin will hold their annual meeting to nominate 14 new directors, from which the county supervisors will choose seven.

Motorcyclist Injured In Crash

Stephen A. Jacob, 19, of 35 Cleo Street, Novato, was admitted yesterday to Marin General Hospital for face cuts and a lacerated forehead after his motorcycle ran off Highway 101 in Corte Madera. He was reported in good condition today.

The California Highway Patrol said the accident occurred at 4:25 p.m. when Jacob heard a loud noise, turned his head to investigate and ran off the highway.

Education Trends

Marin County Schools Supt. Virgil S. Hollis will speak on "Trends in Education" at the regular monthly meeting of the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Red Barn at Point Reyes Station. Dinner reservations may be made with Henry Hankins of Inverness or Harriet Greene of Stinson Beach.

Library, Health Buildings Are Proposed For College

Preliminary plans for a multi-use library and a health service building at College of Marin were presented last night at a workshop meeting of the college district board.

The library was proposed for the area between Corte Madera Creek, College Avenue, the Austin Science Building and the College Center. A portion of the site is now occupied by the communications building which is slated for demolition.

In addition to housing an estimated 75,000 volumes and having library activity rooms, Dale E. Fleming, director of planning and research, suggested the inclusion of a new campus bookstore, a computer center, campus warehouse, central mail room and a television studio.

Fleming explained that while the other facilities might not be directly related to the traditional library, they would provide an "escape valve" if more room for the library is needed in the future. "These areas can provide extension space that can be vacated if necessary," he said.

Terming it subterfuge, board member Robert E. Rogers said he felt that it was just a method to get approval from the state for a larger library building than might normally be permitted, considering the student enrollment of 3,700. He agreed, however, that such a plan would make enlargement of the library easier at a later date.

Protesting the inclusion of the bookstore, Harry J. Moore, board clerk, pointed out that a bookstore had recently been installed in the new Campus Center. "Why include the store in the library?" he asked. "Must we plan on relocating it every two years?"

Fleming explained that the new bookstore is already out of growing space and would be centrally located if placed in the library.

The proposed health service classroom building would include rooms for dental assistant classes, nursing, vocational nursing and remedial reading courses. The building would include four laboratories, 13 lecture classrooms and 36 faculty offices.

Located at the present site of Harlan Hall, which is slated for demolition, the building will have one or two stories.

Board members questioned inclusion of rooms for remedial reading classes. "Doesn't a course of that nature more directly relate to the new library building?" asked Harry Moore. "Perhaps we could substitute that section for the proposed bookstore."

Fleming agreed that might be advisable and said the matter would be studied further.

No cost estimates for the proposed building have been made.

Building needs will be reconsidered before consulting the full district board at a regular meeting. When approval is reached, architects will be selected.

Bicycle Check

A bicycle safety check will be held and bicycle licenses issued Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at Marion School in Novato by Novato police and Novato Moose Lodge 2041, according to Earl A. Jacobs, club publicity chairman.

Fake Bomb At Airport

JAFFA, Israel (UPI)—Israeli police found a fake bomb at Lydda International Airport today, panicking some passengers already nervous over terrorist bombings in Tel Aviv.

Police said the fake bomb was planted in a wastebasket in the same manner as were three bombs that went off near Tel Aviv's central bus station yesterday. One person was killed and 49 injured.

Girl Relates Murder Scene Of Her Escort

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA —A 19-year-old girl calmly told a Sonoma County Superior Court judge yesterday how she listened in terror while three young men battled with her escort on a secluded country street last Oct. 7.

The testimony came at the trial of Jack E. Brockman, 21, of Santa Rosa, one of three men charged with the murder of 18-year-old Charles Kaufmann Jr.

Brockman is being tried before Judge Joseph P. Murphy Jr. without a jury. The other two charged in the murder of young Kaufmann are Kenneth Allen Preston, 20, who has been convicted in Marin County and sentenced to death for the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ackley in Santa Venetia last February, and Johnny Lee Sommerhalder, 24, now on trial in Marin Superior Court for the Ackley murders. All three are members of the Grim Reapers, a Sonoma County motorcycle club.

The girl was with young Kaufmann in her car when they parked on Alta Vista Avenue, overlooking Santa Rosa, about 3:30 a.m. on Oct. 7. They had met at a party and drove around afterward, she testified.

Her only sign of nervousness as she related what happened then was occasional brushing of her long, brown hair from in front of her face.

She said three men approached the parked car and one of them — she was not sure which — ordered her and Kaufmann to get out. Then, she said, her pullover sweater was yanked over her head so she was unable to see.

She heard scuffling and sounds of a fight, she testified, then two gunshots fired in quick succession, and a third shot after a pause.

Suddenly she was jerked from her car and forced into the other car, she continued. It was driven to an out-of-the-way spot on a narrow, winding road. There, she said, she was raped four to six times.

The three men remained there with her for about two hours, she went on. Then they tied her hands and feet with pieces of her own clothing, and left her.

She said she struggled with her bonds for 10 minutes before getting free. And then, with amazing presence of mind, according to her testimony, she left bits of her torn clothing at the spot "so I could lead deputies there later."

She walked to a paved highway and flagged down Howard Austin Little of Daly City, who was driving to Lake County. He took her home.

During all her recitation, the accused Brockman sat calmly beside his attorney, Public Defender Marteen Miller, occasionally smiling as he spoke with the lawyer.

Also heard yesterday were eight other witnesses called to identify the murder victim and evidence found at the scenes of violence.

Dr. Leonard J. Kreissel Jr., Santa Rosa, testified that an autopsy disclosed Kaufmann was killed by a single shot in the brain, fired from the rear. He had also been shot in both shoulders.

Trial of Preston for the Kaufmann murder is schduled here for Sept. 17; that of Sommerhalder, for Oct. 8.

Thomas Jefferson was the first to advocate free public schools in America.

Novato Board Hires 14 New Teachers

The Novato Unified School District board hired 14 new teachers, accepted eight resignations and granted one leave of absence at its meeting Monday night in the administration building.

This will complete the hiring before school starts Tuesday, according to Deputy Supt. Ralph Giovanniello.

The board accepted the resignations of Arlene Kean and Doris Chew from junior high school, and Betty Buie, Penny Foster, Lynda Fowler, Suzanne Kulas, Charlene Martin and Rebecca Nave from the elementary grades.

It hired Margaret Brindle at $8,244; Nancy Pinkham at $6,900 and Carole Dement at $7,698 all for junior high school; and Barbara Barros at $7,872; Sondra Essary at $6,000; Alyce Farkas at $7,248; Roger Gilbert at $7,098; Margaret Hakanson $6,312; Margot Harrison at $8,520; Elizabeth Hayes at $9,438; Cynthia Hymphries at $6,624; Lynn Ralston at $7,236; Phyllis Torgeson at $6,624; Wagner at $6,624, all for elementary teachers.

Two Injured As Motorcycle Overturns

Two Hamilton Air Force Base men were injured in a solo motorcycle accident about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Ignacio Overpass of Highway 101, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Sgt. Van Edward Carter, 22, who lives in barracks on the base, was reported in good condition today in Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco with a compound fracture of his left leg.

S/Sgt. Marvin C. Grisson, 23, of 1064 Eighth Street, Novato, was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for abrasions of the left leg and released, according to base officials.

Grisson was the driver of the motorcycle and Carter was a passenger when it overturned at the overpass, according to the highway patrol.

Czechs Continue Hostility To Troops, Collaborators

PRAGUE (AP) — Soviet commanders today delayed resumption of domestic flights in Czechoslovakia amid new signs that the public is unyielding in its stand against the occupation.

The government airline CSA had been promised by local Soviet authorities that flights between Prague and the Slovak capital of Bratislava could be resumed shortly after dawn today, but airline officials said the Soviets suddenly rescinded their permit. They hoped the first plane could leave later this week.

Bratislava as well as 13 district towns in western Slovakia were reported still occupied by Soviet troops.

They also gave no indication of moving out of Prague.

Prace, the trade union newspaper, said the local Soviet commander in Bratislava still had his headquarters in the castle, a symbol of Slovak nationalism.

The newspaper also reported that residents of the Ostrava industrial region have prepared a special election to replace Drahomir Kolder, an ex-member of the Communist party presidium who is accused of collaborating with the Soviets, in the National Assembly.

The Kosice district prosecutor announced that an investigation produced no evidence that "nine citizens who lost their lives in connection with the arrival of the foreign troops had been firing" at the Russians. The case has been turned over to the prosecutor general, an indication that prosecution of Soviet soldiers involved in the killings would be sought.

The editorial offices of four out of seven Prague daily newspapers were still under Soviet guard this morning.

Party chief Alexander Dubcek visited two major Prague factories yesterday, and Rude Pravo said he expressed gratitude for the workers' "firm revolutionary attitude during these and the past days." He added he was convinced of continued support.

Sewer Plans Ordered In Fairfax Area

After listening to about 45 residents of the Forrest Avenue area in Fairfax, who were both opposed and in favor of a proposed sewer project in the area, Ross Valley Sanitary District directors last night voted to form a district to do the work.

District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah said that a bid of $92,237, lower than the original estimate of $137,000 for the project, will enable assessment estimates to be lowered about 23 per cent.

On Aug. 21 the board received 68 protests against the formation of a sewer district and learned in a public hearing that most of the objections were over assessment costs.

Estimated assessments had ranged from $1,600 to $11,789, Noah said.

The Marin County Health Department had reported that eight of the septic tanks in the area are failing now and that about 15 others are in danger of failing soon.

The board granted a contract last night to the low bidder, Baldwin Construction Co. of Marysville.

Higher Strawberry Garbage Rates Asked

Mill Valley Refuse Co. representatives last night asked the Strawberry Recreation District board to increase garbage collection rates by 30 per cent over the next three years, board clerk Mrs. William R. Heick, reported.

Directors delayed action on the request to the Oct. 2 meeting pending a study of the company's financial records. Directors asked that the district's operation costs be segregated from those of other areas served by the company, Mrs. Heick said.

Refuse company representatives told the board that operation costs have increased 35.2 per cent since 1964, she reported.

The company is asking a 15 per cent increase next year, with a 10 per cent increase in 1970 and a 5 per cent increase in 1971.

Present rates are $2 a month for a single can and $3.75 for two or more cans. The first year's increase would raise single can collection rates to $2.30 a month and the two-can rates to $4.31 a month.

Directors also approved a new contract with consulting architect J. Martin Rosse, Mrs. Heike said. It provides for a $50 a month consultation fee and payment of an 8 per cent fee for all projects over $110,000. Fees for projects under $110,000 will be based on twice the personnel expenses incurred by Rosse. These include his personal wage scale of $8 per hour and the regular rate of pay plus benefits for any employees he might use on each project, Mrs. Heike said.

The board accepted five nomination petitions for two board vacancies due to be filled at the Nov. 5 election, Mrs. Heike said.

Seeking the two posts are incumbent directors George C. Lopes and James K. Garner, and David Neuman, Edward R. Middendorf and Manuel K. Lehua.

Apollo Launch Test Is Rerun

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Cautious engineers reran part of a mock launch test on the Apollo 7 moonship today to guarantee two brief power losses were not symptoms of trouble.

The abbreviated repeat of Wednesday's day-long run got underway at 9 a.m. and was expected to run into the late afternoon. It was the same test that led to the deaths of the first three-man Apollo crew 19 months ago.

Giants Take Break

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants took a much-needed rest today and spent much of the time contemplating their position in the National League pennant race.

The team has 21 games to play this season, some of them this weekend with league-leading St. Louis. San Francisco is in second place, 13½ games behind the Cardinals.

The Giants, opening the weekend set with a twi-night doubleheader tomorrow, are expected to send their ace, Juan Marichal, 24-7, against the front-runners, Gaylord Perry, 13-13, and Bob Bolin, 7-4, are well rested and one of them will probably start in the twin bill.

The Giants had to scramble yesterday to salvage a doubleheader split with Chicago after the Cubs won the first game 7-6 on two-run homers by Don Kessinger and Billy Williams, the latter homer disputed by the Giants.

In the nightcap, Bobby Bonds singled in the ninth to score Jack Hiatt for a 5-4 victory.

Hiatt opened the ninth with a single and moved to second on Jim Davenport's sacrifice.

Trailing 4-1, the Giants tied the game in the eighth on a two-run single by Willie Mays and a run-scoring sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey. His sacrifice fly scored the Giants' first run in the opening inning.

The Cubs were helped to their early lead with a three - run homer by Ernie Banks, his 28th.

The Giants, trailing 7-2 in the first game, rallied for four runs in the eighth.

Williams' homer, his 24th, proved to be the winning blow in the third, making the score 4-2, and was hotly disputed by the Giants.

A's Again Fall To Tigers

OAKLAND (AP) — More than ever, the quality of the bullpen is spelling the critical difference between a winning and losing team.

That's why the Tigers are leading the American League while the Athletics are in fifth place—and why Detroit whipped Oakland 4-2 last night for its third straight win over the Athletics.

Reliever Pat Dobson, who had won the two previous games with fine late-inning hurling, blanked Oakland on one hit over the last two innings to preserve the victory for starter John Hiller, 7-5.

But Oakland's Chuck Dobson, 11-13, who weakened in the eighth inning with the score tied 2-2, found no relief in the pitchers who followed him to the mound and absorbed the loss.

With two outs in the eighth, the Oakland starter walked Mickey Stanley. "That upset me," Dobson said later. "I know I shouldn't let it, but it did."

He gave up a single to Jim Northrup and Detroit Manager Mayo Smith sent Al Kaline in to pinch-hit. Oakland Manager Bob Kennedy brought in Paul Lindblad. After two wide pitches, he intentionally walked Kaline, loading the bases.

That was all for Lindblad who gave way to Jack Aker. Willie Horton bounced a hit off the reliever's glove to break the tie. A walk to Bill Freehan forced in the final Tiger run.

Detroit took a 1-0 lead in the first on singles by Dick McAuliffe and Northrup but Oakland tied in the second on a double by Sal Bando and singles by Mike Hershberger and Joe Rudi.

Each team scored single runs in the sixth, the Tigers on singles by McAuliffe, Stanley and Northrup and Norm Cash's sacrifice fly, the Athletics on Hershberger's fourth home run of the year.

The victory enabled the Tigers to maintain their eight game lead over the Baltimore Orioles while the Athletics dropped to a 71-71 record, 18½ games off the pace and tied with New York.

Both teams are idle today. The Tigers open a three-game weekend series at home Friday night against the Minnesota Twins while Oakland will do the same, hosting the Cleveland Indians.

Ralston Gains Quarter-Finals In Open Tennis

Gonzales Wins Stunning Upset

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP) — Sixth seeded Dennis Ralston, given his second reprieve in the tournament by darkness, pulled out a 2-6, 6-2, 5-7, 13-11, 6-3 victory over Yugoslavia's Nicola Pilic today for the remaining men's quarter-final spot in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The Bakersfield pro will play the veteran third-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia on Saturday. Rosewall has been made the tournament favorite after the elimination of Rod Laver and Tony Roche.

TIED UP

Pilic was leading Ralston, 2 sets to 1, with the score in the fourth set tied at 8-8 when the match had to be halted because of darkness yestereday.

In the round before, Ralston was two games from defeat against Mexico's tiny Joaquin Loyo-Mayo when the match was similarly interupted only to win the following day.

Ralston started the resumed match today with a service ace but two double faults got him into a hole and he was down to advantage at one point. But a brilliant volley after a long rally saved the match and the game.

GONZALES

Already in the quarter finals is Pancho Gonzales. And how are his 40-year old legs holding up?

"Muscles don't respond the way they used to," the fiery, old warrior from Los Angeles said today as he contemplated his quarter-final match with Tom Okker of The Netherlands. "A man my age can play two and perhaps three tough matches but then the legs start getting wobbly. I'm very tired."

GREATEST HOUR

Gonzales experienced his greatest hour in 19 years on the West Side's center court yesterday when he upset second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia with brilliant, slashing tennis 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

This made the seven-time king of the pros the sentimental favorite of the galleries but those adhering to the hard, realistic line are stringing with the tough little Australian stylist, Ken Rosewall.

Rosewall had a tough battle with talented Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., before winning 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6.

QUARTER-FINALS

The other two quarter-finals, both today, test America's Davis Cup aces, both amateurs.

Lt. Arthur Ashe plays Cliff Drysdale, the South African who upset favored Rod Laver.

His teammate, Clark Graebner of New York, faces Australian John Newcombe, winner of both the U.S. and Wimbledon titles in 1967.

TOP WOMEN

The other women's semifinals is scheduled tomorrow between top-seeded Billie Jean King of Berkeley, winner over Maryna Godwin of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and Maria Bueno of Brazil, who upset U.S. Amateur champion Margaret Smith Court of Australia 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

The women's final is scheduled Saturday, the men's final Sunday.

Gonzales' opponent today, Okker, is a 24-year-old Dutchman who has become the game's pro killer. His pro victims include Laver, Pilic, Ralston, Alex Olmedo and Roy Emerson.

Tuesday he won over Britain's Peter Curtis 8-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. Of Gonzales, he said: "If I can carry him to four sets, I've got a chance." Pancho agreed.

OOOPS! — Forty-year-old Pancho Gonzales, the new darling of the crowd, sits on the ground after falling during his match with Australian Tony Roche in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., yesterday. Gonzales tore apart the second-seeded Roche to gain the quarterfinal round, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2. (UPI Telephoto)

Mr. Mauch To Manage Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — Gene Mauch, former field manager of the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League, was named to a similar post today with Montreal's new baseball entry in the league.

Mauch was dismissed by the Phillies in mid-June.

THE EXPOS

John McHale, president of the Montreal club, made the announcement and in addition said the team will be known as the Montreal Expos.

Mauch, 43, has 8½ years of major league managing experience, all with the Phillies.

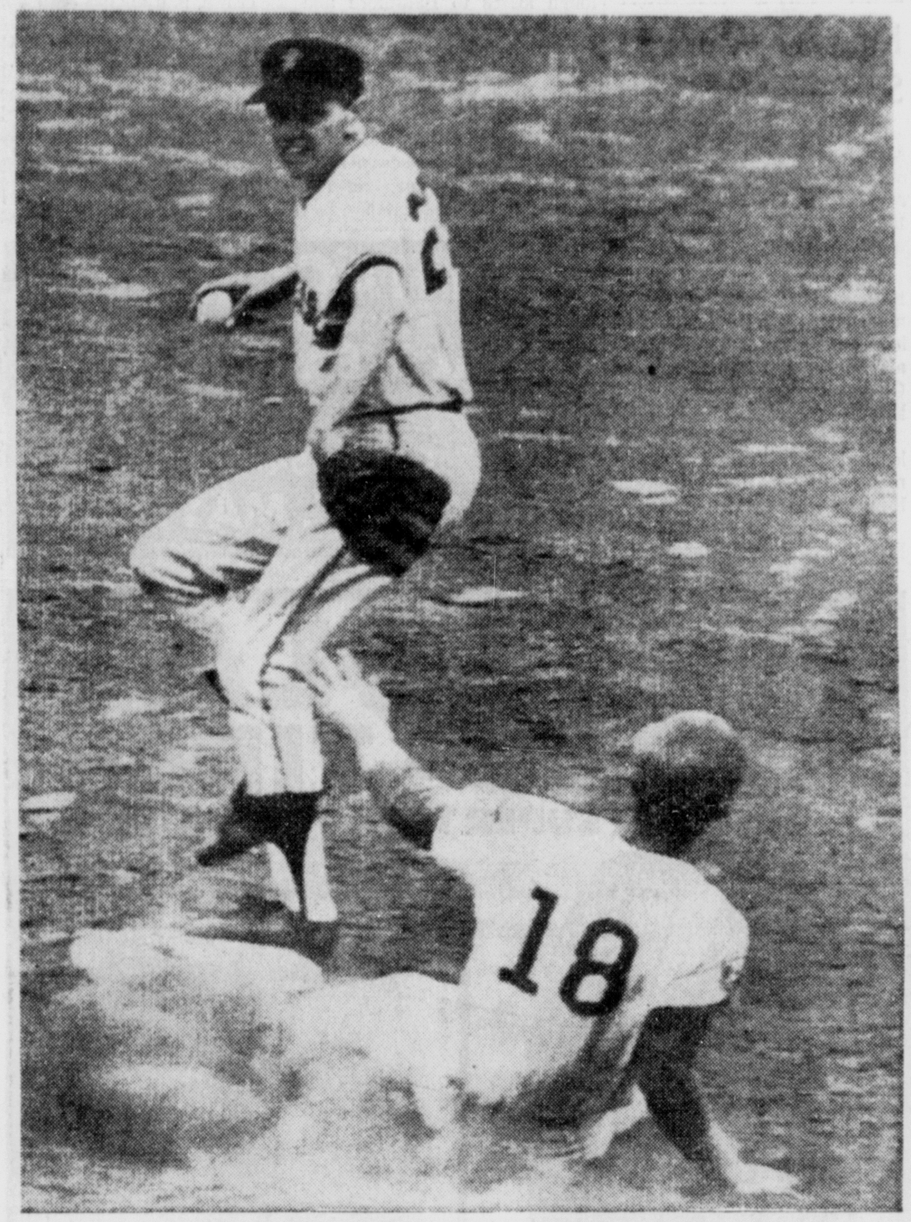
Mauch started with the Phillies after the 1960 season opener.

He guided the club from eighth-place finishes in 1960 and 1961 to seventh in 1962, fourth in 1963, a tie for second in 1964, sixth in 1965, fourth in 1966 and fifth in 1967.

RETURNS

Mauch played in Montreal as an infielder with the Montreal Royals of the International League in 1943. In 1944, he started with Brooklyn of the National League before going into the armed forces.

In all, he appeared in 304 major league games over a span of six years.



CUB FORCED AT SECOND

San Francisco shortstop Hal Lanier steps on second base to force out Cubs' Glenn Beckert but his throw to first is too late in first game in yesterday's double-header at Chicago. Play started when Billie Williams grounded to Lanier. Cubs won, 7-6, but the Giants came back to win the nightcap, 5-4. (AP Wirephoto)

49ers' Walt Rock Planning To Sit Out Ala Rick Barry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Offensive tackle Walt Rock of the San Francisco 49ers says he may follow basketball player Rick Barry by sitting out this National Football League season and joining another team next year.

The six-year veteran has not reported and has asked to be traded to Washington or Baltimore so he can be near his door sales business in Washington, D.C.

"The Rick Barry situation is encouraging," Rock said yesterday by telephone from his home. "I may sit out the option on my 49er contract this year and then join a team in this area."

However, 49er President Lou Spadia said the Barry decision would have no influence on NFL contracts, which specifically provide that options must be played out, not sat out.

Barry was allowed to join the Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association after sitting out his option with the San Francisco Warriors of the NBA.

The Washington Redskins offered two players for the 6-foot-4, 255-pound former Maryland star but the 49ers turned down the trade.

New Cincinnati Bengals To Invade Jungle Of Regular Season Play

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The new Cincinnati Bengals, who did some growling in their last two exhibition games, will invade the jungle of regular season professional play for the first time tomorrow night.

Paul Brown's Bengals will kick off the regular American Football League season when they play the Chargers at San Diego. Kickoff for the game to be televised nationally by NBC is 5:30 p.m.

BUSY WEEKEND

The game is one of three regular season games that will be played during a busy weekend schedule, which also will have two interleague exhibition games and one AFL and secen National Football League preseason games.

Rookie Dewey Warren and John Stoffa are expected to share the quarterbacking for the Bengals, who lost their first three exhibition games before beating the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers and the AFL New York Jets.

Cincinnati's main chore in their first play-for-keeps encounter will be to stop the passing of John Hadl and the catching of Lance Alworth.

The other two AFL regular season games have Boston at Buffalo Sunday and Kansas City at Houston Monday night. Both games will be televised nationally by NBC.

AFL LEADS

The two fin nialterleague exhibitions—the AFL leads the series 11-10—pits NFL Atlanta against the AFL Dolphins at Miami and the New York Jets against NFL Detroit at Cleveland Saturday night.

Minnesota meets New Orleans at Shreveport, La., St. Louis plays at Chicago and San Francisco is at Los Angeles in NFL preseason action Friday night, while Philadelphia meets the New York Giants at Princeton, N.J., Saturday afternoon and Baltimore is at Dallas in a nationally televised (CBS) game. Green Bay is at Cleveland and Pittsburgh is at Washington Saturday night.

In a player-club dispute, veteran halfback Joe Aver walked out of the Miami camp as a free agent after the Dolphins refused to pay him $500 and reportedly offered him a spot on the taxi squad.

Clippers To Play Wait-See After Tie With San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Oakland Clippers have an eight-point lead over San Deigo in the Pacific Division of the North American Soccer League and can win the title if Los Angeles wins this Saturday night.

The Clippers and Toros played to a 3-3 tie last night before more than 7,000 fans at Balboa Stadium. It gave the Toros another chance to win the title.

Under NASL rules, a victory is worth six points and a team is given a bonus point for each goal scored to a maximum of three.

Thus if the Toros beat the Los Angeles Wolves here Saturday night by a score of 3-2, the winners would get nine points and win the Pacific crown by one point. Oakland and San Diego would only tie for the title if the Toros win 2-0 or 2-1.

But a 1-0 victory by the Toros next Saturday would only give them seven points, one shy of the crown.

Crow Moved To End; Gary Lewis To Start

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco 49ers yesterday cut defensive end Walter Johnson to cut down to the NFL limit of 43 players.

In a striking experiment, Coach Dick Nolan shifted John David Crow from halfback to tight end and said he would start Gary Lewis at running back tomorrow night at Los Angeles.

Bill Tucker, another running back trying to make it at tight end, was shifted back to the backfield.

Crow, who has a decade of pro experience, has always been good at blocking and pass catching. "I think I can work it out," he said of his new move.

He and Dave Olerich will probably share duties against the Rams since starter Bob Windsor is hurt.

Nolan also said he would spot play Cliff McNeil, the speedy receiver just obtained from Cleveland. He has been working hard at camp to mesh his timing with quarterbacks John Brodie and George Mira.

FOOTBALLERS BEGIN DRILLS

Marin County's high school football teams are getting into shape during this first week of practice for the 1968 season.

Teams started practice on Monday and Tuesday.

First non-league games for the preps will be on the weekend of Sept. 20-21.

Ex-Cardinal Star Ernie Orsatti Dies

CANOGA PARK (UPI) — Ernie Orsatti, who played in four World Series and was an outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals from 1927 to 1935, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home here.

Orsatti, 65, had a career batting average of .306 and batted .326 in 1932 and .332 in 1929. In recent years he operated a bail bond service in nearby Van Nuys.

Tiant Needs Help, McNally Doesn't

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Luis Tiant's Cleveland bullpen buddies gave him a lift to the front door of the 20 Game Winners' Club. Baltimore's Dave McNally got there under his own power.

Four Cleveland relievers combined to preserve Tiant's 19th victory last night as the Indians subdued the California Angels 9-5 after blowing a seven-run lead.

McNally nailed his 19th triumph with a fourth inning home run as the Orioles trimmed the New York Yankees 6-3.

Carl Yastrzemski grabbed the American League batting lead with a four-hit spree in Boston's 10-2 romp over Minnesota; Willie Horton's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning sparked first-place Detroit to a 4-2 victory over Oakland and the Chicago White Sox blanked Washington 3-0 in 14 innings.

Tiant, 19-9, stopped the Angels on one hit until the sixth, when Roger Repoz' two-run homer touched off a four-run rally that drove him from the mound. Sonny Siebert, Rob Gardner and Horacio Pina all came out of the bullpen before the inning was over and Vicente Romo got the last two outs after Pina faltered in the ninth, preserving Tiant's first victory since Aug. 10.

Joe Azcue drove in four Cleveland runs with a pair of singles and Vern Fuller collected three hits and scored three runs.

McNally, who has reeled off 11 straight victories since the All-Star break for a 19-8 mark, smacked his third homer of the season after the Yankees had closed the gap to 4-3 on consecutive homers by Bill Robinson and Andy Kosco in the top of the fourth.

Elrod Hendricks, who singled home one of three Baltimore runs in the second, doubled and scored an insurance marker in the sixth.

Yastrzemski boosted his batting average to .291 by swatting three singles and his 18th homer in the Red Sox' victory at Minnesota. Right-hander Gary Bell checked the Twins on six hits and broke a 2-2 tie with a secrifice fly in the seventh before Boston sewed it up with six unearned runs in the eighth.

Chicago's Tom McCraw broke a scoreless deadlock with a squeeze bunt in the 14th and Luis Aparicio followed with a two-run single, enabling the White Sox to push two games ahead of the Senators in their battle for ninth place.

Umpire Bob Engel waved it a home run.

"It hit on a cement ledge below the yellow line," said Giant bullpen Coach Larry Jansen. "It didn't come close to leaving the park. He just plain and simple blew the play."

"There's no way that ball could have bounced back onto the playing field unless it did exactly what it did," said Giant pitcher Ray Sadecki. "It hit the ledge."

Sadecki was in the bullpen prior to taking over for Mike McCormick, 10-14, in the fifth inning.

Sadecki hurled 22/3 innings, giving up a two-run double to Ron Santo. He came back in the second game and pitched 62/3 scoreless innings after taking over for starter Ron Herbel with one out in the first.

But Frank Linzy came in with the score 4-4 and Bonds' ninth-inning hit brought his record to 8-7.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Cincinnati's Rose Is Ruining Image

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pete Rose is ruining his image.

Determined to become the first $100,000 player who doesn't pitch or hit home runs for a living, Rose has broken out in an unaccustomed display of power.

The Cincinnati spark plug rapped his second home run in as many days and 10th of the season last night helping the Reds halt a six-game losing streak with an 8-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In other National League action, Los Angeles shut out Philadelphia 3-0, and Chicago split a doubleheader with San Francisco, winning 7-6 before losing 5-4.

Rose led off the game with his home run and then reverted to his normal approach with two singles, raising his league leading batting average to .348.

The three hits gave him 181 for the season—19 shy of his goal of 200. He has 25 games to go and if he hits the target, it will be the third time in the last four years he has done it.

Rose's 200 target has been made more difficult this season by a broken thumb which cost him 13 games in July. Nevertheless, he leads Pittsburgh's Matty Alou by 11 points in the batting race and is one of only four batters in the major leagues hitting more than .300 in this "year of the pitcher."

Johnny Bench had a two-run homer and Leo Cardenas and Lee May also drove in two runs apiece with key hits for the Reds.

Don Sutton pitched his first shutout of the season, throttling Philadelphia on three hits as the Dodgers defeated the Phillies.

Sutton struck out 12—a career high—and never was in real trouble, winning his seventh game.

The Dodgers bunched three singles for a run in the fourth and then added two insurance runs in the eighth and ninth with triples by Willie Davis and Bill Sudakis the key hits.

Berzewski Advances In Trials

Airman Martin Berzewski, the Air Force middleweight champion from Hamilton AFB, eliminated 17-year-old Mike Quarry in the quarterfinals of the U.S. Olympic boxing trials last night at Toledo, Ohio.

Berzewski, perennial titlist in service competition, thus joined 43 other amateur fighters who advanced to tonight's semifinals. The finals in the 11 weight divisions are scheduled tomorrow night with winners qualifying for the Olympic boxing matches next month at Mexico City.

OTTAWA (AP) — The Ottawa Rough Riders took over first place in the Eastern Conference with a 24-17 victory over the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in an interlocking Canadian Football League game last night.

King To Manage S.F. Giants?

CHICAGO (AP) — Clyde King, ace relief pitcher for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, will manage the San Francisco Giants in 1969, the Chicago Daily News said yesterday.

Speculation on Herman Franks' successor as Giants' manager, the newspaper said, has centered around the California Angels' Bill Rigney and the Giants center fielder, Willie Mays.

"But the Daily News has learned that Franks' replacement will be the 43-year-old King," said the newspaper.

Raider Depth Is Proving Very Valuable

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — How come every time the Oakland Raiders get an injury they have a good man to move right in?

Linebacker Bill Lasky was operated on for a torn Achilles tendon earlier this week and probably will miss much of the season. So, who has been the rookie sensation around camp? Linebacker Duane Benson from Hamline, who will start Saturday night when Oakland plays Denver at Portland, Ore.

Benson was an 11th draft choice, but the coaches agree he has a chance to be outstanding.

Statistics of the Raiders' 2-2 exhibition slate, which include tough losses to Baltimore and Kansas City, show Daryle Lamonica hitting 38 of 65 for 571 yards playing just over half of the time. He has thrown for six touchdowns.

The Raiders have completed 73 passes and 16 players have caught at least one. Hewritt Dixon has a dozen catches.

Add Schlee To List Of Golf Favorites In Hartford Open

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)— Add the name of John Schlee to the list of players who must be considered favorites going into today's opening round of the $100,000 Greater Hartford Open golf tournament.

Schlee, a little known 29-year-old pro from Dallas, Tex., shot a six-under-par 65 in yesterday's pro-am to pick up the $500 first prize.

Schlee's 65 and Jimmy Grant's 33-33—66 was followed by a three-way tie at 67 between Dudley Wysong, Harold Henning and Kel Nagle.

The tournament's defending champion, 44-year-old Charlie Sifford, hopes to make it two in a row when he tees off for the $20,000 first prize. Sifford won with 272 last year and scored a par-matching 71 in the pro-am round.

Rookie Bob Murphy of Florida, is another favorite to win the crown. Murphy has $95,745 in winnings this year and is currently considered the hottest player on the pro tour.

Murphy's winning streak began with a second place finish in the Westchester Classic three weeks ago and he added victories at Philadelphia and the Thunderbird tournament.

A Distinctive Rut For Dick Fosbury

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI)—Dick Fosbury is the world's most distinctive high jumper. And, if you are to believe this boyish-looking, 6-foot-4-inch senior from Oregon State, he is in the world's most distinctive rut.

Fosbury has become famous for two reasons. The first is his self-devised style in which he runs up to the bar from the front, spins and jumps over, back first. The second is the singular success he has enjoyed this summer with his show-stopping style, called the Fosbury Flop.

In June, he won the NCAA title with a meet-record jump of 7 feet 2 1-4 inches. Two weeks later, in the first Olympic trials at Los Angeles, he won at 7-1. Next week, at this high-altitude training camp, he is favored to win the final U.S. Olympic trials and go on to the games in Mexico City in October.

"I'm pretty sure I'll make the team," Fosbury said. "But I've got to get out of this rut."

What rut?

"My first meet since the Olympic trials was here," said Fosbury. "I jumped 6-10. Then we had another meet here. I did 6-10. Then we had a meet in California. Yep, 6-10.

"But I was jumping 6-10 all year, and I managed to get up for the big meets. You know, I've been competing since January without a break. I'm mentally and physically tired. So even though I'm not pleased at the moment, I'm not disappointed, either. Everybody thinks something is wrong because I'm not doing 7-2 all the time."

Everybody thinks something is wrong whenever Fosbury jumps. But his odd style works for him, and more conventional styles don't.

"I started jumping in fifth grade," he said. "I used the old scissors style. I did 3-10. In high school, I couldn't do better than 5-4. Then I figured out this style I now have, and the first time I tried it in a meet I did 5-10. So I've stayed with it, even though every coach I've had has tried to talk me into the straddle style most other jumpers use."

How high will Fosbury go?

"Well," he said, "the world record is 7-5 3-4. I'd like to break that. But I have to do 7-4 first and 7-3 before that."

How high will man jump?

"We're learning new techniques and getting stronger," he said, "so I don't know if there's really a limit. Some could go eight feet right now, but we just don't know how to do it."

BOWLING TIPS

BY MARION LADEWIG

If your ball is curving too much to the left, you should move your starting position on the approach to the LEFT. This is difficult for some bowlers to understand, but the idea is that by moving to the left you will change the angle so that the ball will hit farther to the right. The reverse applies if your ball is not reaching the pocket, of course. Move to the right and see if this doesn't help.

American League Champion Raiders Picked To Repeat

By MURRAY CHASS

NEW YORK (AP) — As the New York Jets trudged out of the locker room at their training camp recently, a fan studied them for a moment, then said, "They look like the Green Bay Packers."

OILERS IN EAST

That's why the Oilers should repeat as Eastern Division champions and go into the American Football League title game against the Oakland Raiders.

That would be a repeat of last year's title contest, and in this opinion, the outcome will be repeated, too—the Raiders winning and going into the Super Bowl for another crack at the National League.

East	West
1. Houston	1. Oakland
2. New York	2. Kansas City
3. Buffalo	3. San Diego
4. Miami	4. Denver
5. Boston	5. Cincinnati

Because they have Joe Namath, the Jets for the past couple of years have been considered a likely candidate for the title game. But after good starts each time, the Jets have failed to make it.

A CHANCE

This year again they have to be given a good chance to win in the East, but from this view they'll miss again after a brutal struggle. Actually, it's not too far-fetched to foresee the Eastern crown being decided in a playoff game.

The Oilers had two things going for them last year—a tremendously stingy defense and a pair of rugged runners, Hoyle Granger and Woodie Campbell. If they can get a better than mediocre passing game to join the combination, they should get by New York.

The Jets, on the other hand, could surprise if halfback Emerson Boozer returns to his pre-injury 1967 form.

None of the other teams in the division appears strong enough to challenge the Oilers and Jets.

For a while, Buffalo looked as if it might bounce back toward the top, but then injuries set in, including a damaging one to quarterback Jack Kemp, who's out for the season with torn knee ligaments.

Miami is progressing rapidly but still not far enough along, and Boston has too many problems, including one at quarterback where Mike Taliaferro is trying to make the Patriot offense go.

Despite a couple of Achilles tendon injuries that most likely will keep defensive tackle Tom Keating and linebacker Bill Laskey out for the season, the Raiders appear to have too much to be unseated.

They'll miss Keating and Laskey, but they still have a rugged bunch of defenders led by middle linebacker Dan Connors and cornerback Kent McCloughan.

Kansas City could surprise and challenge Oakland, but its reshuffled defense still must prove itself. The Chiefs' biggest chance is for complacency to hit the Raiders.

DEFENSE OFF

The same goes for San Diego although the Chargers' defense keeps them a little behind the Chiefs.

The fight for fourth place could be an interesting one because the Denver Broncos are hurting without quarterback Steve Tensi for at least the first four games, while the expansion Cincinnati Bengals have displayed an unexpectedly tough defense.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 5, the 249th day of 1968 with 117 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning star is Mars. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1896 because of the Gold Rush in the Klondike, the first beefsteak to reach Circle City, Alaska, sold for $48 a pound.

In 1965 Dr. Albert Schweitzer, world-known healer of the sick in Africa, died in Lambarene, Gabon, at the age of 90.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

LOSES FINESSE

West opened the king of diamonds, and declarer won in dummy with the ace. He returned a spade, finessing with the nine and losing to the ten.

West cashed one high diamond and then shifted to a trump. Declarer won in dummy with the ten and led the other spade, losing a finesse to the queen.

West led another trump, and South won in his hand with the ace of clubs, drew one more round of trumps and claimed the rest with trumps and established spades.

PLAY NOT NORMAL

The play may seem perfectly normal, but actually one of the players committed a horrible crime. If you sniff about carefully for clues, you should be able to name the criminal before you read on.

West was the criminal, and his crime came at the opening lead. He should open a trump instead of the king of diamonds. When a defender holds strength in declarer's side suit he should usually lead a trump to make sure that his side strength is not ruffed away.

WAY TO DEFEAT

If West leads a trump, he can win the first round of spades to lead a second trump and can later win the second round of spades to lead a third trump. This defense removes all trumps from the dummy, so that South cannot ruff out a spade. West gets all of his spade tricks and must eventually get a diamond, too, defeating the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ 5 4
♥ A J 10
♦ A 3 2
♣ Q 9 6 3 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have 11 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. In this case you decline to exercise your option because you do not have a really strong suit. If you had three small diamonds and five clubs headed by the A-Q-9 you would open the bidding with one club.

Rail Travel Record Claimed In Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — Kimiyuki Ogura, 24, a railway conductor, claimed a new record after he traveled to each capital city in Japan's 46 prefectures by train in six days, 17 hours and 28 minutes.

The former record, set by a woman photographer in 1967, was six days, 21 hours, 37 minutes and 45 seconds.

AMERICAN'S SPORTY JAVELIN

Most significant improvement in the Javelin, introduced last year, is a floor-mounted three-speed standard transmission to replace the column mounted shift. Standard are the 232-cubic-inch, 145-horsepower six-cylinder engine and the 290-cubic-inch, 200-horsepower V-8. Cars will go on sale Oct. 1 at Dexter Rambler, San Rafael, and Larry Brink Motors, Mill Valley.

TRIM DODGE CORONET

Big enough to take the family on a vacation the Coronet 500 is one of five models in Dodge's intermediate line. A 318-cubic-inch engine is standard. Safety innovations feature improved disc brakes and wide tread tires. Coronets and other Dodge models will be shown Sept. 19 at Marin Dodge, San Rafael, and Nave's Dodge and Dodge Dart, Novato.

Foreign Trade In State Ports Expected To Triple By 1980

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — California foreign trade is expected to triple in volume to $14 billion by 1980, according to a report on the state's waterborne trade issued by the Bank of America.

California overseas trade volume doubled between 1957 and 1966, the latest year for which complete data is available. At the same time, the bank reported, California's share of total U. S. world trade increased from 6.5 to 8.2 per cent. California foreign trade in 1966 amounted to $4.6 billion.

In compiling 1966 figures on trade through the state's custom districts, the bank noted that in terms of dollar value, the San Francisco customs district exported more than the Los Angeles and San Diego districts combined. San Francisco exports amounted to $896 million, compared with $692 million for Los Angeles and $43 million for San Diego.

The value of imports was $1,268 million for Los Angeles, $41 million for San Diego, and $889 million for San Francisco.

Transpacific countries are California's biggest trading partners. In dollar value, these countries account for 75 per cent of exports and 69 per cent of imports passing through California customs.

European countries and lesser developed nations of the Middle East and Africa received 20 per cent of exports while pouring in 25 per cent of the imports passing through California ports.

About one-fourth of California exports are agricultural commodities, of which cotton is the most important export item. The remaining three-fourths are nonagricultural.

About three-fourths of California imports are nonagricultural and one-fourth agricultural.

Market Shuts Higher In Active Trading

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed sharply higher today. Trading was active.

The market was up from the start and broadened its gains as the session went on.

Auto stocks were strong, following news that sales of U.S.-made cars rose to a record in August. Gains exceeding a point were scored by General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Steels were generally higher, but gains were fractional for such top companies as U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic. Livingston Oil, a fractional gainer, paced the list on activity.

Diners' Club was heavily traded and up a point on word that it had become the master lessee for hotel, restaurant and commercial enterprises aboard the Queen Mary in an agreement with the city of Long Beach.

Lorillard spurted a couple of points. An agreement in principle to merge with Loew's Theatres was reported.

Anaconda rose 2, and Dictaphone, Southern Railway, Texaco, Procter & Gamble, High Voltage Engineering, Kennecott, Outboard Marine and Raytheon a point or more.

The market seemed to be making good an advance on a Thursday, something it hasn't been able to do since June 6. Normally, Thursday is a day the trend is dampened by traders engaged in preweekend, evening-up operations. A build-up of the good economic news of four uninterrupted days of trading this week helped sentiment.

Japanese Firm Outlet For Lasers

TOKYO (AP) — Mitsui and Co. has been appointed exclusive distributor in Japan for laser optical equipment produced by Optics Technology Inc. of Palo Alto, Mitsui said today.

Mitsui said it already had received several orders for OTI equipment from Japanese companies, institutions and universities.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Firm Specializes In Equipment Extracting Magnetic Materials

A new business opened in San Rafael is Erie Manufacturing Co., which has taken offices at 53 Jordan Street.

The company is headquartered in Erie, Pa. It manufactures and sells products and equipment to extract unwanted magnetic materials from liquids, foods (such as grain) and other bulk products. It also fabricates magnetic lifting devices and special equipment for use in the mining industry.

The local office is under the management of Edward Twitchell, who has taken a home in San Anselmo. This is the district sales office for Northern California and Nevada.

UNIT NUMBER FIVE of the Marin Oaks Development Co. at Marin Golf and Country Club Estates is moving along swiftly. Vice president and project manager Stanley Nelson reports that 10 homes of the 60-home project are under construction. Even more homes are sold and the company has not had a chance to complete model dwellings for display.

This should be accomplished within another month and homes will be decorated by interior decorator Anthony Pereira. Meanwhile houses in various stages of construction can be inspected. There are one and two-story homes with three, four and five bedrooms and three baths, family rooms, separate dining and breakfast rooms and tiled kitchens with double gas ovens. Lots are flat and have a minimum of 10,000 square feet. There is a seven-acre greenbelt in the subdivision.

Tract office is at Ignacio Boulevard and Country Club Drive. James A. Mayer, vice president and promotional and sales manager for Marin Oaks and Cal-Wide, Inc., real estate, is in charge.

"MAMA AND PAPA" markets are on the rise in Marin, as elsewhere. The three most active chains all have long range plans for continued expansion in this area. It is said that Seven-11 plans 11 more stores, Short Stop plans seven — and Stop and Go isn't saying just how many.

Usually located in areas where larger markets fear to tread, they make their big bid as "convenience stores" — particularly in early morning and late at night. Hours are long for franchise holders — from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. and some couples find they cannot stand the strain. However, most store sites are carefully selected and hard workers are usually well rewarded.

GALLERY III, at the Marin Co.-Op Center, Corte Madera, in association with San Francisco Graphics, Ltd., a group of Bay Area artists and printers who produce graphic works in limited editions, is now showing the selection of prints for September and October. Handprinted graphic originals are being made available at a discount on a membership basis.

THOMAS A. SKORNIA of Ross has moved his law offices in San Francisco from the Russ Building to 611 Mills Building, 220 Montgomery Street.

SAN RAFAEL BUILDING designer Edward Hageman of Hageman-Thomas-Eklund, Inc., was elected first vice president of the American Institute of Building Design for the 1968-69 term at this group's recent annual meeting in San Francisco.

FORMER MARINITE Henry F. Luehring, now president of Sierra National Bank, headquartered in Petaluma, has received a diploma from Pacific Coast Banking School in Seattle after completing a three-year course in advanced banking subjects.

FORMER SAN RAFAEL resident William J. Nichols has joined Lincoln Liberty Life Insurance Co. as a salesman and is now associated with the Wayne Thompson and Associates agency in San Antonio, Texas.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Amateurs Request Investment Advice

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We are rank amateurs who bought 100 shares each of Lehigh Industries, Livingston Oil and Imperial Corp. We thought these would be good long-term investments to hold seven months to a year. Would you help us? — R. P.

A. I would first point out that although seven months qualifies as "long-term" in income tax parlance, in the stock market it generally indicates several years. For rank amateurs you have chosen three interesting issues, assuming of course you can afford to speculate and are willing to exercise patience.

Lehigh merits retention on several counts: It has a $23 million tax loss carry forward, one-third of its shares are closely held, acquisitions are aggressively pursued and the shares are highly leveraged. The sizable dilution factor — 39 per cent — would reduce estimated 1968 earnings of $1.40 to $1.10 a share.

Livingston Oil is an attractive speculation on the basis of its interest in CATV, through two subsidiaries. Projections of the potential CATV market range from 10 to 50 million homes. At present only 5 per cent of the nation's 59 million TV homes are subscribers, leaving a large untapped market.

Your third selection moved up sharply following a favorable ruling on its interstate bank holdings. Earnings, which in 1966 and 1967 were under pressure from reduced borrowing, more than doubled year-to-year in the first half. With higher interest rates now unlikely, full-year earnings should be much improved.

Q. I was left a large block of Employers Group Associates. I know little about the industry and find the stock difficult to follow. Should I switch to blue chips? — A. H.

A. Employers has an excellent record which is being extended into 1968 results. Quotations are available in most large metropolitan daily newspapers in the insurance section of the O-T-C market. Since you are uncomfortable with this holding I suggest switching all but 100 shares into equal dollar amounts of Allied Chemical, Duquesne Light and American Tobacco.

★ QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ★ ON SELLING YOUR HOME

Q. Will a leaky faucet or a torn screen discourage a buyer?

A. If the buyer notices these things it certainly will. Leaky faucets can mean faulty plumbing to a prospective buyer and a torn and unrepaired screen can indicate that you have failed in properly maintaining your home.

If you are considering selling your present home, be sure to enlist the services of a qualified Realtor such as WILLIAM TIMMER. Our knowledge of the market and years of experience will assure you of a successful sale.

Nevada Polls, Bars Were Open

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — For the first time in 104 years, since Nevada became a state, bars and liquor stores were open during voting hours.

Sheriff's deputies arrested three persons for drunkenness in Clark County and a fourth was jailed in Las Vegas. None of the incidents involved the election Tuesday.

There were no reported complaints of unruliness at the polls because of liquor.

Innocent Plea

Ray C. Rayborn, 34, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of forgery July 13 in Sausalito. Preliminary hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Judicial Merit Plan Due Study

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Ronald Reagan's "merit plan" for selection of judges will again come under legislative scrutiny next month.

A joint meeting on the subject by the Assembly Judiciary Committee, chairmanned by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, and the Assembly Committee on Constitutional Amendments has been set for Oct. 8 in San Diego.

Bagley's committee held the bill at the end of the legislative session to give it more study, the chairman reported.

Will Car Passengers Need Crash Helmets?

VAN DELLEN

H. P. Writes: "Head injuries are the aftermath of many accidents. I know all about seat belts and shoulder harnesses, but wouldn't a crash helmet be worthwhile?"

Crash helmets may be next on the list of requirements for auto passengers. My new car has seven sets of seat and shoulder belts and at the moment, there is no room for helmets. But since the risk of driving is greater than working on a hazardous job, why not wear every available safety aid?

WE UNDERSTAND that there is a modern fedora-style helmet with an adjustable band that is easily converted into a chin strap. I suppose this is the only way we can protect ourselves from the increasing highway slaughter.

In the future, the Sunday driver, his wife and children may spend an hour getting dressed and being strapped in the car for a spin.

Congress may force us to wear armor like the knight of old or perhaps require the get-up of a major league catcher or professional football player.

"DO X-RAY treatments of the chest have any ill effects on the heart? A friend of mine had a cancerous tumor behind the heart that could not be removed.

Several X-ray treatments reduced the size of the lesion, but we were told that the radiation damaged the outer lining of the organ. Is this possible?"

Yes, but it is not common. Complications are most likely to occur when the tumors are close to the heart and the cardiac structure cannot be protected from the X-rays with a lead shield.

RADIATION IS life-saving and the possible damage to the thin-walled sac surrounding the heart (pericardium) is of secondary importance. The full effects of irradiation may not be evident for months after therapy is discontinued.

Remedies are available for such complications. Unfortunately, many persons requiring dressed and being strapped in may spend an hour getting ill and succumb to the original disease long before heart damage is evident.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

REACTS TO IODINE

M. D. writes: Why is it that when I apply a dab of iodine on a scratch, my eyes water as if I had peeled several onions?

REPLY

This may represent a reaction to iodine. Some individuals start crying when they smell oil of wintergreen, camphor, or other volatile substances.

RIB WON'T REGROW

Mr. H. H. W. writes: Recently, during an operation for hiatus hernia, a rib had to be completely removed. Will this structure ever grow back? If it doesn't, will I miss it?

REPLY

No, to both questions. And, don't expect to wake up some morning with an Eve sitting at your side.

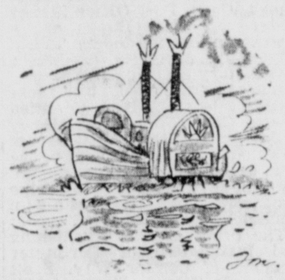
LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

How The Court Meets Changes



We may think that only our generation is living through a time of change, but a look at the history of our Supreme Court will show that it has always had to cope with the new in our nation. How does the U.S. Supreme Court handle change?

Let's step back away from today's troubles, and take a look, for example, at steamboats in New York harbor in 1787. When the thirteen states ratified the Constitution, there were no steamboats in the world. So the Constitution said nothing about steamboats, any more than it spoke of jet planes or space rockets. But the states traded among themselves, and the Constitution said Congress could regulate trade.

In 1807 Fulton floated his steamboat. The New York legislature gave him and his partner Livingston the sole right to run steamboats in New York waters. After a time other people, such as Cornelius Vanderbilt, got into the steamboat business. Vanderbilt, not one to let people push him around, ran steam ferries from Elizabeth, New Jersey, to New York City. But when they crossed the Jersey line, New York tried to stop them. A big fight followed.

The New York courts ordered Vanderbilt to stay out of its waters. He in turn got court order against the "Livingston" in New Jersey.

Finally, in 1824 the U.S. Supreme Court saw that there was no law in New York harbor. Although the Constitution said nothing about steamboats, it did cover "interstate commerce." Congress could regulate commerce between such states as New York and New Jersey. Since the New York legislature is not Congress, it could not regulate steamboats from other states. The Court ended the New York steamboat monopoly then and there.

From the beginning we have had to solve the problems of enormous change withing the framework of our Constitution.

In technology alone we have had revolutions in communications, transportation, farming, and city life. By legislation and court interpretation we have thus far met most of the problems presented by an old Constitution and new developments.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Youth Arraigned On Robbery Charge

Steven E. Bigelow, 18, of 444 Oakdale Avenue, Corte Madera, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of robbery.

Bigelow was arrested by Corte Madera police after a gas station robbery Saturday in which a man snatched two $20 bills from the attendant. Bigelow was to plead to the charge today.

Burglaries Are Charged To Boys

Three Novato boys aged 12, 11 and 8 were booked into Juvenile Hall Monday after admitting a burglary spree in Northern Marin.

Sheriff's deputies said the trio admitted a series of thefts during the past four weeks, capped by a $65 burglary of a liquor store on Redwood Highway Monday.

The boys said they stole a record player in San Marin, two women's rings from a San Marin house, three rings from a Novato house, coins and rings from another Novato residence, and clothing, a watch and $21 in cash from clothing in Novato High School locker room.

NATO Failed, Pravda Says

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda charged today that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was trying to change the status quo in Europe but failed in Czechoslovakia just as it had in Hungary in 1956.

The Communist party newspaper maintained that NATO "turned out to be incapable of carrying through its subversive actions" in Czechoslovakia because of the entry of Soviet bloc troops.

The paper said NATO has "not given up its plans and is hastening to adjust to the new situation."

Fired Teacher Files Suit To Be Rehired

Elizabeth Blodgett, Redwood High School physical education teacher fired last May because she was overweight, has filed suit in Marin Superior Court for a writ to set aside the decision and order her rehired for the 1968-69 school year.

Miss Blodgett's attorney, Leonard E. Bjorklund, filed the petition for a writ of mandate on grounds the decision not to rehire her was only because of her excess weight and that "as a matter of law this 'cause' does not relate solely to the welfare of the schools and the pupils."

In a report to the court accompanying the petition, Bjorklund charged that Donald Kreps, principal of Redwood High School, "made a foolish administrative decision."

Labor Declines To Back Unruh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh, a Democrat, has lost the re-election endorsement of the California AFL-CIO Council on Political Education COPE.

About 500 delegates to COPE's convention, in a long debate yesterday at the Hilton Motel, gave the "no endorsement tag" to Unruh and three of his Democratic allies in the Assembly—Robert Moretti and Mike Cullen of Los Angeles and Walter Powers of Sacramento.

State AFL-CIO chief Thomas L. Pitts said the four have blocked AFL-CIO proposals to improve unemployment insurance.

Social Security Applications By Telephone

Marin residents may now apply for Social Security benefits by telephoning the San Rafael Social Security district office, according to Sally Anderson, district manager.

Applications for retirement, disability, survivors' or Medicare benefits will be filled out by claims representatives interviewing telephone applicants, she said. Paperwork will be completed except for the applicant's signature.

The district office is listed in the Marin County telephone book under U.S. Government, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

If applicants prefer to visit the office at 1245 Fourth Street, Miss Anderson suggested they phone first to determine what documents or other evidence they should bring with them.

GENEVA W. BERRY
Resigns

Mrs. Berry Resigns As TB Director

Geneva W. Berry, executive director of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association for eight years, has resigned her post effective Sept. 1, association president Edward W. Bullard, announced yesterday.

Her resignation was necessitated, Bullard said, by the transfer of her husband, James, a department store executive, to a new post in Fresno. The family home was in Corte Madera.

A new executive is expected to be named within two weeks, Bullard said.

Although Mrs. Berry has been on leave of absence since October, 1967, she retained the post and was available to the staff for advice until the resignation became effective. She resigned on learning her husband had been permanently transferred.

Mrs. Helane Anderson, acting executive director during Mrs. Berry's absence has been convalescing since undergoing orthopedic surgery in May. She is expected to return to staff later this year.

Sex Series Vetoed

SAN MATEO (UPI) — The San Mateo County Board of Education voted yesterday against use of the controversial sex education television series, "Time of Your Live," in the first semester this year.

A Rafferty Statement Attacked

Mrs. Lee Sherry of Fairfax, Northern California co-chairman of Californians for Cranston, today gave the lie to a statement yesterday by State Supt. Max Rafferty denying that Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel protested advertisements Rafferty used against him in the Republican senatorial primary campaign.

Mrs. Sherry, former Republican Central Committee vice-chairman, quoted a telegram sent to news Media last May 31 by William F. Peters, legal counsel for Citizens to re-elect Kuchel.

Saying, "we hereby formally notify you that certain advertising materials of Friends of Rafferty contains intentionally false information," it pointed specifically to "one statement maliciously and falsely alleging that Senator Kuchel voted to give tax dollars to Red China for steel mills."

The telegram warned that "any use of this statement can be the subject of legal action."

"It is obvious that Superintendent Rafferty feels that he can justify one lie by another," said Mrs. Sherry.

She said she had deserted the Republican ranks to support Cranston for the Senate against Rafferty because "I do not want a liar as my United States senator."

Shooting Case Hearing Set

FRESNO (UPI) — The fifth District Court of Appeal here has announced it will hear oral arguments Oct. 15 in the case of an Air Force captain accused of fatally shooting a companion while deer hunting.

Capt. Donald McKee, Castle Air Force Base, has been charged with manslaughter in the Nov. 12, 1967, shooting of Lt. Ronald Haren in Mariposa County.

Mariposa County Dist. Atty. Dean Lauritzen had appealed a Superior Court ruling that McKee be charged with manslaughter.

Lauritzen had asked that the suspect be held on a murder charge instead.

McKee has been released without bail with a guarantee from the Air Force that he will be available for trial whenever required.

'STUDENTS THE SAME'

Alumna Heads Dominican

By BARBARA HOSMER

"The campus has changed in numbers and buildings, but the students are essentially the same," Dominican College's new president remarked, summing up the years between the days she was an undergraduate on the San Rafael campus and the opening this week of the school which she now heads.

As we sat in her Guzman Hall office Sister Mary Samuel Conlan, O.P., smiled at the next question — had she any inkling then that she would someday head the college herself?

"Who could have had any way to foretell that," she said quickly.

Speaking about the students on the campus today, Sister Samuel said that they are really no different from other years, "though they like to think they're different. There have always been generation gaps, but they're not so great as people tend to think."

SISTER SAMUEL is no newcomer to the field of education, either as student or instructor. A native San Franciscan whose uncle, Dr. Louis Conlan, heads City College of San Francisco, she attended public schools, was graduated from St. Rose Academy, majored in English at Dominican, and earned her secondary teaching credential there, some 20 years ago. She did her student teaching at San Rafael High School.

Sister Samuel took a master's degree at Catholic University of America in Washington D. C., also in English, and taught at the Dominican Upper School from 1952 to 1957. Sister Samuel taught English at the college for three years.

In 1963 she again became a student herself and received a Ph. D from Stanford University, "also in English," she said, laughing. With her doctorate in hand she returned to Dominican College as an assistant professor and dean of students. A year ago she became academic dean, and when Sister Mary Patrick, O.P., retired from her post as president after 23 years, Sister Samuel became Dominican College's fifth president.

Young, quick of step and keen-minded, Sister Samuel is enthusiastic about the relevance of the curriculum to today's problems.

"Our black studies program is new this year, and there is an emphasis on current problems in several new courses," she said.

Dominican College will offer such courses as American Protest and Reform Movements, a comparative literature course on 20th Century novels emphasizing conformity and revolt which will be team taught, and a course on Society and Power. A course on The Black Voice in American Literature was begun last year.

"We recently instituted a pass or fail policy for some courses so that they may be used as enrichment outside the student's major," Sister Samuel explained.

"A SUBURBAN CAMPUS can seem remote to urban problems," she said. "It is up to educators to prepare the students to do their share in working to solve them."

She emphasized that Dominican College girls are encouraged to participate in the community — both in Marin and the urban Bay Area. For instance, she pointed out, Robin Skewes-Cox' political science class will participate in the local campaign work this year, and also serve as interns at the Marin Civic Center. Sociology department students will be doing field work also, and the girls from Dominican have been very active in volunteer work in Marin on their own time.

"About a third or fourth of the student body is engaged in local volunteer work," the president pointed out.

OF COURSE THE main emphasis of the college's curriculum in on the humanities — but even this came about at the request of students, Sister Samuel explained.

"Students in the Thirties decided that what had been their extra-curricular interests should be included in the curriculum. These interest then came into the general humanities curriculum. So even then courses were student-initiated here," she said.

"We also want to emphasize that our girls are not just being trained to become suburban ladies — of course we hope that they will always be ladies," Sister said with a smile, "but many of the girls who graduate go on to work in the Peace Corps in other countries, and one from last year's class is teaching in Watts," she said.

Dominican College is well known for its attraction to foreign students, and last year girls from 18 foreign countries studied on the San Rafael campus.

"Our alumnae travel and talk about their college to the people they meet, and also many foreign girls going abroad seek a small college which can help them adjust to studies and life here."

Dominican College is especially noted for its teacher training program, and is closely tied with the Marin schools through sending its student teachers into schools here, and providing graduate level education courses after school for Marin's teachers.

TODAY DOMINICAN, the oldest Catholic college for women in the state, founded in 1890, is meeting a new need — that of the Marin housewife who wishes to return to college for single courses or to complete a degree.

As a small college — 500 undergraduate and 300 graduate students — Dominican can offer individual evaluation of a person's academic record, Sister Samuel pointed out. There are about 10 students to each faculty

Libya Ambassador Is Guest In Marin

By MOLLY MARIN

American ambassador to Libya, David Newsom, and his wife, Jean, and family were guests over the weekend at the home of Jean's brother, Deputy Coroner Keith Craig and Mrs. Craig in Novato. Ambassador Newsom has been in the diplomatic corps for many years and both he and his wife are from the East Bay.

Their two oldest sons will attend the University of California this year. John will be a senior and Danny, who attended the university in Stuttgart, Germany last year, will be a sophomore. Mrs. Newsom left this week for Tripoli where she will enroll the three younger children in the public schools, Katy, 11, Nancy, 9, and David Jr., 6 years old. Ambassador Newsom, who was appointed in 1965 by President Lyndon B. Johnson, will join his wife in Tripoli following a month's stay in Washington, D.C.

The Craigs have two daughters, Laura, 18, and Susan, 12, who enjoyed entertaining their cousins. Mrs. Craig said the younger Newsom children particularly enjoyed television as they only have one channel in Libya.

MRS. JOHN KOENIG is home in Sausalito after a three weeks' trip to Canada. En route she visited her daughters, Mrs. Robert Deardorf, in Seattle, Wash., before going on to Victoria and Prince Rupert. The day she flew home from Vancouver, she said, was the only day it didn't rain during the entire time.

A GROUP of friends from Sausalito went to Menlo Park Saturday to attend the wedding of Cara Lee Williams, granddaughter of Mrs. Frank B. Williams of Sausalito.

Cara, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Williams of Menlo Park, became the bride of Donald Paul Taylor of Seattle in a 1:30 p.m. ceremony at the Church of the Nativity in Menlo Park. Afterward a reception was held at the Sharon Heights Golf and Country Club.

The couple met at Seattle University, where Cara completed her sophomore year and her husband was recently graduated. He had been accepted at Harvard University but was called for military duty and will be with the U.S. Army at San Antonio, Tex.

Kathleen Ellen Finn To Be Bride In Spring

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Finn of Hanford, formerly of San Rafael, announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Ellen, to Robert Matheu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolfo Matheu of Asuncion, Paraguay.

Kathleen, who is the sister of Mrs. John G. Hilger of Ewa Beach, Hawaii, was graduated from Terra Linda High Schol and is in her junior year at the University of California at Davis.

Robert attended schools in Louisiana. He is with the Navy stationed aboard the USS Preston in Vietnam. Eric Matheu is his brother.

KATHLEEN FINN

MRS. HERMAN J. MIDDELKOOP, wife of a medical missionary to Biafra, speaks at a press conference in New York urging the increased airlifts of food to the African nation. She and her husband are in the United States to talk to the American people about stemming the tide of starvation in Biafra, where more than 6,000 children die each day, mostly from malnutrition.

Forecast For Food Prices To Inch Up

NEW YORK (UPI)—You notice the trend when a can of tomatoes goes up from 19 to 21 cents, when the box of frozen peas and onions is marked 33 instead of the 31 you were paying six months ago, when the pound of ground chuck is 69 cents instead of 65.

And you certainly notice it as each week the total at the market checkout counter is just a little more on much the same items as you bought three or six months ago.

WHAT'S HAPPENING is that food prices are inching up, and will for the rest of 1968.

It's all because of the old law of supply and demand—supplies of farm products are about the same or slightly lower for the rest of the year than they were last.

With the population up about 1.5 per cent, this means per capita supplies will be slightly lower and overall farm prices perhaps three to five per cent higher.

Put on the increased cost too of merchandising foods—getting them from farm to table—and the result is a predicted 2.5 per cent price rise by election time.

For all of 1968, food retail prices will average 3.5 per cent to four above 1967.

Even so, Christensen said, the line on food prices has been held better than on the total cost of living. Prices on food consumed at home have gone up less since 1957-59 than the index of prices on other major expenditures covered in the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reports. Food at home is up 15 per cent above the 1957-59 index; all other items are up 19.9.

Biafran Assistance Urged By Missionary Wife

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "At a moment like this, I wish I were a Biafran woman," said tall, blonde Cor (short for Cornelia) Middelkoop, blinking her blue eyes in the battery of television lights.

"Biafran women have such composure and speak so well for their cause. We Dutch women are not used to speaking in public," she said at a press conference at the Hotel Hilton in New York.

Unaccustomed though she claims to be speaking publicly, Cor is credited by friends with rather impressive results of her public and private utterances in the Biafran cause in the few weeks since she came out of the beleaguered land.

THERE IS, FOR instance, the Dutch arms embargo of Nigeria, and a one-shot Dutch television appeal that netted more than three million dollars for Biafran relief.

To hear her tell it, she simply "talked to the Dutch people," some of whom happened to be members of Parliament She claims no credit for the action that followed.

She also "talked to the Dutch people" on television, describing the ravages of starvation in blockaded Biafra and the efforts of the Red Cross, UNICEF, Caritas and Protestant churches affiliated with the World Council of Churches, to diminish the suffering.

"We are refugees too," she said, identifying with the two to four million Biafrans who have fled from secessionist territory taken by Federal Nigerian forces. "We were bombed out of Eja Memorial Hospital at Itigidi in February."

He husband, Dr. Herman J. Middelkoop, a medical missionary of the Netherlands Reformed Church in the service of the Presbyterian Church of Biafra, was then asked by the Christian Council of Biafra to coordinate all Protestant relief efforts in the country.

COR AND HER HUSBAND came here at the invitation of Church World Service, overseas relief agency of United States Protestant churches, to "talk to the American people" about stemming the tide of starvation in Biafra, where more than 6,000 children die each day.

"It can be stemmed, and the tide can be reversed, if sufficient food can be brought in," she insisted. "Every morsel of food that comes through, and every drop of medicine, is responsibly distributed, I know. I've driven that car with food and medicine to refugee camps."

She pointed to a blowup of a station wagon surrounded by Biafran children with the matchstick legs and arms and bloated abdomens of advanced malnutrition. Memories of such children haunt her and contort her face with sorrow.

"When we drove into a camp, they would come out to the car to see my children," she said.

IT WAS TO evacuate her own children, aged 6, 10 and 12, at the urging of the International Red Cross, that she came out of Biafra. The children will remain with friends in Holland when she goes back.

"In Holland I saw mothers going to the beaches with their healthy, happy children. And I knew that only 10 hours away, long lines of Biafran mothers were carrying their children, weak and almost dead from starvation, to our clinics and hospitals," she said.

Cor considers greatly stepped-up night airlifts from the island of Sao Tome, where food has been stockpiled, the only answer to increased food for blockaded Biafra. Scandinavian, Swedish and German Protestant churches are now chartering six planes each flying two shuttles nightly, in addition to Caritas flights, she said.

"Yes, of course it's dangerous, and of course they get shot at; the Nigerians have sophisticated radar equipment." It's the way she flew out and the way she will fly back in.

SHE THINKS BIAFRA, now completely surrounded by federal forces, is right in rejecting the idea of an overland route for relief supplies; it would be an open invitation to invasion by the enemy, whereas an airstrip under international control is easy to oversee.

The conflict would end at once if the British stopped arming the federal forces, she believes. Cor knows many Britishers who have been protesting to their government, without avail. "It's their Vietnam."

In answer to the argument that a British withdrawal of support from Nigeria would leave a vacuum, Cor quotes a Biafran: "It's as if the Germans had said, 'If we don't build gas ovens, the English will.' "

Cor remembers wryly that six years ago she and her husband could have gone to Cameroon; they chose Nigeria instead as a quiet place to work and rear their children.

BUT ACTUALLY THEY wouldn't have had it any other way. Working in the Eastern Region, they developed great affection and respect for the peoples who seceded to form Biafra after the Ibo massacres of 1966.

"What many persons overlook is that only eight or nine million Biafrans are Ibo," she said. "From two to three million are Efik, Ibibio and Ijay, and another million are from smaller groups. Top offices in the Biafran government are held by men from these various groups."

Staying on with Biafrans to face the shelling and bombing after Europeans in the business community fled in June of 1967, missionaries finally escaped the stigma of white and rich that had set them apart, according to Cor.

"The color was obvious, and because we had money to build schools and hospitals, they thought we were rich.

"But since we chose to stay and face the fire, we are accepted as brothers," she said happily.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Love For Father Overcomes All Obstacles But Brings Questions

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 14-year-old Puerto Rican girl. We live in Harlem. I wish we didn't.

I love my Papa, but he doesn't seem to love us. Every time he hits the number or gets paid he comes home drunk and starts cussing at everyone. One time he threatened me with a knife, for some money, but I got it away from him.

My sister can't stand him. My Mama wants to put him out. But I don't want him to go because if he goes he won't have anywhere to live. I don't want to go against him because he's my Papa, a person I should look up to.

Right now he doesn't have a job. Sometimes he frightens me. He might be taking dope because he always has to borrow so much money and he acts strangely.

When he comes home drunk he lays on the bed begging for water. My sister or Mama don't give it to him and tell me not to. But I give him water. He's my Papa. I pray every night that God will make him someone someday. Can you help?

— CONFUSED GIRL

DEAR GIRL:

If you'll send me your name and address, honey, I'll see to it your prayers are heard down here on earth too. We may not transform your father — that takes prayers on his part — but I can put you in touch with an agency which will make life more livable for you and your family. Please write — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I was going steady last year with the girl of my dreams. She said she didn't want my ring — that going together and knowing how we felt about each other was enough.

Then I heard that she'd told another guy the same thing. After a little research I found I was sharing my steady with three other fellows.

Am I unhappy? Heck no! I called it quits and am having the time of my life, dating the girls who don't have hang-ups about keeping a guy out of circulation. We play the field.

If I'm not too late, enclosed is a dime and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for one of your S.O.S. (Stamp Out Steadying) buttons.

— 18 and HAVING FUN

DEAR HELEN:

Friday night I stayed out past our town's curfew and a policeman took me in and called my parents. The worst part was I was necking with my boyfriend on a dead-end street and the car we were in was stolen and involved in a hit-and-run. I didn't know this, but I couldn't make my parents or the police believe that.

Since this wasn't the first time I had disobeyed the curfew and a few other things, my father ended up paying a fine of $250 for not watching me.

He was fit to be tied. He yelled at me and slapped my face when I told him to "Shut the Hell up!" When we got home, he drubbed my bottom resoundingly and long with a bedroom slipper. Helen, I never got a spanking before in my whole life.

My boyfriend and I are thinking of running away to another state to get married. That would fix my father. He's got a lot of money and I can't see how $250 would hurt him.

— NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR N.N.P.

You'd fix yourself, but good, if you ran away with a thief. (Or did your boyfriend just "borrow" the hot car from a friend?)

As for fixing your father: He might say, "Good riddance."

Too bad the judge didn't sentence you both to compulsory family counseling for six months. — H.

We're eating better for less, for we can buy three times as much food for an hour of work today as in 1916, the year that the self-service idea was introduced and the trend should continue, for wages have been rising more rapidly than food prices even in recent years.

Last year, per capita expenditures of food amounted to $484, up $92 from 1960. But the spending as a percentage of disposable income declined to 17.5 per cent. And the percentage continues downward.

AMERICANS are eating less, in terms of pounds, than they once did, now about 1,450 pounds per year.

But there nas been a drastic change in the type and quality of food eaten. Red meat consumption per person has increased from less than 130 pounds before World War II to more than 174 pounds in 1967. In this same period, poultry consumption went up 28 pounds, from 17 to 45 pounds per person.

Fruit and vegetable consumption, except potatoes, has climbed dramatically. With less consumption of foods for work energy and warmth, carbohydrates and starchy foods as a whole have decreased.

THE RISING standard of living and modern processing also have spurred the sales of convenience foods, which now account for 10 to 15 per cent of grocery store sales.

Workshop Director To Give First Of Opera Previews

member on the campus and classes average from 15 to 30 students each. Two-thirds of the faculty are lay teachers.

"We don't want to grow beyond the point of meeting a student's individual needs," Sister Samuel said.

"Housewives coming back to college can start with one course to get into the swim of campus life again here," she said. Last year some 52 part-time undergraduates were enrolled, many of them women whose children were at ages that allowed their mothers to continue college, and most studying toward degrees or teaching credentials.

"IT'S A REAL value for the girls to have an association with these older women who are making sacrifices to return to college. It inspires them to stay on and finish their education while they have the opportunity . . . not to drop out and become airline stewardesses," Sister Samuel ended wryly.

"Fifty per cent of last year's class went on to graduate school, and our own degree program is successful beyond capacity," she said. But, the president pointed out, while it's less economical to run that way, Dominican College hopes never to grow beyond the point where it can give each student special and individual attention.

"That's its contribution to the diversity of higher education," she said.

Unisex: Look Alike In Dress

Located in Greenwich Village, Experiment One emphasizes the look-alike in dress, which has been sweeping the European fashion scene. The shop, co-directed by Margo Bersin and Lou Powell, aims for the 16 to 25 year old set. The owners say the trend toward dressing alike has not resulted in diverting today's youth from traditional boy-girl relationships. Couples take delight in wearing complementary clothes; it seems to be a way of telling the world that they're together.

Fundamental Digest Issued For Use By Baby Sitters

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — For many youngsters, going back to school means returning also to baby-sitting jobs.

It is estimated that more than one million teen-agers earn spending money during the winter on assignments as sitters.

If you are among the million, are you prepared for the responsibilities involved? Do you know what parents and children expect of you?

TO HELP PROSPECTIVE sitters, the Council on Family Health has prepared a digest of fundamentals. The council is a non-profit organization, sponsored as a public service by the drug industry, to promote health and home safety.

Here are the council's guidelines:

When you accept a baby-sitting job, let your parents know the name of the family, address and telephone number, and when they may expect you home.

ARRANGE IN ADVANCE for the children's father to see you home or for your own parents to pick you up.

Know that your primary-responsibility is to look after your charge or charges. You are not there on a lark.

Be sure the parents write down the address and telephone number where they can be reached, as well as the name and telephone number of the family doctor and a friend or neighbor.

Jot down the names of the children and any pertinent instructions about clothing, sleeping, eating, playing, bathing. Ask about any problems and certain habits that may present difficulties. Ask about priviliges permitted to the children and to the sitter.

CHECK THE HOME for possible accident causes. Keep the children out of the kitchen. There are too many things that can cause accidental injury: cleaning agents and household chemicals stored in low cupboards, knives and other cutting or mixing tools, electrical appliances and cords and controls on the stove.

Matches and lighters should be removed from surfaces within reach of children. Put them in drawers or on a high shelf.

Any medicine that has been left within reach of the children should be put into the medicine cabinet, or removed to a high shelf in the closet.

INFORM THE PARENTS when they return of what you have done.

Keep your charges where you can watch them at all times. Small children should not be allowed to go to the bathroom and close the door. They sometimes lock themselves inside.

Basement doors should be kept closed and preferably locked. So should the front and back doors of the house. Keep children away from windows.

Do not open the door to anyone except the parents. This is as much for your safety as for the children's.

Try not to use the telephone. If you must call, make it brief.

BE WORTHY of the trust placed in you. Tell the parents of anything wrong that may have happened. A baby who has had a fall may need medical attention.

Be prepared, says the council, and baby-sitting can be fun and profitable.

Yvonne and her husband, a foreman electrician, have lived in Marin 13 years. They have four children: Sherry, Don and twins, Jack and Jill.

She is active in several knitting and sewing clubs and with her husband is a co-ordinator of St. Raphael's parish. She has also held offices at St. Peter and Paul's in San Francisco and is a member of the Archidiocesan Council of Catholic Women and Parish Council of St. Raphael's and was president of St. Raphael's Mothers' Guild.

Camera Records Prelude, Finale To Copter Tragedy

DEATH MINUTES AWAY — Mike McKenna, an employee at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Los Angeles, buckles himself into his harness, prior to being lifted yesterday by the ill-fated helicopter to the church's steeple.

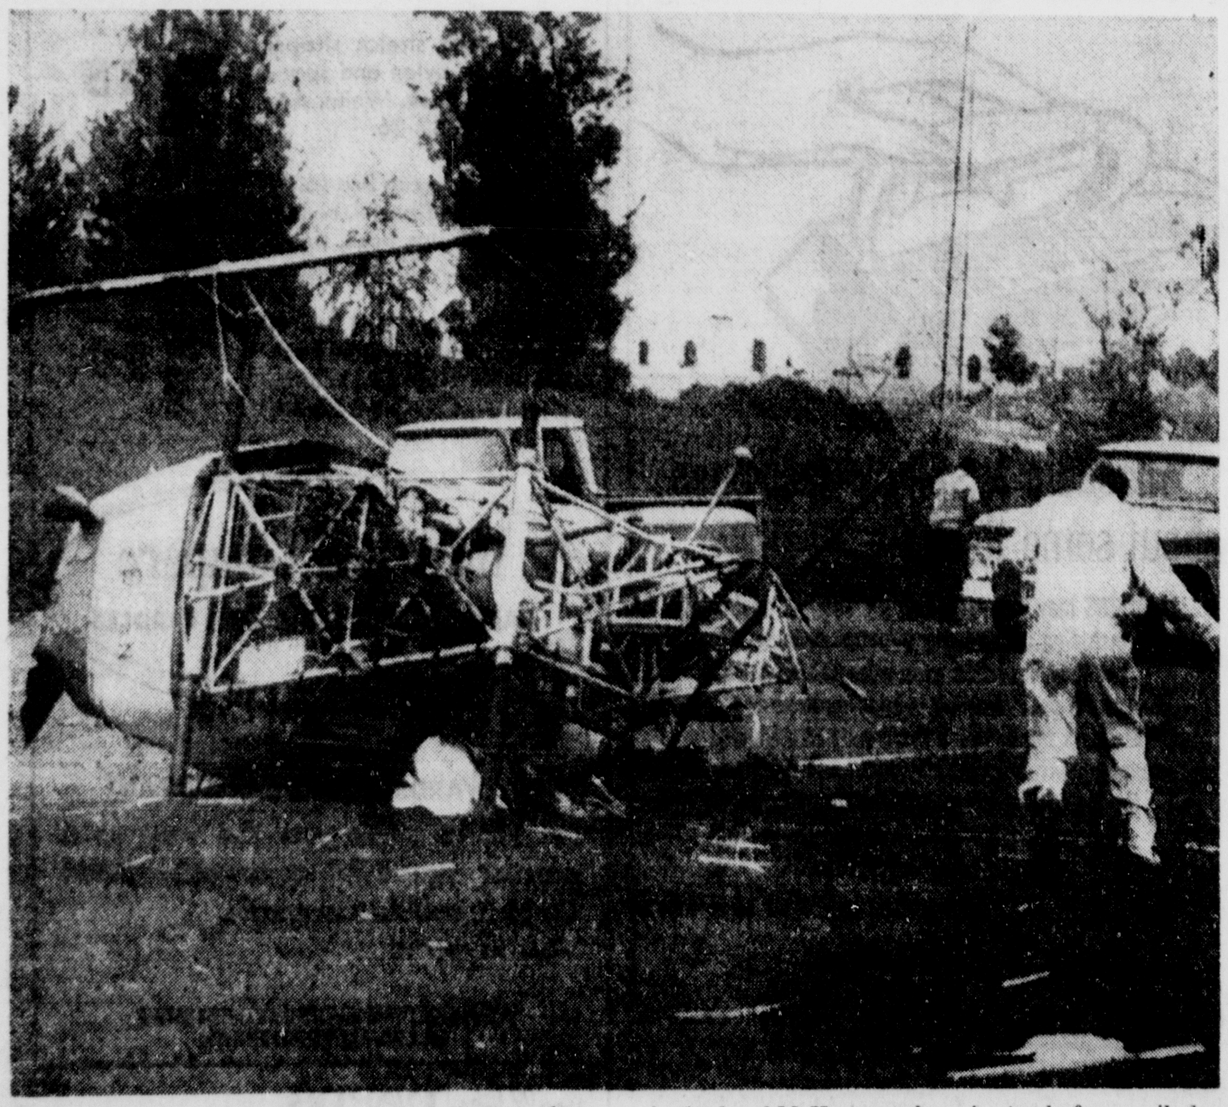
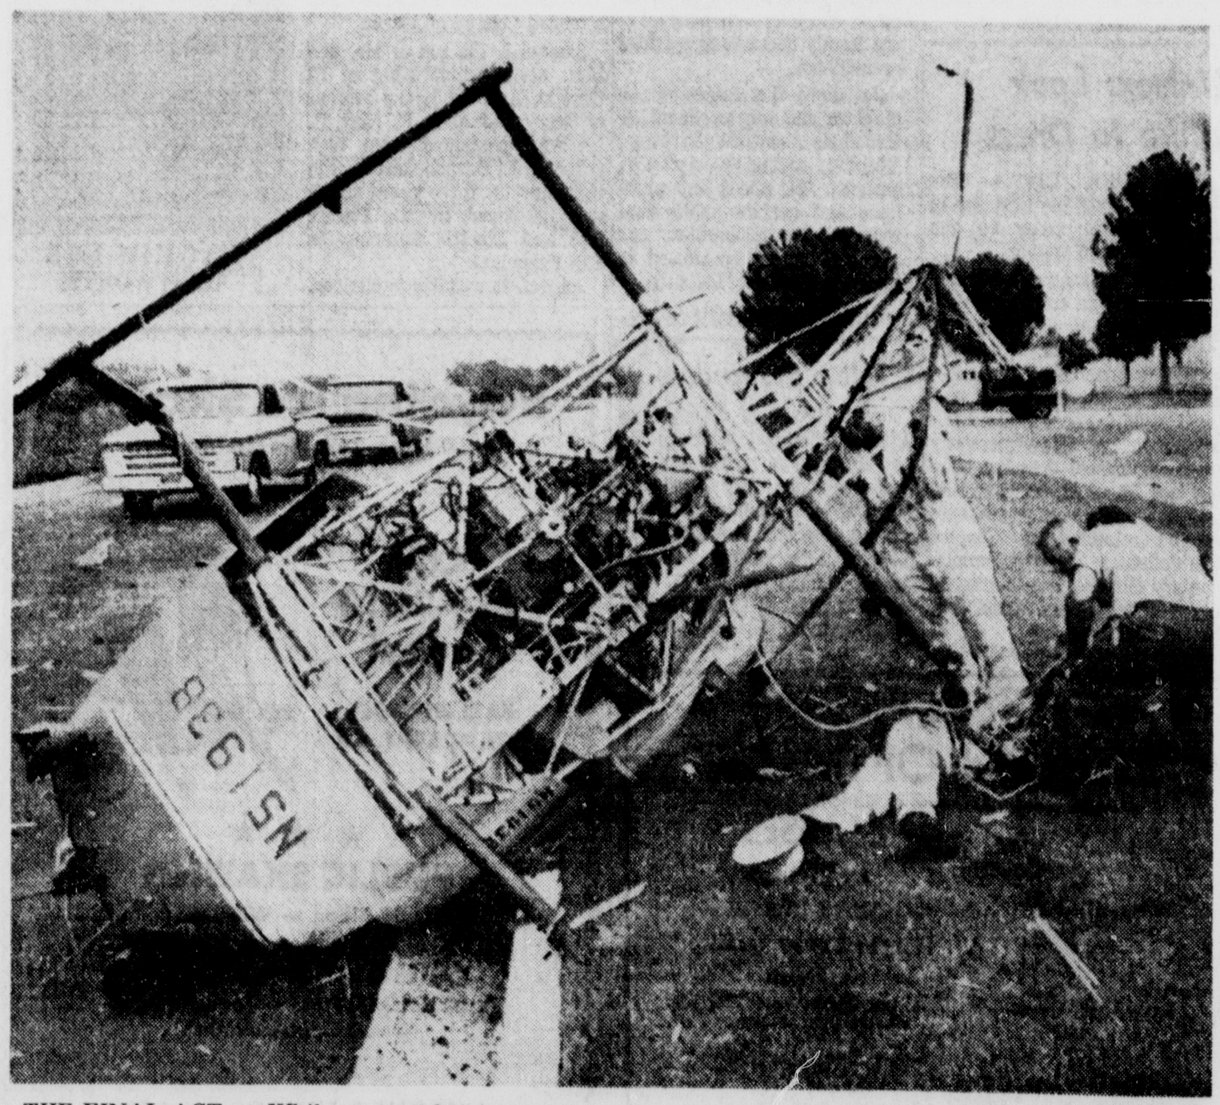
PRELUDE TO DISASTER — While McKenna clings desperately to the church spire Walter Atherton, copter pilot, tried to disengage the workman's ropes tangled in the weathervane.

PLUNGE TO EARTH — McKenna on the right side of the out-of-control helicopter follows Atherton in the fatal plunge to the cemetery grounds.

INTO CAR — With his line still attached, McKenna crashes into the side of a parked car. The copter then bounced into the air dragging McKenna with it and throwing the pilot clear.



ENTANGLED IN WRECK — A fellow worker rushes to the crashed copter in attempt to free the body of McKenna, who minutes before smiled for the camera as he attached his rigging for his skyward ride.



THE FINAL ACT — While one worker attempts to lift part of the small wrecked copter from McKenna, two other witnesses to the tragedy assist him. The pilot, who was thrown clear in the 80-foot plunge, was also killed instantly. (AP Wirephotos)

FROLIC BATTLE — Dancers Raymond Wade and Blondelle Breed depict a frolic battle in "Afro-Apache," a selection from the Duncan Co. Ballet Afro-Haiti which will be performed at the Manzanita Center at 8:30 p.m., Sept. 13 and 14.

Plenty Of Applicants For Low Rent Homes

Marin's leased housing program, aimed at helping low income families without segregating them from the community, has far more applicants than it can handle, Neil B. Little, manager of the housing authority program, said today.

Currently, there are 36 or 37 units being leased and there is a waiting list of more than 135 applicants, he said in a discussion on KTIM'S "Sounding board" program.

Under the program, the housing authority leases houses and apartments from private owners for rents ranging from $80-$175 a month and then subleases them to low income families for less, he explained.

The difference is made up by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development which has authorized a total of 200 such units in the county. There is no cost to the county or to any of the four cities participating — Mill Valley, Sausalito, Novato and Tiburon, he said.

Little noted that leases frequently are negotiated for units currently being rented by low-income persons so they may stay in familiar surroundings.

Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Co-Ordinating Council and another member of the panel, said this is especially important for elderly persons.

"The old people don't want to move for $20 or $30 a month. They would rather eat beans . . . or nothing the last few days of the month."

Novato Mayor Harley A. McAskill reported his city is satisfied with the program. He said the only initial concern was concentration of this type of housing in one area.

McAskill said the city council solved the problem by defining 10 geographical areas where the units could go and limiting to five the number of units in each area.

San Rafael Councilman John A. Miskimen reported his city has welcomed the program and final details are expected to be worked out at the Sept. 16 meeting.

He said some San Rafael councilmen think residency requirements should be longer than the one year stipulated by other cities and others believe the program in San Rafael should concentrate on senior citizens.

However, he agreed with McAskill and Ryken that the program should be totally open.

He said the council's differences of opinion on some points, the recent illness of City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen and a thorough investigation of the program had delayed San Rafael's entrance.

In response to questions from the listening audience, Little said the program is totally integrated, with all applications handled on a basis of need through the San Rafael housing authority office at 530 Third Street. Applications may be made in the Marin City office, and they are forwarded to the main office.

He said tenants pay for moving, if a move is necessary, but noted there are ways to get help if needed, through teen clubs and other organizations.

Another listener wondered if pet restrictions were the same as for other housing authority units. Little said there is a lease provision stipulating no pets, but added, "We think kids ought to have a pet."

Responding to another questioner, Little said. "We won't put anyone out on the street" if income increases beyond limitations.

The radio program will be repeated by tape at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Bank Holdup Suspect Is Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — One of three men suspected in a daring City Island bank robbery and motorboat getaway was arrested in Puerto Rico early today and his 21-year-old girl friend was picked up here, police said.

The girl, an airline ticket agent, was seized in her Bronx apartment with some $3,000 of the bank robbery loot, police said.

The loot from the Tuesday holdup of a Manufacturers Hanover Trust branch originally was estimated at up to $70,000 but later fixed at about $37,000.

Police said Vincent Lynch, the man who was photographed by a hidden bank camera, wearing a ski mask, was arrested in San Juan.

The girl, Carol McKeever, allegedly told police she had lived with Lynch for five months and had picked up Lynch and two other men after they landed the motorboat in which they made their escape after the robbery.

British Theatrical Troupe Due Tuesday

By ALAN JONES
(Gary Tischler is on vacation)

School isn't the only thing that opens in September. The fall ushers in a new season for the performing arts in the Bay Area.

A British theater company, the Theater Royal Windsor, will pop into San Francisco Tuesday for its United States premiere at the Geary Theater.

The Windsor company will open with "The Beaux' Stratagem" at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, present Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband" at 2 and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, and perform Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Across the bay, the Woodminster Theater in Joaquin Miller Park, Oakland, will present "The Sound of Music," for a three-weekend run that closes Woodminster's summer season. Performances will be at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday.

Another opening is Count Basie's big band, starting a nine-day stand tonight at Basin Street West in San Francisco. Basie will be in the city through Sept. 14.

An opening of a different sort is an exhibit of contemporary Vietnamese art which will be shown starting tomorrow at the San Francisco Civic Center Library. The exhibit will move to Oakland's City Hall Wednesday through Sept. 13. The exhibit is a project of the Marine Reserve Civilian Assistance Program aimed at introducing Americans to Viet art.

The remaining San Francisco theater scene is unchanged. "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," continues at the Little Fox; "The Fantasticks" at Ghirardelli Square, "Your Own Thing" at the Marines' Memorial Theater, and The Committee in its cubicle at 622 Broadway.

The San Francisco Mime Troupe will present "The Farce of Patelin" free at noon tomorrow in Aquatic Park, San Francisco.

The California Players will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday at the California Playhouse, Foothill and 35th Avenue, Oakland.

In Saratoga, the King Dodo Players present "A Wife for Sundays" at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday at 12378 Sunnyvale-Saratoga Highway.

Patrolman Aids Pair Stranded Minus Clothes

"You're not going to believe it, but I'm naked," a Novato man called to Officer L. Thomas last night as he approached the patrol car.

Officer Thomas, responding to an anonymous call that there were two naked men in a field in back of San Andreas Drive at San Carlos Drive, took one look and knew that he had found one of them.

The man, identified as Robert Lund Hoilien, 18, of 239 San Felipe Way, told Thomas he and Robert Bruce Davios, 20, of 80 Laurie Court, and two other men were examining new construction in the area.

He said he and Davios took off their clothes to explore a large drainage pipe and when they crawled out their companions and clothes were gone.

There was no formal complaint, so Thomas did not arrest anyone.

Negroes Enter Mobile Schools

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Doors to many formerly all-white schools in Mobile were opened to Negro pupils for the first time today as the 1968-69 school year began operations under court ordered integration plans.

The Mobile County public school system is the largest in Alabama with approximately 45,000 white pupils and about 30,000 Negro pupils.

A U.S. District Court ruling, made earlier this summer, insures that several thousand Negro pupils will attend formerly white schools. A total of 692 Negroes attended predominantly white school last term, records show.

Motorcycle Crash

Steven John Roll, 15, of 107 California Avenue, Tamalpais Valley, was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for an injured left leg after his motorcycle ran into a ditch on Homestead Boulevard, Homestead Valley, at 5:30 p.m.

Sonoma State Students To Grade Profs

Sonoma State College students will be turning the tables this fall and "grading" professors and courses by publishing a student evaluation of the faculty.

"Questionnaires were distributed in all classes last spring and included questions concerning the professor's ability to teach, lecturing techniques, fairness of examinations and outside reading materials.

Also critiqued were the substance of the course, and ratings of textbooks.

According to George Couch, publications commissioner from San Rafael, the professors have been very cooperative with the project and appreciate the opportunity to know how the students rate their classes.

Couch said he saw no possibility that any professor's class would be generally avoided by students influenced by a bad rating. "If such a situation were to develop where a professor or class was being boycotted, the Academic Senate, made up of faculty, would be called in," the former College of Marin student said.

Hoping to enlarge the publication in future years, it will be distributed free with costs defrayed through the sale of advertising.

Priests Seek Mediation On Birth Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-one Roman Catholic priests, claiming a right to their own ideas on birth control, are asking the National Council of Catholic Bishops to step into the priests' dispute with Washington's Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle.

A leader of the dissident priests, the Washington Priests Association, said last night a petition is being sent to the Council of Bishops asking it to set up a special board to mediate the dispute which already has led to suspension of one priest.

MOVES OUT

The suspended priest is Rev. T. Joseph O'Donoghue who moved out of his Northwest Washington rectory quarters yesterday, meeting a deadline set by Cardinal O'Boyle.

The cardinal suspended Father O'Donoghue for citing in a sermon the words of some Catholic theologians who disagreed with Pope Paul VI's encyclical banning all forms of artificial birth control.

Cardinal O'Boyle told a news conference this week that the encyclical is the authoritative teaching of the church and must be followed by priests who deal with birth control, even though the encyclical is not necessarily infallible.

UPHOLDS PAPACY

The cardinal contended that "an attack on authority" is behind the priests' rebellion.

He has given the priests until Sept. 14 to retract their statements or face punishment. He has not said what punishments might be assessed. But under church law penalties can range from withdrawal of specific privileges, such as saying mass to suspension from a parish church.

Seale, Wife To Stand Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Black Panther leader Bobby Seale and his wife must stand trial on firearms charges, the state Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

Seale's attorneys attempted to get an order forbidding the Alameda Superior Court from continuing the trial but the high tribunal rejected the motion without comment.

Wait-See Situation Prevails In Berkeley

BERKELEY (UPI) — Teams of police maintained an uneasy calm on streets near the University of California while young radicals maneuvered today to challenge emergency crowd control measures.

Leaders of a New Left coalition were granted the use of a school auditorium for a meeting tonight to "discuss various tactics."

The education board agreed to allow the young activists use of the building. The move sidestepped a "get tough" stand against loitering and public gatherings handed down Monday by City Mgr. William C. Hanley after a weekend of sporadic gunfire, explosions and vandalism.

As they have since Monday night, three and four-man police patrols on foot and in autos kept tight control on street activities in an eight-square block section around Telegraph Avenue.

Five persons were arrested yesterday on charges including drunkenness and petty theft to bring to 75 the number picked up since early last Saturday, when police resorted to using tear gas and "pepper gas" to disperse a defiant crowd of about 800.

A split in the ranks of the young dissidents has emerged, however, over past tactics.

"We're going to get all segments of the radical movement together to discuss various tactics," he said.

Members of other more militant organizations were calling for a march on city hall following the meeting. The Progressive Labor Party and Students for a Democratic Society passed out leaflets urging the unauthorized march as a means of "breaking the ban" against public gatherings.

Congress Canceled

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — The International Association for Internal Medicine has canceled its 10th international congress Sept. 10-14 in Warsaw because of Poland's participation in the occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Compromise Reported Near On Redwood National Park

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some progress was reported yesterday in efforts by House and Senate conferees to hammer out a bill authorizing a Redwood National Park in Northern California.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Interior Committee, said "chances are excellent" that work will be completed on the measure today.

The conferees met in closed session yesterday, but no details were announced. However, both Jackson and Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., of the House Interior Committee, reported "progress."

The conference committee is seeking a compromise between the Senate bill authorizing a 66,000-acre park and a House measure which calls for a park less than half that size.

The House members apparently were more flexible in their stand than they might have been under other circumstances. When the House bill was hastily approved by the interior committee, Aspinall said the final version would be "written in conference."

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., chief sponsor of the Senate measure, said "enormous" progress was made yesterday and that he was "hopeful" a good compromise would be reached.

Reagan Seeks Signs On Property Taxes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan was on the verge today of calling a special legislative session to act on the political ticklish topic of property tax relief.

But he needs some sign of approval from the lawmakers first, a sign he probably won't get before next week if at all.

The Republican governor, who returned from a vacation Sunday afternoon, has been meeting with GOP legislative leaders to discuss possible candidates for special action.

The Legislature convenes Monday for its second veto session —a special period designated at no more than five days by a 1966 constitutional amendment for the lawmakers to overturn any gubernatorial vetoes.

With both houses organized by the Democrats, there are certain to be some major efforts to overturn Reagan's vetoes. But the chance of success is practically nil.

It takes a two-thirds vote of both houses to pass a bill over a governor's veto. The Democrats control the Assebly 42-38 and the Senate in a 20-20 deadlock. Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, a Republican, could cast a tie-breaking vote in the upper house.

Under the constitution, Reagan also can call the lawmakers into a special session to consider any subjects he thinks are too urgent to wait until next year.

In an election year, this gives Reagan an automatic upper hand going into the session because he can establish the areas of discussion. He already has announced that he will call special sessions to allow boosts in workmens' compensation and disability payments.

William P. Clark Jr., the governor's executive secretary, told a newsman that Reagan will call a special session on property tax reform if the lawmakers show any signs of agreement in advance.

He said the governor "very definitely" would like to call the special session. Reagan established property tax reform as his No. 1 priority last January.

Reagan met Tuesday with Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, GOP floor leader, and yesterday with Assemblyman John G. Veneman, chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee and author of Reagan's regular session property tax relief legislation.

There have been suggestions that the state simply pickup the tab for some school spending as one method of granting property tax relief. Reagan apparently objects to this plan.

The administration's proposal passed the Assembly last summer but stalled in the Senate where it ran into major opposition from Sen. George Miller Jr., Finance Committee chairman.

Asian Influenza May Return

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A new strain of Asian influenza may mean an extensive outbreak in the United States this fall and winter, according to the Public Health Service Advisory Committee.

The committee said there is no specific vaccine available for the new strain, called "A2—Hong Kong—68."

The announcement of the possibility of a new outbreak came yesterday, as the committee revised the more cheerful earlier report of July.

Voter Registration Locations Are Told

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin will register voters at the following places this week and next: at Northgate Emporium, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; Saturday, the Marin City Market, from 12:30 to 3 p.m.; Tuesday, the Western California Telephone Co., in Novato from 2:30 to 5 p.m., and Wednesday, Northgate Emporium, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Thursday is the deadline for registration to vote in the Nov. 5 general election.

Caltech's Bug Wins The Great Electric Race

It took the California Institute of Technology's 10-year-old "Voltswagen" bus 10 days to get from Pasadena to Cambridge — a day and a half longer than it took a rival car from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to cover the distance in the opposite direction — but on the basis of adjusted time the Caltech car was the winner by half an hour.

TOW TIME

The MIT entry, a converted Chevrolet Corvair, was penalized 37½ hours — the time it took to tow it 450 miles. The Corvair was towed across the finish line in Pasadena Monday night.

Caltech's car was not towed at all.

The race was intended to demonstrate the abilities of smog-free electric cars. The teams traveled 3,490 miles, using 53 recharging stations about 60 miles apart to reactivate their batteries.

The Caltech car has already been challenged to another cross-country run by the San Diego Gas and Electric Co., which will race a car powered by natural gas.

NOT PRACTICAL

Wally Rippel, 23, of Hollywood, who begins graduate study at Cornell University this fall, told reporters electric cars are not yet practical because no "adequate battery" has been developed.

The lead-cobalt batteries now in use cannot be depended on for more than 60 miles in hilly country or at high speeds.

"But we've learned a great deal about engineering problems in electric vehicles," the tall, dark-haired organizer of the project said.

"Of course, we still believe we can build a car to compete with the Detroit monsters. But a battery or fuel system is needed to solve the air pollution problem in the cities."

BAD MOMENT

The worst moment, said Rippel, came when he burned out the Voltswagen's $850 motor on a hill near Seligman, Ariz.

A substitute motor was flown out by the manufacturer, Electric Fuel Propulsion of Ferndale, Mich., but the Caltech car was delayed for more than a day.

Caltech was delayed again near the finish when equipment at a charging station near Worcester, Mass., proved too powerful and the students had to use a portable generator they brought with them.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Organization Explosion Outstrips Birth Rate

We are hearing some hopeful word lately that the birth rate is declining (thanks, we suppose, to the Pill) and the predicted population explosion may not, after all, find us all living elbow to elbow a couple generations hence. But at least in Marin, we see no respite from the organization explosion.

Name a field of interest, a particular narrow interest, a hobby, or what-have-you, and Marin has not one organization for it, but generally several. And the number is steadily increasing.

TAKE TRANSPORTATION for example. We have, of course, the county board of supervisors concerned with this. And we have the Marin County Transit District. But we also have the Tripartite Transportation Committee, the Marin Citizens Transportation Study Committee, and — as of last week — the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee . . . Have we missed a few? Probably.

It's the same story no matter what field you choose. Juvenile delinquency, besides being the concern of the juvenile court, the county probation department, police departments, churches and schools, is looked after from various directions by the Juvenile Court Auxiliary, the Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission, the Marin County Juvenile Justice Commission — not to mention Catholic Social Service, Switchboard Marin, Youth for Action, Southern Marin Boys Club, etc., etc., almost ad infinitum.

IT'S HARD TO KEEP them all straight. There's a tendency, even on the newspaper where we become more familiar than most with such things, to confuse the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board with the Marin Mental Health Foundation, or the Conservation League with the Conservation Council.

In the health field, of course, we have the full gamut of national organizations from the Tuberculosis Association (now Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases Association, as it wants to expand its field) to the Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

There are hobby clubs ranging from coin and stamp clubs to the Horseless Carriage Club of America, San Rafael Chapter, and the Marin Recorder Society.

Of course, there are all the standard service organizations such as Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, et al, and the women's groups ranging from the League of Women Voters to the Sunnyhills Guilds.

THERE'S SCARCELY a corner that does not have its improvement club or homeowners' club, and sometimes they step on each others' toes. And when it comes to the arts — well, Mill Valley alone has the Mill Valley Art Commission, the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, and the Mill Valley Fall Arts Association.

Surely, Marin must be the most over-organized county in the nation — or even in the world!

EVERY ONE of these organizations is sure that its mission is of over-riding importance to mankind (especially when it wants publicity in the newspaper). But somehow, we get the idea that with so many organizations, a lot of them must just be taking in each other's washing.

Something ought to done about the organization birth rate . . . Suppose the board of supervisors would create a new commission to look into it?

Bagley's Public Records Act Result Of Work, Collaboration

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Signing of AB 1381 by Gov. Ronald Reagan last week marks another step in the continuing battle to allow the public to be informed as to what its government is doing.

The measure was authored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, and is to the public's right to know the content of governmment documents as the Ralph M. Brown Act is to the public's right to attend public meetings of local government.

Known as the California Public Records Act, it states as a fundamental policy of government: "Access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business is a fundamental and necessary right of every citizen of the state."

SUCH AN ACT on the statute books of California guarantees the right of a citizen to access to information which hitherto has been kept in confidential governmental files, usually because government officials were unwilling to share the business of government with the people, or disliked having the public find out how that business was being conducted.

Certain records are exempted in the bill from disclosure, as would be expected when a new measure comes on the scene.

These exemptions include records involving public litigation, where the interest of the public would be damaged by disclosure; personnel and medical files which would invade privacy; trade secrets which if public knowledge would deprive business of competitive advantage; data relating to oil and mineral findings, and several others which are discretionary.

PASSAGE and signing of this far-reaching measure was not won easily, or without lengthy and hard-working discussion on the part of those who were interested in protecting the public's right to know.

Bagley has said several times that the measure emanated from an idea presented in an "Affairs of State" column, published throughout California several years ago.

Subsequently, an advisory committee was appointed to work out the details of the new public records act.

This committee consisted of representatives from the State Bar of California, the attorney general, the California Newspaper Publishers Association, the State Freedom of Information Committee, the American Newspaper Guild, the California Broadcasters Association, the California Association of School Administrators, and the California School Boards Association.

Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic orgainization, was prominently represented on the advisory committee, and in fact, its representatives did much of the spade work in getting the measure in shape for the legislature.

THE MEASURE represents an important step in the battle for the right to know, amplifying the laws relating to accessibility of public records, which were written in 1877 and pertained to the admissability of evidence in judicial proceedings, but did not define public policy.

It almost missed being signed this year, Bagley disclosed, because of the last-minute interference of some state government officials who wanted changes.

Through his untiring activity in securing both passage and signing of the measure, Bagley has performed an outstanding service to the public.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

New Party Urged For Disenfranchised

There are thousands if not millions of deeply disturbed, disgusted, disenchanted Americans both Democrats and Republicans alike everywhere.

Let us not lose heart.

Let us rise up in righteous indignation over the farce that is being perpetrated on us the disenfranchised.

Let us through the use of the vote give the country back to the people — the old — the middle aged — the young.

Let us join together to form a new party with Sen. Eugene McCarthy as President and Mayor John Lindsay as vice president, or,

Let us use the write-in vote.

Let us give tribute to the heroes of the hour, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, Don Peterson of Wisconsin, A. Lowenstein of New York, S. Stern of Washington, D.C., and to a few others who believe in a true democracy.

Let us show the world that this is still a democracy.

Give Up Something For Black People

Referring to your editorial on "Exponents of Anarchy Undisturbed In Marin," (Aug. 27) I would first like to state that my concern is not what is happening in the countries behind the Communist Iron Curtain, but what is happening right here in the racist facist U.S.A. I agree with you completely that the reason there was no violence was because the police did not attack. A good example of what you refer to as only happening behind the Communist Iron Curtain just took place in Chicago. It is our duty to make this a better place for all people and not just say, "Oh well, it could be worse." That is an argument which is still fooling many liberal people, but fortunately not all.

Yes, Stokely said we must look to communism and socialism but he also said capitalism hasn't done a thing for black people, and that he wasn't sure that either one of these systems would automatically end racism. His assertion, "You've got to pick up a gun and be willing to kill," was followed by "It is always easier to die than to kill someone". . .

Eldridge Cleaver, who was chosen by the Peace and Freedom Party as their candidate for President, is obviously not the one who represents the broadest base, but the one who represents the deepest truth. From the deepest truth the broadest base will follow.

It is apparent that somebody has to give up something to make things more equitable. From where we sit it couldn't possibly be black people. As Kathleen Cleaver puts it, "We own nothing. We control nothing. Anything we destroy is theirs." Like it or not that's a fact . . .

So the burden of what is going to happen does not lie with the Eldridge Cleavers, Huey Newtons, Stokely Carmichaels, etc. The burden is with us, White America. How about you starting things off here in Marin County with an affirmation of all power to the people and Black Power to black people? After all you reach all the people with your daily I-J.

Godino Praised By Fellow Lawyer

The tenor of your editorial, "School Districts Need Own Legal Advisors," is either that Asst. County Counsel Richard Godino is underpaid or that he should be replaced by private counsel. If you mean the former alternative then I agree with your editorial; if you mean the latter, then you are not only incorrect, which is pardonable, but snide, which is reprehensible.

Richard Godino in particular as well as all the county counsel's office serves this county well. As an attoreny, I might at times disagree with an opinion of that office, but I at all times respect the legal ability of its members.

The innuendo of your editorial its that county school districts could receive better legal advice by retaining counsel other than Mr. Godino. I doubt that you received a lawyer's opinion before you wrote that editorial. If there is one department of county government that serves Marin County in an exemplary manner it is the county counsel's office, and Richard Godino helps to make that statement true.

ROBERT BENNETT McCREADIE
San Rafael

(Editor's note: Reader McCreadie should re-read the editorial. Far from criticizing Richard V. Godino, it pointed out that he is the sole resource for 23 school districts for legal advice, although each of the 11 cities in Marin has a city attorney, who attends council meetings, for such purpose. As the editorial said, "There is a limit to what one lawyer in the Civic Center can do." Neither the amount paid the assistant county cousel nor his competence can change that.)

Accident Shows Leash Law Need

This afternoon I witnessed the terrible suffering of a collie dog, injured by a car, as it was being picked up by a Humane Society ambulance.

I wish that all dog lovers (?) who oppose leash laws could have been there to see one horrible result of letting a loved pet run the streets alone.

It is hard to understand why some dog owners do not feel the same love for their animals that these faithful pets feel for their masters.

Gun Ordinance Fairly Presented

Congratulations and, as you say, a bouquet to County Council James J. Maloney for writing a measure to appear on the No. 5 ballot which reads, "Shall the ordinance requiring the regisration of all firearms in the unincorporated area of Marin County be adopted?" He did not try and fool the voters by using the word regulation but stayed with registration, which is what is really is.

Unlike the proposition submitted to the San Francisco voters on Vietnam last year where a "Yes" vote meant "No" and a "No" vote meant "Yes," this measure is written in a language any layman can understand.

Something written as straight as this could well draw the disapproval of his fellow attorneys, some of whose income is derived from trying to interpret just what the attorney legislators really intended.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Johnson Must Now Be Careful About Committing Successor

WASHINGTON — From here on out there is one thing which President Johnson must not do: He must not act so wholly on his own in crucial foreign policy decisions that he overcommits his successor.

It will be the next President who will have to deal with the consequences of whatever initiatives LBJ may legally take during the next few months.

I hasten to make clear that Johnson should not be immobilized in carrying out his clear constitutional responsibilities Far from it. The Constitution gives the President almost unlimited authority in the conduct of foreign policy.

THERE MAY WELL be crises which will compel him to act. He should do so.

There may well be opportunities to do things which the Presidnet clearly should not delay or pass up. He should act.

The dilemma which emerges from this can surely be resolved. It is that in today's turbulent world the President must not be hamstrung even for three months, but he cannot fairly or safely ignore the views of the presidential nominees.

IT SEEMS to me that such steps as these are self-evidently needed:

1. There should be full consultation between LBJ and the nominees prior to any major foreign policy decision.

2. While neither nominee can or should be given a veto over an initiative the President wants to take, they should be given ample time and opportunity so their views can be heard and not lightly rejected. Each should be treated exactly alike, given the same full information, and Johnson should be very sensitive to the fact that, in this matter, he is not dealing with Humphrey as a vice president who has to say, "Yes, Mr. President."

3. Secretary of State Rusk should invite Humphrey and Nixon to name a qualified and trusted foreign policy specialist to represent them in frequent, almost daily, association with the secretary of state.

4. If President Johnson goes abroad for discussions with heads of state, and especially if there is to be a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Kosygin — as is entirely possible — representatives of the presidential nominees should go with him and be allowed to function at a high level.

IF IT WERE practical for the vice president to travel abroad with the President, I would say that both Humphrey and Nixon should accompany Johnson to any U. S.-Soviet summit conference. Since that's impossible, it is obviously important that eminently qualified representatives be chosen.

I am not presuming to suggest who they should be, but each has good men on tap. Prof. Zbigniew Brzezinski, long associated with Columbia University's Research Institute on Communist Affairs, is already a member of Humphrey's staff. A man like Henry Kissinger, a former Rockefeller adviser and one of the nation's best geopoliticians, would be well suited to represent Nixon.

There is ample precedent for a close relationship between the administration and the nominees. In 1944, for example, Tom Dewey named John Foster Dulles to keep intimate contact with Secretary of State Hull when the UN Charter was just beginning to take tentative form.

The need to do this today is greater than ever. It isn't enough for the President just to "brief" the nominees with information available only to the administration.

Lyndon Johnson is President until Jan. 20 and he must function as decisively as events require. But either Humphrey or Nixon is going to inherit everything he does and they deserve to have something to say about what they and the country inherit.

Police In Force Will Be Part Of '68 Campaign

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

There was an aspect of Chicago police tactics during the recent Democratic convention that went almost unnoticed until after the worst of the violence was over.

The police and the Secret Service had picked up reports that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and other prominent Democrats were targets for assassination.

When this story came out after the convention ended, some dismissed it as apologist propaganda from the Daley organization. Perhaps.

What would these same people have said, however, if one of the leading Democrats had been killed by a sniper's bullet or blinded by acid.

WHICH BRINGS to mind something that happened in New York City shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, was making his first trip to Manhattan as chief executive.

When Johnson heard of the elaborate police precautions planned for his visit, he asked that this show of police strength be scaled down drastically.

One of New york's high police officials listened to their complaints then replied:

"Your idea of what constitutes sufficient protection is your own business. But this is my town and I am not going to have him shot in it—I've got one aim and that is to get him in and out of New York City unharmed. Once he leaves here, it is your business again."

There were no more complaints from the Johnson people.

THE ATTITUDE of this New York police executive undoubtedly will be reflected in other American cities this fall as Richard M. Nixon and Humphrey carry their election campaigns to the people.

Demonstrators will be dealt with harshly. Newsmen of necessity must be close to a candidate when he is exposed to the public, and they, too, will feel the impact of police concern.

The enormous press parties traveling with each candidate will come in for more police muscle than local news personnel for the simple reason that most political travel parties are rather loose with their credentials and the police know it.

Republican and Democratic campaign planners could do a lot to improve this situation by devising truly distinctive credentials and being intelligently tight-fisted about who gets them.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Men are never so good or so bad as their opinions. — James Mackintosh.

The days of palmy prosperity are not those most favorable to the display of public virtue or the influence of wise and good men. In hard, doubtful, unprosperous and dangerous times, the disinterested and patriotic find their way, by a species of public instinct, unopposed, joyfully welcomed, to the control of affairs. — Edward Everett.

Would Mail Smell Like Tacos When Postmarked San Anselmo?

Is San Anselmo doomed to have mail that smells like tacos?

This unlikely prospect may come about if plans now in the offing for the old Safeway building on San Anselmo Avenue make it through the design review board, planning commission and city council.

Preliminary plans have come before the design review board but no approval has been granted yet, since the board wants more details and some landscaping plans. In the meantime, Mayor Duane C. Ragan expressed skepticism at the last city council meeting.

"WE DON'T WANT to end up with either a Mexican post office or a restaurant that looks like a post office," the mayor expounded.

The unlikely combination of a south-of-the-border dinery and a new postal facility, said the mayor, had better come out looking presentable or the city won't approve the plans.

Under the new policies of the postal department, the post office won't be built by the federal government but will be leased from a private owner, a situation becoming increasingly common.

The Post Office Department, however, presents specifications to such builders, which must be met before leases are signed.

The mayor and rest of the San Anselmo council indicated they are eager for the old building to be refurbished and occupied, but are setting high standards.

SPEAKING OF PLANS and proposals, there is talk in Larkspur of large scale developments under way for the 26-acre Tiscornia property.

Tiscornia is not a name that has been synonymous with beauty or even compliance with regulations, but maybe things have changed.

The parcel in question, which is between the old Value World store (soon to be opened as a Disco branch) and the Safeway on Bon Air Road, is sitting drying out in the sun awaiting some kind of action.

Spoils from the dredging of Corte Madera Creek have brought the land almost up to development level, but the drying mud is something of an eyesore.

The rumors of what is to built on the property are many.

ZONED COMMERCIALLY, the land could be used in various ways, including a shopping center, clusters of shops, or even apartments if use permits were obtained.

Dan Coleman is doing plans for the Tiscornia heirs, but nothing has been unveiled yet. The word is that shops of some kind are planned, but whether a regional center like Northgate is contemplated or a Carmel-type arrangement has not been announced.

It is also rumored that much landscaping and water access are planned.

Coleman has many good plans to his credit and was hired earlier this year to bail out the "dream town" of Reston, Va., a job for which he will undoubtedly receive national recognition if he makes a success of it.

The other factor boding well for the project is that financing certainly should be no problem for the heirs to the multi-million-dollar Tiscornia fortune. A well planned shopping area on the land could be a real asset to Larkspur, not only financially, but esthetically.

Cancer Society Meeting Set

The Marin County branch of the American Cancer Society will hold its annual public meeting Wednesday evening at the Meadow Club in Fairfax.

The meeting will include election of a new board of directors and a speech by Dr. Frederick Ludwig, professor of pathology at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco who is engaged in leukemia research.

Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling the cancer society office in San Rafael.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Long Hot Year Ahead; Students, Faculty Militant

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The long hot school year is beginning.

That it will be a long hot school year is predicted from all sides. Militancy of assorted kinds will make it so.

The unrest tht swept college campuses last spring has been merely interrupted by the summer vacation. And it is being forecast that it may be more violent this fall, because of deep disillusionment of students who tried their hands as political activists in the presidential campaign and failed to get what they wanted.

THERE ARE predictions within the profession that this year's campus protests will be aimed at the teaching faculty as well as the administration. Last year's student revolutionists got some of the rule changes they wanted as administrations at college after college caved in before their threats and violence. Now they are expected to go after changes in the curriculum by similar methods.

In last year's campus uprisings, some faculty members participated along with the students. And these same faculty members may be quite willing to help direct this year's demonstrations against their fellow teachers.

College teachers know — and the militant students will soon catch on, if they haven't already — that the decision-making power of presidents, provosts and deans is very limited. The faculty largely determines what will be taught and how. And there are politically minded young faculty members who are perfectly willing to ally themselves with students to get it changed their way.

STUDENT STRIKES probably won't extend much below the college level. But in the high schools and elementary schools, a long hot school year looms because faculty militancy is high there, too.

The American Federation of Teachers and the National Education Association are on collision course in a power struggle in which school boards and administrators are caught in the middle.

Albert Shansky, who headed the walkout of New York City teachers last year, is the newly elected president of the AFT. He makes no secret of plans for a nationwide show of muscle including teacher strikes. His aim is for his AFL-CIO union to take over the NEA. He predicts it will do so within two years.

As for the NEA, its executive secretary, Sam M. Lambert, at its annual convention this summer in Dallas called last spring's state wide teacher walkout in Florida "one of the biggest show-and-tell domonstrations in the history of education." He called for more such demonstrations of "teacher power."

The American Association of School Administrators, to which superintendents, etc., belong, is one of 33 NEA affiliates. But militancy against administrators was widely discussed at the Dallas convention. There was a strong move to cut the tie between NEA and AASA. A compromise resolution was passed after several other NEA affiliates that include principals and supervisors threatened to walk out if the AASA were cast adrift. But the tie was left exceedingly loose.

NEITHER NEA nor AFT is limiting its demands to salaries and working conditions. Both want a bigger voice in deciding what courses will be offered and how they will be taught. Both want teachers instead of administrators to decide how to deal with students — this being an excellent ploy for high school teachers, especially, to get their students on their side.

In California, the Winton Act gives teachers by law a voice in "all matters relating to the definition of educational objectives, the determination of the content of courses and curricula, the selection of textbooks, and other aspects of the instructional program." So they have the law on their side.

Most California teachers belong to the California Teachers Association, an NEA affiliate. But the AFT has been making considerable inroads on CTA membership in recent years. The CTA, although it has moved slowly toward endorsing teacher strikes, is forced by the inter-union strife into the kind of militancy that was expressed at the NEA convention by buttons on the lapels of Florida teachers who staged that statewide walkout.

The buttons were in the shape of oranges (Florida oranges, of course — but they could be California oranges). In bright green letters on each was the message:

"Sock it to'em, teach! (We did.)"

FALL FASHIONS 1968

Independent Journal

San Rafael, California, Thursday, September 5, 1968

'I LIKE YOUR NEW SHOES'

Golden Girls To Set Jewel Mood

Costume jewelry is the mood music for fall's mood-making gals who pick and switch their fashion images to express their individuality, their multi-faceted personalities, says the Jewelry Industry Council. But clearly, all of them want to be golden girls for '68. They go for the brightworks of polished, shiny gold, beaten and textured gold with a myriad of finishes and a costly, handcrafted look.

THEY'RE CHAIN-GANG enthusiasts, hoisting the big, bold, gold and heavy chains in long ropes up to 36 inches; dangling pendants for an antique barbarian, Far Eastern and African milieu that might be labeled the 'his and her' look. For those 'thousand-and-one-nights' girls there are the midriff covering belts with their wealth of golden chains and real-looking stones. Belts come on strong and chained, narrow to wide and middling; in gold and silver, alone or together; with wood and plastic; opulently beaded, tasseled, linked and knotted. They can pull all of Fall's fashion looks together, magnificently. Wrists are chained, too, for modern slave girls who want to be dominated by gold.

The mood colors of costume jewelry are subdued, in jewel tones of enamel, in the multi-tones cut cabochon for Indian flavor, in the "stone on tone" union that brings together sapphire colored stones on sapphire enamel, emerald on emerald, etc.

Pins are in a mellow mood as they look back at the past to become fob pins, tassel shoulder pins, chatelaine pins. They drop anchor on chain necklaces or blaze brilliantly at night with make-believe stones.

EARRING FIND their mood inspiration in button styles with a feeling for the '40s. Importantly large so that they nearly-cover the ear. Fall button earrings extend into abstract designs with lots of gold, loaded with the richness of would-be stones. For evening excitement, the earring drops to chandelier proportions, a hanging, dripping mass of fiery stones. And best of all, pierced ears or otherwise, a Fall femme can have all these important style setters.

Bracelets cast their mood magic when worn by the armful. They impart a heavy feeling designed in gold, brightened up with enamel and saturated with stones. As snake bracelets they twist their way through Fall, adding a liberal dash of East Indian spice.

IN THE MOOD for excitement? Costume rings run circles 'round Fall '68. Two, three or more on a hand is definitely the ultimate in chic. Larger than ever, no taste, no style, no hand has been excluded, to the happiness of every Fall-minded gal. Dome styles predominate: from giant golden balls to light, airy ribbons of gold; from one, huge, many-hued stone to a tangle of colored beads; from a classic cabochon to a basket of seed pearls. For instant atmosphere, for sure-fire spell casting, try rings — ten at a time!

FLOATING BRIDE

Jon Robert's bridal collection is brimming over with tenderly frilled frocks for the bride and her attendants. Miss Vi, bridal consultant at the shop located in Montecito Shopping, reports the empire silhouette is most popular for fall weddings in fabrics of peau de soie, molded crepe, and point d'espirit with alencon lace, seed pearls and luminous beading touches.

Two Wheelers Going Culotte

The most conspicuous things out in the country this fall, next to the autumn leaves themselves, will be the nation's growing army of bicyclists and their bicycles.

If you ask why, the venerable Bicycle Institute of America notes that bike manufacturers have introduced wildly bold new colors to match the national pre-occupation with psychedelic hues and fashions. The shapes of bikes have been changed dramatically, too. And the days of red or black bicycles are gone, man, gone. Would believe fuchsia, beige . . . spearmint? Handlebars, seats and pedals have taken to the psychedelic look, too.

An because some 61 million Americans are pedalling these days, chances are they'll be almost as numerous as the autumn leaves. Fall, with all its fascinations, is fast supplanting summer as the popular season for biking.

PREVIEWING FALL BICYCLE fashions, the Institute forecasts that the old favorite — the culotte — which was developed for bicycling gals, will remain in favor as will the pantsuit. But the culotte has taken on bolder pinstripings, and will be combined with wildly contrasting turtleneck sweaters in both plain colors and polychromatic patterns. The turtleneck will remain popular for both sexes on a fall pedal-in. Cycle togs should be versatile to meet the vicissitudes of fall temperatures, the BIA points out.

Synthetic fabrics and vinyls, manufactured with special dyes that glow, will be a "hippy" fashion choice for bicycling, whether one is a hippy or just wants to be. Some of the New York "pedal set" — and they include a list of celebrities too long to list — already have color-coordinated bikes and bike togs. A final embellishment is an oversized plastic flower attached to their handlebars.

ONE GAL RECENTLY appeared in Central Park on a rainy day wearing a brilliant yellow vinyl raincoat, rainhat, yellow vinyl shoes with cuban heels . . . riding a radiant bicycle she had sprayed with an acrylic yellow paint. Showing from beneath her raincoat were brillant yellow and white polkadot bloomers.

Fashion columnists are still talking about last fall's fashion shocker, when a wealthy dowager from one of the chic apartment houses neighboring Central Park was seen pedaling along on a tandem bike cycling with her chauffeur in the front seat. She was clad in a full-length chinchilla coat.

But the traditionalists will be out in fine numbers pedalling in, too, with their bulky-knit sweaters tucked neatly into the bicycle baskets for a quick bundle-up in the face of Autumn's petulant weather. The "out-west" crowd still prefers the faded denims, and brightly colored nylon windbreakers over turtlenecks. A Western fashion twist is the bright red country handkerchief knotted at the neck, to which has been attached the key to the bicycle padlocks.

BUT WHATEVER OUTFIT the cyclist chooses, he should by all means get out on the open roads this fall when scenery is especially worth looking at. It may be enjoyed better from the seat of a bike, and besides, bike riding is one of the best ways to stay in good physical condition no matter what season of the year, according to Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, author of the best-selling book "Aerobics" and advocate of one of the most effective physical fitness plans ever developed.

Fall cycling trips should be of relatively short duration at first, according to the Bicycle Institute, then gradually increased. If trips of only five to ten miles are attempted initially, in a very short time adults will find they can cover 30-40 miles a day without drawing an extra breath.

FIND A PAL this fall and go exploring down backroads or just through the local park. Fall biking can provide a wonderful way to share outdoor adventure with children. And the day has long since passed when eyes would turn when a senior citizen whizzed by on two wheels.

Variations Show In Turtle Styles

The voice of the turtle continues to be heard in the fashion world. Modifications of the turtleneck, usually a single strip of fabric high around the throat rather than the traditional double folded roll, show through women's fashions for fall and winter. Norman Norell wraps the throat in single folds in sleek jersey tops for daytime suits, carries the theme right on into evening. The high neckline shows off best with Norell's low, wide collars on jackets or coats.

It's No Longer Pink And Blue For The Nursery

Used to be, in the nursery department, it was pink for girls, blue for boys. Then along came maize, appropriate for either sex. Now look for another "neutral" color—"cloud mist," a pale green. It all started when Mrs. Edna Miller, infants wear buyer for a national chain of variety stores, spotted a pair of soft, misty green mittens in a Toronto store. It was time, she decided, that parents and other doting relatives had a chance to break from the traditional infant colors. Why not create infant fashions in the misty color? She went to numerous manufacturers and got them to dye and make up a baby's entire wardrobe in the color in everything from gowns and kimonos to booties to receiving blankets to waterproof pants. "I think," says Mrs. Miller, reporting on reception of the new color, "we have seen the end of the pink and blue tradition."

'Now' Women Gain Dress Freedom In Season Of Varied Costume Look

This is the season for freedom for women to dress as the individuals they want to be. The essence of fashion this season is independence itself.

THE HEMLINE: any length, but still just above the knee for daytime, usually. Midi for evening.

THE COLOR: putty is the hue to have; also deep varieties of red; bitter brown, navy, gray come back big for fall; black and the pale off-whites. Mostly muted.

COSTUME: for daytime the sporty shirt and tie look. Clompy shoes; gaucho trousers or whirly wide skirts.

JACKETS: longer and fitted a la riding jacket or Nehru-flavored.

Collar Rising

Look for the high-rising collar to go into fall and winter on everything from daytime blouses to long dinner dresses. Designers like it like the Mao, or mandarin, or Nehru, whatever you wish to call its flat fold of fabric that hugs the throat. Going right on in female fashions too is the true turtleneck showing most frequently as sheer knit or jersey blouse rising above wide flat collars on suits and coats.

'68 Men's Styles For The Unafraid

Big news this year in men's styles — no longer is the "anonymous look" in for American men. As designer Bill Blass commented, "The clothes are not for the man who's afraid of himself, his reflection in the mirror or the unsolicited opinions of his friends."

TIES — wide and wild.

JACKETS — Nehru style is strong.

JEWELRY — yes. Pendants, etc., even pins.

BELTS — wide.

SLACKS — bright, plaid.

NECKLINE — still turtle in sweaters.

SHOES — the clodhopper square look.

EVENING CLOTHES — tartan jackets and matching trousers, few turtlenecks, but mostly the traditional black ties. Shirts are frilly or fancy silks.

One designer even introduced the handbag for men, but so far it hasn't proved to be a "must" for the well dressed male's wardrobe . . .

TOP IT

Taking this from the top, we have a saucy over-sized beret in jumbo plaid. The bottom, a tenty coat dress with a split personality is in muted plaid, joined by a front closing zipper. The bold patch pockets switch sides for added contrast. A nylon acetate nubby tweed fabric, it comes in gray with copper or orange plaid at Glamour Alley in San Anselmo.

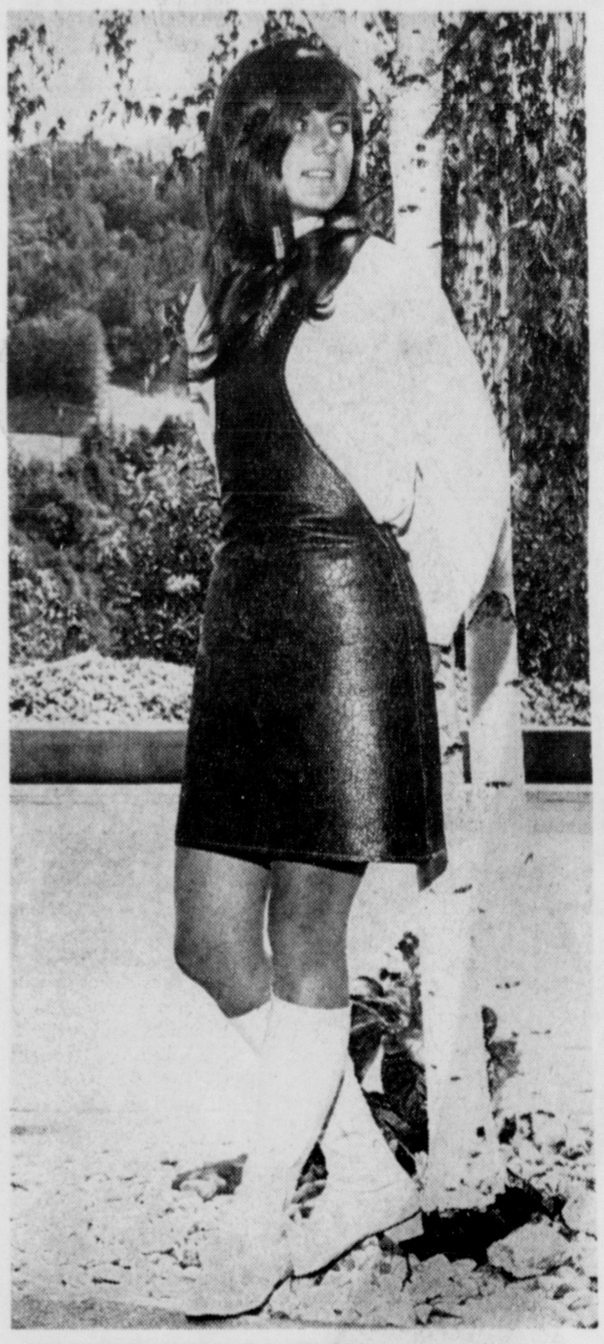
Coed-Model Looks At Campus Style

By JOAN LISETOR

Carolyn Brockbank is a 20-year-old student at the University of California at Santa Cruz. Earlier this year she was one of two students at the university chosen from a field of 40 applicants to appear in the Mademoiselle Magazine college issue.



"PROFESSIONAL MODELING pays well, but it doesn't fit in with my plans or goals," says Carolyn Brockbank. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Reed Brockbank of Kentfield modeled for the college issue of a fashion magazine. Wearing a leather jumper of her own design over a long sleeve silk blouse, Carolyn completes her back-to-school outfit with thigh-high patent leather boots. (Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

In this issue, which appeared on the stands last month, she wears a chunky, scrunchy sweater-vest and skirt reminiscent of the Bonnie and Clyde era. Topped with a beret, the outfit is a flax-colored fisherman knit so deeply textured it looks carved. Carolyn feels it is in keeping with the style girls will be wearing when they return to college campuses in the fall.

Carolyn had no previous modeling experience when she was chosen. While we enjoyed her modeling stint, she has no plans to enter the professional modeling field. Her plans are to complete her education in the humanities field at Santa Cruz and earn a teaching credential with plans to teach the first grade.

The future teacher is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Reed Brockbank of Kentfield. She was born in Washington, D.C., raised in Chicago and moved to Marin County five years ago, where she was graduated in 1966 from Redwood High School.

"I was very impressed at the amount of makeup they used on us for the photographs," Carolyn explains. "They just put normal amounts on us, and I was expecting big gobs. The only difference from what I normally wear was a small amount of dark makeup on the cheek areas to make my cheekbones more prominent."

Carolyn normally wears a modest amount of eye liner and mascara. Her fresh, wholesome looks and five-foot, seven-and-a-half inch, 127 pound frame combine to make her an ideal collegiate model.

She does not consider herself a fashion expert, saying she is usually a year behind the styles but offered suggestions for a back-to-college wardrobe from what she saw behind the scenes during her modeling sessions on the Santa Cruz campus.

Carolyn feels that planning a college wardrobe involves individual and person decisions, choosing clothes that take a minimum amount of care and are just right for the college of your choice. In following fashion, it is wise to remember that somewhat modified versions of high fashion are generally best, with no extremes of color, pattern or silhouette. Ultra-high fashion clothes become outmoded too quickly.

"Leather is what's in for this fall," she says, wearing a calf skin jumper of her own design. "But, oh, those new shoes." She feels the heavy, clunky shoes and boots being shown currently are too much and prefers last year's styles, saying she is just getting used to simple boots.

Red Has Bright Fashion Future

The Real Red is big fashion for all. It is a vibrant, true red.

Swedish Skiwear

New pure-wool ski sweaters and apres-ski wear from Sweden are designed for compliment-catching in any chill weather sports setting. Watch for colorful pulka patterns, deep V-neckline, belts. For a coordinated look, Swedish designer Hans Heitsch teams sweaters with matching vests, knickers, leggings, caps, mittens. For chalet-hopping and fireside fun, there are matching skirts, turtleneck tops and dresses.

"Scarves are big for casual and dressy wear," she says. "They will be peeking out of pockets and purses."

Carolyn feels the purse revolution has subsided and prefers small handbags to those big, awful tote bags of a few years ago.

"Colored hosiery looks cute, especially solid color tights for casual wear, and they certainly last longer than nylons." Carolyn likes patterned hose for dress and feels it finishes a simple, dressy outfit.

Carolyn's ears are pierced, and she prefers stud earrings, believing that the earrings fad has died out. Hats will not be important in the fall, according to the magazine fashion experts she came in contact with. Although she wears a beret in the magazine, she says she hates hats, admitting that she likes them on other people and may change her mind about herself in a few years.

The student-model agrees with most fashion experts that hemlines are important news for fall paradoxically because skirt lengths are not important. Anything goes. Mini, midi or maxi. Carolyn perfers the mini length, especially since those length referred to as mini have been modified and are now a little longer.

Carolyn designs and makes many of her own clothes, but she says, "Mother is the real seamstress in the family." Together they make most of Carolyn's summer clothes and a few fall things but go shopping for most of her back-to-school wardrobe.

A summer job with the Larkspur Parks and Recreation Department has kept Carolyn busy this summer, and she hasn't had time to complete her shopping. She is in the market for femine clothes, preferring tailored dresses and blouses with a few ruffles. Her only complaint about styles of today is, "Women's clothes are becoming too masculine."

CAROLYN BROCKBANK of Kentfield, a 20-year-old student at the University of California at Santa Cruz, glances through the fashion magazine college issue in which she appeared last month. She compares her wardrobe with what the magazine suggests for back-to-school. Behind her are a beige, gray and black coat and dress ensemble, a fuchsia tweed sleeveless dress and a pink, silk, dressy, sleeveless dress with side panels, her own design. She is wearing a blue and green tweed jumper cut on the bias with a flaired skirt, which she also wears with a turtle neck and tights for a more casual look. Beside her is her favorite outfit, a three piece suit of knit and suede. The jacket is of two-toned blue suede with knit sleeves; the silk blouse with a bow at the neck has cap sleeve, and the skirt is of blue knit to match the sleeves. New shoes are turtle grain calfskin with open back and square heel to match a small box shaped purse.

Leather Handbags Are Swinging Into Fall

Is leather your bag? If it is, you'll fall for this season's swinging leather handbag fashions.

New bags in the latest leathers shape up as roomy, richly textured and relaxed in construction. Women will go soft over the suppleness of the leathers. And the growing importance of medium and large sizes is a trend.

That honest feel of leather in handbags will come from a striking assortment of leathers displaying surface treatments galore: grained, smooth, waxy, saffian, embossed, suede, brushed, real patent leather, and the sought-after antiqued leathers. Bag silhouettes are strongest in pouches, satchels, totes and envelopes — followed by box bags, swaggers and shoulder-strappers.

You'll see a number of new shapings in handbags this fall: barrel, pancake tote, portfolio and attache silhouettes. Back in the purse picture is the so-called "east-west" handbag with wide rather than deep dimensions.

For a casual air, handsome grained, antiqued, waxy and embossed leathers in big squashy pouches, spacious satchels and totes are hard to beat. The satchel and pouch styles may show off touches of heavy hardware, and all sport stitching, leather strap or buckle effects, outside pockets or perforations.

In a dressier daytime vein, envelopes, swaggers and box-bags in various leathers will provide attractive accessorizing and more interior room. They're spacious but trim, and will be especially popular in the smooth, saffian, light-grained, suede and antiqued leathers. Hardware is finer, less obvious here. Straps are narrower, and there is occasional quilting, cording or seam detailing.

FOR CASUAL "deep country" costumes, the handbag to hold might be a grained or brushed leather clutch or envelope . . . a barrel in a handsome antiqued leather . . . or, to swing from a shoulder, a long-strapped deep-flapped envelope or pouch in a rugged leather texture.

When after dark is where it's at, the handbag scales down and lights up in a dazzling array of leathers. Most beautiful are the lustre leathers, the polished smooth and satiny suede leathers, the "reptile"-embossed leathers and saffians. Gold, bronze, silver and other metallics are seen in stunning crushed, smooth and grained leathers.

To set off this fall's cocktail and evening clothes, new leather box-bags, envelopes, totes and clutches in minature have a romantic look. Their closings in gold, silver or jewels come fashioned as flowers, butterflies, shells and other shapes. Also highlighting these leather lovelies are jeweled or filigreed handls, cloisonne or cameo clasps, tortoise shell trim, and elegant interior fittings.

Leather colors for new handbags have deepened. Black, brown and navy have the lion's share of the limelight, along with the tans that are part of the antiqued and natural leather story. Gray, to coordinate with new gray shoes, has fashion importance. Other colors to note: red (both bright and dark shades); deep green; neutrals camel and taupe.

ALL CONQUERING

The turtleneck conquers all and adds fashion zest to sport coats. The double breasted model, left, is in a check pattern with semi-peaked lapels and side vents in a blend of dacron polyester and worsted. His brown slacks are of the same blend. The traditionally tailored, green sport jacket with brown overplaid, right, is in dacron and worsted. The brown slacks are of dacron and wool. Both double breasted and traditional models are available at Louis George at the Corte Madera Center.

MASCULINE PREDICTIONS

Flashing Photos Splash 'Op' Art Across Dress Designs Of Future

If you want a look into the "clothing of the future" consider some imaginative innovations seen recently at a showing in New York. For example: a vinyl suit developed to ward off foul weather, it delights the eye with its bright yellow and fuchsia hues. There is an intricate pattern of cooling coils inside a jacket that matches Op art. And there is the Osmosis Helmet; it is a standard Army helmet fitted with four-inch vibrating "peace engine" and self-contained power pack, and hums lazily away in the wearer's ear.

When we consider that noise is increasingly on the crescendo, and the number-two environmental problem of the cities, this is certainly not to be dismissed lightly.

THERE IS ALSO a dress covered with illuminated photographs that flash on and off in sequence, providing the illusion of a dance taking place across the surface of the dress. A jacket which flashes on and off in vivid, Pop-art colors, is on the same beam, and a belt hides a mounted speaker.

A dress made of aluminum with a polished mirror finish zings the hand quite as much as pure silk, and carries a bracelet complete with repair scissors. More indicative of the future is a fabric dress which takes shape at the same time its material is created, eliminating the steps of cutting and sewing.

IN DRAWINGS and plans for clothes as yet unmade but clearly ahead, a designer proposes a dress with an "inflatable tail to form seat."

Put New You Together With Separates

. . . from kook to classic
. . . from young swinger to the lady
. . . from bright and wild color to more subdued

See it in texture, shape, color, details . . . a look that proclaims the quieter, shapelier, more womanly woman. Conservative by day, exotic by night, she's the woman of values: intelligent, thoughtful, assured of her appeal, relaxed with her responsibilities.

THE THEME IS "MIX" . . . the more mixed the merrier . . . It starts with separates . . . a piece here, a bit there . . . multi-faceted, totally individual . . . the unorthodox combinations of pants under dresses . . . velvet and satin with tweeds or leather. It's all a question of choice. Mix with accessories, patterns, colors, textures. To create the "right" look, pick with discretion, mix with flair.

REACTION SHAPES . . . The body is back. Not the bony body of adolescence, but the womanly body . . . full of curves, movement and softness. Everything moves . . . it curves, wraps, plunges, swirls or puffs . . . from the fitted bodice, defined waist, to the easy widened hem . . . fashion is fluid.

Signature of today's separates look — the waistline — boldly emphatic or lightly suggested, appears everywhere. With choice the by-word for the Reaction season, waists are natural , raised or empire . . . suggested with shaping, belted, tied or wrapped. Waists are emphasized with wide, wide set-in midriffs, double-buckle belts, with sinuey strips of leather, self-banding, detail seaming, extravagant buckles, tied bows . . . or simply in the two-part dress or superbly fitted jacket.

Bodices tend to be small, pared down, fitted, with raglan, set-in or tucked puff shoulders, while skirts are any way you like them. Freshest when cut on the bias, the newly fluid skirt may be pleats, gores, trumpet flares, gathered; it may bell or blossom. Even the slimmer skirts flare slightly, with deep inverted pleats, front panels or kick pleats.

THE LENGTH? . . . A matter of choice. From the well-bred just-above-the-knee . . . to the floor . . . and anywhere in between. Midi's and Maxi's make their move, usually on the evening scene . . . or in storm coats. The Midi length is 14 inches from the floor; the Maxi, 11 inches from the floor.

Hard on the heels of the separates look — the ensemble — strong for both day and night. Coats, following the general narrow-top, flare-hem shaping, adapt best to the Midi length (some Midi skirts but no dresses). Capes look great again, especially in classic fabrics, flaring shapes. Jackets move in two directions — down and very fitted a la riding jacket or Nehru-flavored tunic, double or singly buttoned and back-vented . . . or short, somewhat less clearly waisted, or shorter still to the newly returned bolero which hits both the day and evening scene.

ELEGANCE (poor lost word of seasons past) defines the look of evenings, a look of multi-influences. We find the new-Thirties vamp returning, all slim, slinky and plunging . . . Juliet of the deeply sculptured neck over high empire waist . . . the prim Victorian, with neck and sleeve cover-up . . . or the opulence of the Middle East, bared but heavily trimmed, encrusted or re-embroidered with jewels.

SLEEVES AND CUFFS are some of this season's hottest news . . . with a multitude of shapes. Ranging from the long and skinny . . . full-blown bouffants, gathered or tightly cuffed at the wrist . . . trumpet and bell sleeves . . . diagonal cuts with a Medieval flavor . . . tight single cuffs elongated and buttoned two, three, even four times . . . giant turned back Beau Brummel gauntlet cuffs . . . smaller ones accented in velvet or leather, or straight sleeve ends muffled in opulent, luxurious fur.

Special fashion excitement is being made by necklines, too. From the deep plunge to the highest turtle, necklines are news. Two of the newest are the extravagant V (for day or night) and the muffled-up look of scarves. (Scarves are the new accessory as triangles, long or short stoles, tied or wrapped . . . but always at the neck.) The collared neck is back, part of the shirt influence, from over-sized notch to tiny stand-ups like the Nehru or Mao, all seen most often faced with contrast color, velvet, leather, jewels or fur. (For evening . . . watch collars heavily beaded or furred.) Bows are an important new accent, appearing at the waist as well. The plain neck is dead . . . if it's not plunged, collared or bowed, you can just bet there's a scarf around it . . . if our gal is in the fashion swim.

THE STORY IS TEXTURE . . . the headline classic. Always on the Fall scene, the classic elegance takes over as never before as the pendulum swings completely the other way . . . to total refinement.

Tweeds, (the Donegal) plaids, tartans, worsteds, Shetlands, Meltons, camel's hair and fleece dominate the daylight scene with all the traditional menswear fabrics . . . glen plaids, herringbones, pin-stripes, houndstooth . . . in equal strength. Amazingly softened in texture, softer still in today's shapes, looking best when mixed in a costume . . . as plaid on tweed. Body-clinging silk and wool crepes appear with flannels and challis, especially printed challis. Touch these with fur, velvet, leather trims, top them with silk, crepe or knit . . . and you've got today's "fashion bag."

FOR EVENING, CLASSICS turn lush and costume-y . . . a luxuriance of velvets, moires, brocades . . . followed by floaty chiffon and crispier peau de soie and taffeta. Classics of the day appear for after-five when teamed with dressy fabrics, or cut very bare. Thus . . . we find plaid/velvet/satin combos . . . or wool/taffeta . . . of knit/satin. Even gabardine turns up as casual finery with wool and silk crepes holding their own as perennial favorites.

LEATHER HAS GONE "NO-SEASON" . . . Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter . . . you name it, you'll see it. Gaining strength as it goes, it hit a new high for Fall/Winter '68, especially the "cuir sauvage" and every-popular suede. Sportswear sees it everywhere . . . skirts, pants, jackets, even shirts . . . ready-to-wear finds it as dresses and coats, with new emphasis on trims, placing leather all over dresses, coats, suits . . . you name it.

Startling to an eye accustomed to vibrant, brash brights is the muted, well-bred look of fall color. Hand in hand with the texture picture, fall tones come on very classic, very reserved . . . greys, navy browns and blacks lead off . . . followed by whites, off-whites, nude, champagne, beige, camel, putty and forest green. Contrast colors include palest pales . . . mauves, celery, blue . . . all subdued . . . all terribly elegant.

THE FALL "BRIGHT" IS RED . . . red in fabrics, as accessories . . . and white, particularly on collars and cuffs, sometimes as shirts, adding a flavor of quaintness . . . looking prim and proper.

As evening goes lush in texture so it goes in deep, rich color . . . violets, greens, golds, claret . . . blossom alone or lavishly mixed in exotic brocades and subdued multi-prints. Pile richness on richness for evening this season with extravagant trims, embroideries, gilding, masses of beading or fur. Trims tell the fashion tale . . . there's hardly a gown or costume that appears without wide swathes of it at the collar, cuff or hem . . . or a belt . . . or a whole bodice of sparkling jewels . . . or a midriff set off with rhinestones . . . or an ornate necklace set right into the neckline of a gown.

ACCESSORIES MAKE the pick 'n mix story as much as unusual fabric and pattern combos . . . and the choice is infinite.

With the fabulous leg . . . be it knee-high or waist-high . . . here to stay are the opaques, still the newsmakers. Patterned opaques the newest, either textured, ribbed, patterned or striped. The classics of ready-to-wear go below the hem in herringbone, chevron patterns Lacy and shiny looks continue. Anything goes in hose . . . from florals and embroideries . . . to cut-out . . . to inset panels. Strongest in leathery neutrals — brown, beige, tan — or greys and blacks — legs are also apt to spark a total look with brights — as red, blue, gold.

CLAN LOOK

Macy's included this plaid wool jumper in its back-to-school television show. Wide suspenders tuck into a definite waist and the kilt is edged with a yarn effect. It is worn with a long sleeved, wide cuffed blouse with a Peter Pan collar and long tie.

Givenchy's Swimsuit Number

Givenchy's collection opens with a white lame "swimsuit," glove-fitted and brief and worn over a black jumpsuit. The whole thing is topped by a red coat. The "swimsuit" number runs through the collection. It steps forth in black velvet and later, for the boudoir, appears in fancy tinsel sequins or raised sparkling floral patterned brocade. It's worn over dancer's tights, and sometimes topped by a sweeping satin coat or see-through black chiffon coat.

Tongue in check, Givenchy presented full ballooned rompers covered in silver sequins, under a long sheer coat.

Black velvet is the fabric he likes best for every occasion starting with the cocktail hour and on. It is used in simple sheaths, in tailored suits, in dozens of tunic dresses and evening fitted shifts. Bright satin ribbon in fuchsia, shocking pink, light blue or black is used as a belt tied round the natural waistline.

Givenchy's tailoring is flawless. He still likes the wide coat and his lines simple, but builds in subtle architectural sections. A deep diamond pointed seam at a "smock yoke" line is found to give the shoulders a rounder look. Most of his coats are cut with kimono shoulders. This seam, in dressier cocktail and dinner dresses, develops into a cowl at the back. He also shows front cowls and on one black silk cocktail number gives it a deep back slash.

He has raided the chicken coop and ostrich farm and uses lavish feather borders and hemlines, sometimes adding island bird plumage.

The Vest Stays In For The Lady

Feminine fashion continues its love affair with the vest or weskit. It's practical with blouse for daytime costumes and it's elegant for evening done in velvet. Designer Bill Blass for Maurice Rentner shows ruby red weskits with rhinestone buttons combined with long, full-sleeved white crepe blouses for evening. Finishing off the costume, floor length skirts in white crepes or satins.

Black, brown and touches of color or glitter prevail for day. All the hot pinks, salmon, a vivid poison green, white, and black are the shades preferred and used alone or with touches of glitter and sequin embroidery.

Conversation piece was a pink feather swimsuit for moonlight bathing topped by a gauze floor-length cage embroidered in sequined fringe and baubles.

Lace For Misty Campus Evenings

What to wear on campus dates this fall? What to wear means . . . wear what you feel like wearing. They're styles galore to fit your every whim. Lacey see-throughs, if you're feeling misty and romantic one evening; long, crepe culottes for that long, lean, and beautiful feeling; little grey wools with touches of ruffles, for that "anyplace we go, I'll fit in" feeling.

All in all, it's a year for campus fun when dressing for dates. Allow yourself to play dress up, add those tight little curls around your face, and add a bit of humor to the costume. Take the whole thing rather lightly. Don't take yourself too seriously (even if you take him seriously).

We see words such as "charming," "beautiful," and, yes, even, "cute" to describe evening wear this year. Everything is feminine, frilly, colors tend to be neutral . . . to let YOU shine through! Have fun with date-wear this year.

GOLD LAME OVER CHIFFON

Middle Eastern influence is indicated in this sketch done by Jules Francois Crahay of Jeanne Lanvin for his winter collection in Paris. The bulky metallic lame jacket is cut like a shirt and worn over black chiffon harem parts, slit to the thigh. (AP wirephoto by cable from Paris).

A Coat With Dress Is A Costume

NEW YORK (UPI) — It used to be that a woman bought a winter coat, period. These days the coat alone is increasingly scarce. The "in" fashion is the costume. Rarely is a coat shown without coordinated dress or shirt-skirt or shirt-pants combination beneath.

A New York ready-to-wear manufacturer summed up aptly the trend on the fashion scene when he remarked the other day, "We used to make nothing but coats. You could ask a manufacturer what his line was and he'd say, 'I'm in coats' or 'I'm in suits.' Now most of them are making the major ingredients of a woman's wardrobe."

The speaker was Richard Marks, whose wife, the designer Luba, works for his firm, Elite Juniors, and just picked up the fashion industry's top annual award, the "Winnie." The award, or sometimes more than one, each year, is presented by a committee of fashion editors and reporters.

Marks went on to say, "We used to be strictly a coat house. Now we do dresses, suits, pants suits . . ."

He patted himself on the back as he added, "I guess diversification comes because a store finds you do one thing well and says, 'why don't you branch out.'"

Some of the fall season's newsiest coat costumes paired great wraparounds with pantsuits, these with the trousers cut wide-legged like the movieland set was wearing back in the 1930s.

Tweed Time

Donegal tweed is a term you'll be hearing again and again come fall. It's one of the ready-to-wear industry's favorites for suits, coats and dresses.

CAPE COAT

Pendleton offers a town or country casual designed with today's lively flair in pure wool. It is available at Stan's located in San Rafael, Mill Valley and Novato.

He can usually choose from black, dark brown, medium brown, light blond, dark ash blond reddish blond. Spirit gum included! One leading men's store in New York prices them at a mere thirty-five bucks. For about one hundred you can sport three hirsute looks! (Escape creditors, the wife, etc.)

SHOW OFF

Cotton corduroy meets bonded orlon acrylic in segments of this double breasted ensemble for fall. By Toni Lynn in brown, it can be seen at Marion's Maternity, San Rafael and Mill Valley.

Feminine Toe Softer With Heel Chunky

Women's shoes next fall will be shorter and fuller, with softer toe shaping and strong, full-based heels, say spokesmen for the industry . . . Ornamental pumps in dress shoes and man-tailored brogues in sports shoes are expected to be among the fashion leaders.

Men's footwear will have wider and squarer toes, with slip-ons and casual shoes continuing their popularity and ornamentation becoming more evident. In line with the expected increase in sales of brown clothing, golden and greened brown shoes should be widely available.

"Shoes have taken the play away from other apparel groups," says one she executive. "The skirts went way up and suddenly skinny heels and pointed toes looked ridiculous. Women have had whole wardrobes to replace."

Putting Fun In The Showroom

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacques Kaplan was among the first to convince women that since men would laugh at what they wore no matter what it was they might as well wear something worth laughing at.

He made them fur coats that were funny. And fun.

At the time this attitude was considered to be as avant garde as the art he collects. But now nearly everyone else is designing clothes with a sense of humor.

And now the impish French-born, pipe-sucking furrier has gotten around to introducing fun and exercise into fashion shows themselves by changing showrooms into fun houses.

WHAT BETTER occasion for such a show than collections by two French friends who also design with funny bones, Paco Rabanne and Andres Simon? Paco, as surely everyone knows, a few years ago took dressmaking out of the hands of seamstresses and gave it to the mechanics when he created dresses of plastic discs wired together. Andre Simon is a manufacturer who has witty thoughts about furring people.

The scene was the George Kaplan showroom, as usual. But that was all that was usual. Instead of spreading wider as they sat on gold chairs all in a row watching an hour-long parade of quick-change artists, the guests moved about. The models stayed put. Absolutely motionless.

Like Marisol dolls, or George Segal scenes, the befurred manikins arranged in surrealistic vignettes stood too still to be real.

IMAGINE YOURSELF making this scene. You pass a row of misses with their heads in brown paper bags with faces painted on, standing as rigid as rigor mortis. Onward, you pass a motionless miss in a chevron-striped midi fur, and beyond a girl in fur fluff curles up on a pile of fur pillows. Now there is a Victorian twosome, primly behind masks. Further, a man on a bicycle leans forward going nowhere while another fur-coated male reads a paper, oblivious to the girl beside him wearing the horseface mask. Sprawled on tiger rugs with her head between two tails is a miss in ponypants.

NATURALLY, YOU WILL be prompted to say from time to time, "What on earth is that?"

That's when the manikins come to life. "Rabbit fur," blurts a miss from behind her paper bag. "Weasel" squeels another.

Besides rabbits, weasels, minks, and a Canadian animal called slink, there are ponies and golden fitch, and fluffy fox, and seal. There are furs in jacquard patterns and plaids and stripes; some dyed pastels, and golds; some things for men and many for women.

Leather Savagery Is Elegant, Female

Women will delight in the elegant savagery of leather apparel for fall. Wild, but oh so mellow, are the leathers making up the handsomest fashions to hit the headlines in an age.

There's sheer animal magnetism in new lithe leather suits, coats, dresses and separates. Reduced to the lightest weight yet retaining a rugged durability that will keep them fresh for years are all the latest leathers: the great new antiqued or naturally marked "wild" leathers, fine suedes, grained leathers, split cowhide, printed and embossed leathers.

This will be the season when a woman without a leather coat is "out of it." You'll find a closetful of coat "looks" in leather and may want more than one. Sporty sophisticates will dig slim low-belted suede and antiqued leather coats, gold-buttoned leather trench coats, Mao-collared zip-up styles. For an even breezier air, there are antiqued leather coats wearing the bulky hardware of brass studs, galosh clips or giant zippers.

The softer approach is apparent in new "fit and flare" leather coats trimmed with fur, supple leather wrap-arounds, and body-shaping reefers. One unusual coat combines a jet-buttoned drop-waist bodice of "hair-on" calf leather with a fully pleated smooth leather skirt — it's leather at its most feminine. Many dressy coat styles come in the mid-calf or midi length . . . a few in the maxi as well.

Leather will "suit" you in two and three-piece ensembles covering a span of moods. Jackets and vests in vest-suits vary in length from cropped styles to hip-riding and long-line tunic tops. The leather vest-suit, incidentally, is a handsome investment in separates and a most popular look.

Waists have made a comeback, and many suits come belted or sashed. A bright fashion future is also predicted for the cape suit, the culotte or pantsuit, and youthful crop-top dirndl suits, all in various leather textures.

THE LEATHER DRESS acquires a new image this season. No longer is it simply an A-line shape showing architectural seams. In extraordinarily pliable leathers, designers have created for all long-sleeved full-skirted afternoon frocks, new creamy-soft jumpers to wear with or without blouses, fringe-bottomed shifts with round or standup collars, side-wrapped decollete dresses for after-five, and many more. Also for cocktails and after are luscious suede and smooth leather gowns and ensembles, long or short, encrusted with gems.

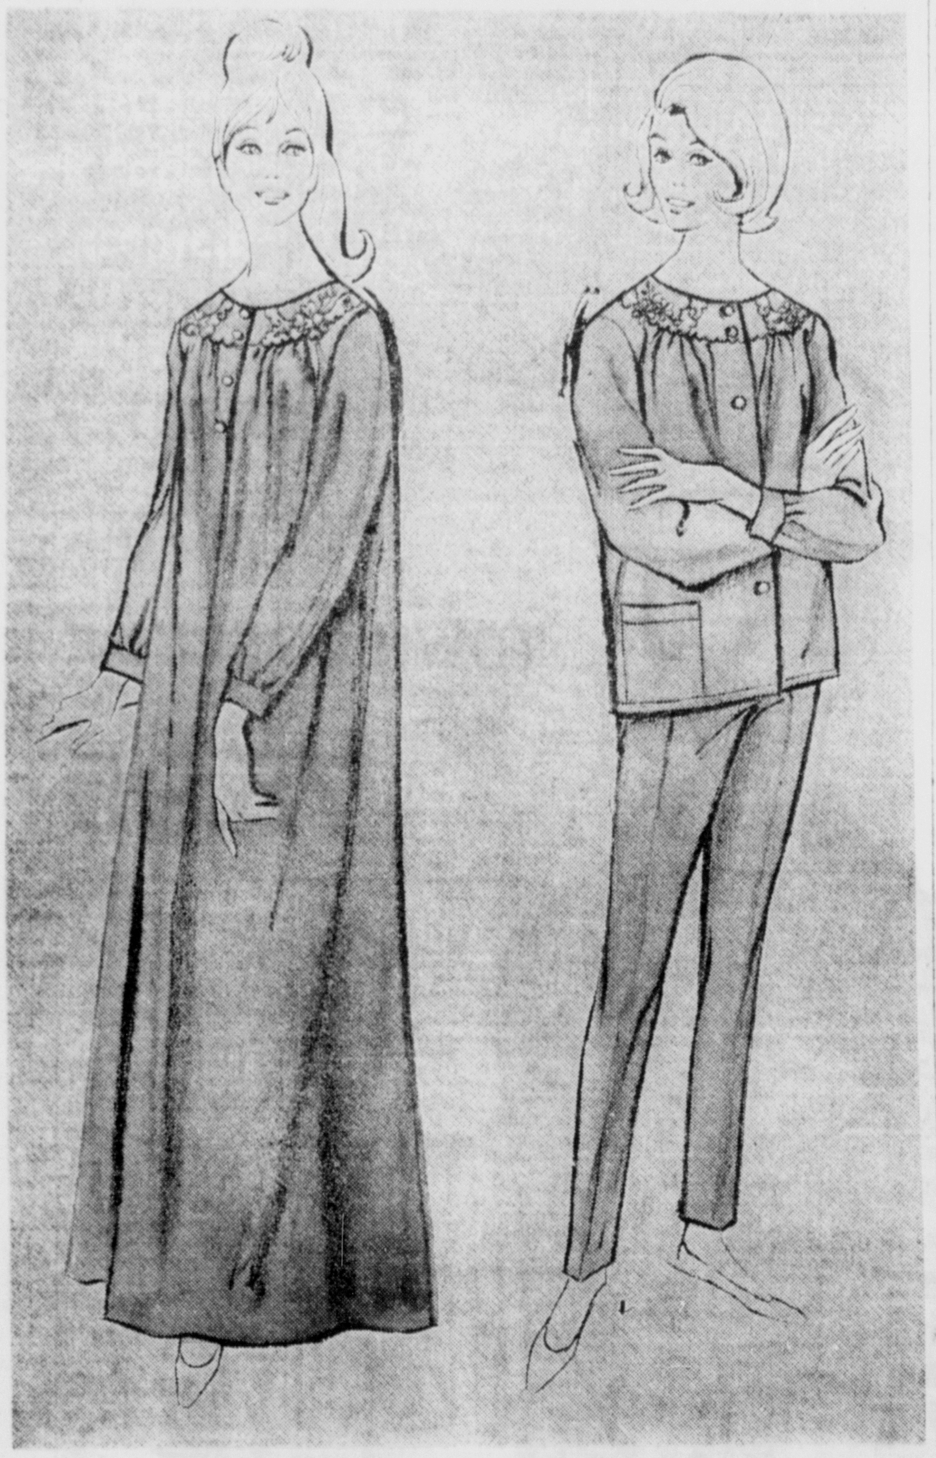
New leather separates can work wild, wonderful witchery on your fall and winter wardrobe. Every leather imaginable is represented: grained, suede and brushed, wild antiqued, split cowhide, and pigskin embossed leathers.

Zingy leather skirts — from postage-stamp minis to maxis — are fated to mate with every kind of top from leather to fur. While casual skirts show off elasticized waists, stitching, wide belts, lacing or buckles, dressier ones are simply gored or A-lined. Full swinging leather midis and maxis feel as feminine as they look. And there's the "parabola" leather skirt, hemline low in back and higher in front. Well-tailored leather pants are also dashing coordinates for jackets, vests, capes and shirts.

No garment in a woman's clothes closet will get more use than a good-looking leather jacket. It may be a leather sports coat, suburban hooded carcoat, tailored riding jacket or blazer, quilted or fringed leather cape, long low-belted jacket, or any number of others.

Further separates in the leather forecast include leather shells, western shirts, stoles, hats, culottes and vests. As separates, vests are chain-trimmed, laced, back-belted and multi-pocketed.

Now as never before, leather apparel is easy to care for. Grained and antiqued leathers have been processed by tanners to resist weather and wear effects, and may be cleaned with a damp cloth or sponge. Suede and brushed leathers need only occasional dry cleaning.



SLEEP COMFORTABLY

A new blend of soft, lightly brushed cotton, nylon, orlon acrylic and dacron polyester make comfortable sleep possible. The long gown and pajama feature embroidered applique at necklines and long, full sleeves. Montgomery Ward at the Corte Madera Center has them in red or blue in sizes small, medium and large.

Silk Ascot Jazzes Up Male Necklines

Fashion Highlight: All at once, the silk square has become one of the most important fashion accessories of all time, states the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. They've been brought into service to brighten the plain "look" of the turtleneck when worn with a tunic shirt or jacket; to fill the gap of an open-neck sport shirt; to wear as an ascot over a knit shirt and under a blazer; or to wear in French Apache style knotted around the neck, or in American Indian Apache style tied around the forehead! . . . Many men like the wider tie, but still want to tie a Windsor knot, so the wanted specifications on the new season's neckwear are: 3½ inches at apron (bottom of tie), about 2 inches wide under the knot and 54 inches in length.

IT'S A BIT EARLY to talk about men's furs — but the markets are overflowing with smart merchandise. Formerly it was a specialized item, being supplied only by women's furriers, but now the men's outerwear makers have gotten into it.

"BAGS" FOR MEN — With the continuing problem of how and where to carry one's gear, in these days of tighter clothes and fewer pockets, a possible solution is seen in the holster-type carry-all that hangs low in the hip, cowboy-style. Another interpretation might be a bag simulating a camera-case. Very masculine, very capacious.

Try Long Hair Trick With Wig

If you took the short cut through summer, you can have long hair in time for fall.

The new collection of real-hair pieces is making its debut exclusively in salons, where the hairdresser's professional know-how and advice will be helpful in choosing a perfect match for a woman's own hair, as well as in styling and caring for the wiglets.

THE HIGH FASHION WIGLETS, all of 100 per cent human hair, come in 34 different shades, including mixed grays, and blend with almost any color hair. Approximately eight inches long, they're the most versatile length to create fall's fashionable style variations.

For instance, you might like to try one, even two wiglets, all in elongated ringlets, swinging to the shoulders. Or, for an easy change in an everyday hair do, a Fashion Wigette may be worn in a swirl at the top adding a crowning touch to shorter coiffures.

TIGHTLY CURLED or gracefully unfurled, your wiglet may well become one of the most essential — and beautiful — fashion accessories for fall.

Furred Throat

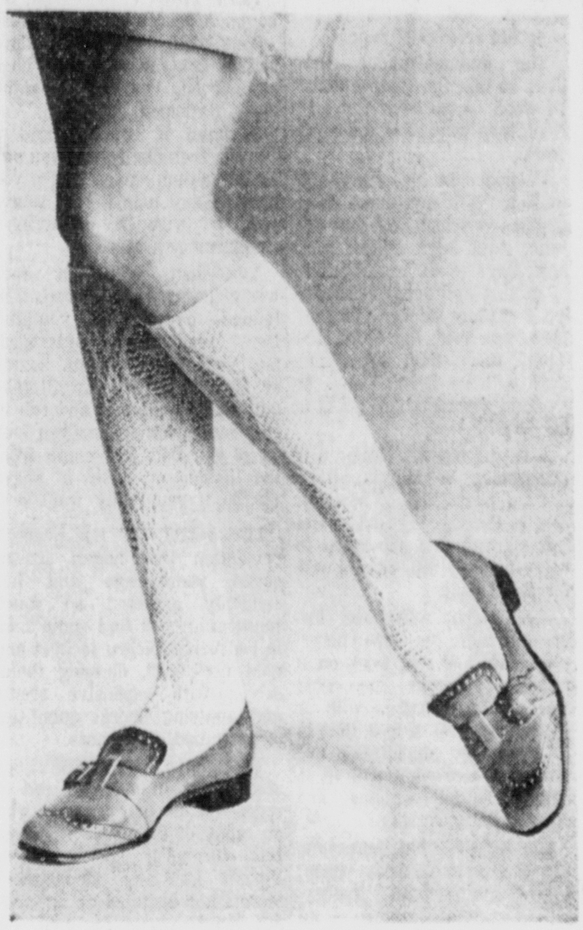
KNIT VOYAGER

The continental look from Kay Windsor has a smartly set-in waist and carefully curved collar. Polished V-notches trim the neckline and belted waist. Ella Joseph in San Rafael features it in gray and turquoise.



BOLD AND BOYISH

CURVY CURLS

Undefined waves and curls conforming to the natural contour of the head become the fashion picture for fall hair styles. Hair at the nape is still short, but it will flare out gently on the sides and lower crown in a casual play of ringlets and soft, loose wave, according to the staff at Marinello School of Beauty in San Rafael.

CAZASSA'S

1204 Fourth St., SAN RAFAEL, Ph. 454-1905 • Bank Credit Cards or Reg. Cazassa's Acct. welcome

Local Girls Survey New York Fashions

Bubbling with enthusiasm from a second New York fly-in to survey new and popular fashion trends are three Valerie Ann As-sew-ciates, the group of Marin teen-agers who design and make clothes and accessories for other teen-agers.

Making the trip with Mrs. Edmond Gross of Mill Valley were Becky Shepherd of San Rafael, who was winner of the best-in-show award at a July 31 fashion show at Maple Lawn; and Jane Brenlin of Greenbrae, who was producer of that show in which she was also a triple winner.

In New York the threesome were joined by Valerie Ann Gross, who had been staying there with the David Reeds and their family, who formerly lived in Mill Valley; and Maren Anderson, a former Valerie Ann As-SEW-ciate who now lives in Westport, Conn.

Becky will return when school starts because her family is in Galesburg, Ill., for Mrs. Shepherd's parents' 50th anniversary. Becky said she hated to stop in Illinois when she has so many new styles and ideas she wants to get started on.

Interesting to the younger set will be the girls' individual reactions based on their visits in New York to women's magazines, designers, and costume and fabrics and cosmetics houses, not to mention what they saw as they shopped and took sight-seeing tours.

Becky, who plans to become a designer, said it was the most wonderful experience of her life. She and Valerie were most impressed with a "switchery" show demonstrating the current emphasis on switchability or mixing and matching of separate articles of apparel.

The demonstrations were done on big, flat "paper dolls" of wood — an idea the girls think they can use in their own work.

Valerie, who believes people in New York are much more fashion conscious than they are here, says high school girls here don't really have the feel of mixing and accessories and don't explore enough. Clumpy shoes are very big there, she noted, more than she thinks they will be here. Vests, or weskits, she added are going to be very big too.

A new thing for Becky was acceptance of long range fashion projection of seasons. She is thinking of spring and fall '69, and said she hated to come back to fall '68 and sew for these styles.

Jane, who was also impressed with the "switchery" idea, said she will work on a mix and match line. This starts, she learned, with a general idea of a look that is followed by exploration of fabrics to see what will fit it before actual designs are created for garments.

She feels the big items now are bell bottoms, body shirts, scarves, mini-lengths, leather, fur trim, co-ordinates — no prints. She liked the spring colors coming up — soft, pale apricots, greens and wallpaper prints.

The trip for the girls and Mrs. Gross was not all study. They managed tours of the harbor, the United Nations, the Guggenheim and Metropolitan Art Museums, Greenwich Village, Lincoln Center and Columbus Square and saw three plays.

Medallion Craze

The medallion craze is booming, according to a spokesman. Priced to retail from $3 to $100, the pendants are selling in stores from the low-price, low-margin stores to prestige establishments.

Men, Come On Over And We Will Enhance Your Image

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Well, it's come. A beauty parlor for men.

You can have your hair scissor cut, razor cut, re-styled, shampooed, curled, straightened, darkened, lightened. You can have it brushed into a Harold Teen-like bun or you can be taller than she is. And if you haven't any hair they'll weave you a wig, a moustache, sideburns or a beard.

You can get your face washed, scrubbed, rubbed, suntanned, de-wrinkled, youthfulized, mudpacked, massaged, and your scalp treated, heated or knuckle dusted. They'll take out your blackheads and rub in skin toner that makes you look as if you had just come from the beach or give a shave ($2.50) if you really want one.

IT'S PART OF the peacock revolution that began six or seven years ago and has suddenly gathered so much momentum you find some men in red velvet Nehru jackets and gold necklaces, daubing themselves with expensive scents and applying liberal quantities of perfumed deodorants.

There have been barber shops since time immemorial and in recent years hair stylists who do many of the above services. But Gimbel's, one of New York's larger department stores, has installed an out-and-out beauty parlor for men.

It's called Gimbel's Salon for Men and is on a balcony directly across from Gimbel's Salon for Women.

THE INVITATION SAID to "come over and enhance your image." There's a revolving barber pole outside the door of the men's salon but the announcement said "there are no 'barbers' here . . . only masters of styling, skilled in the art of bringing out the best in your appearance."

The service is under the direction of Jerry Roman and his staff of Salon di Roma stylists whose hairpieces are all custom made and are never, never called wigs. The hairpieces start at $175 but can get sideburns for a lot less.

Roman, not surprisingly well groomed himself, has a chain of similar shops around the country but never before in a department store where a man can duck in one door and his wife in another for rival total grooming concepts.

We waved the invitation to him and he waved us over to a booth where awaited Mr. Pierre, a Frenchman, who in turn was waving a razor and a pair of scissors. "Bon jour," he said. "Parlez-vous Francais?" and we knew we were in trouble.

BUT IT WASN'T so bad. He thrust us into a rubberized jacket that fastened up the back, spun us around and began shampooing with the back of our head over a sink, European style. The hair was chopped down to size with a straight razor and Mr. Pierre got ready to enhance our image.

He did it with a hair drier and a comb, mumbling all the while that it had no body and was fine like a baby's. So he roached it up along the part, held it down with something that looked like a loose tennis racquet and sprayed it with hair spray.

"MAGNIFIQUE," he said, though that was an obvious exaggeration, and led us over to cosmetologist Miss Marie waiting apprehensively in the wings.

ELEMENTARY, THIS WINTER

Bohan Belts Naive Silhouette

PARIS (AP) — High fashion's pacesetter, the House of Dior, pegged the skirt two inches above the knee at his fall and winter showing but showman Andre Courreges raised it almost to the crotch.

Dior's designer Marc Bohan also animates the skirt and outlines the bosom. His slender belted silhouette is what he calls Naive, and he affects the little girl look wherever possible. The mood is sometimes inspired by the looks of an infant's layette.

But Dior's "baby bibs" are encrusted in gold—solid gold—sequins or lace. And his "Naive" is done in the most luxurious fabrics, the finest silks and sleek novelty weaves, the smoothest wools and the most fabulous furs.

Sometimes his gold embroidery looks like fish scales. Coats and suit buttons are often rimmed with gold, thong belts are tipped in gold, and some models were weighted down with gold tassels, chain belts and gold boule earrings. Not to speak of gold brocades.

Coats are on belted trenchcoat lines, and when not dress-length are never shorter than wrist-length and are often at the fingertips. He follows this theme around the clock, translating it for evening into bejewelled or sequin-trimmed numbers for cocktails or stepping out.

THE DIOR EVENING styles are elaborate but include many numbers in soft flowing chiffon with waving ostrich feather hemlines or sash ends or cuffs. Soft flimsy crepes and chiffons are treated to long sleeves, round necklines, and flowing circular skirts. Black, white, rose and oyster gray are shown.

The cocktail group, that seemed the newest, is in black crepe with four or five different treatments of fish scale gold sequins, Bibs, halter necklines, and inserts are masterfully handled.

Among his fabulous furs is a pale beige three-quarter mink cape put on backward and fastening at the nape of the neck. The newest fur is green mink, shown in a topcoat and hood worn with matching pine green accessories to a gray suit.

At Andre Courreges' clinical chalk white salons, the mood was set with "Sweet Georgia Brown" in rock rythm and basketball Globetrotter Leon Hilliard leaping about and twirling a basketball on a single finger.

Courreges used his 11 models to emphasize sex. Besides miniskirts almost crotch high, he bares the bosom and uses the black chiffon top without bra. Much of this is influenced by his ready-to-wear shop, called Couture Future.

Boleros cut to match the shorts, pants or skirts, tend to make the see-all tops more decent than they may sound, however.

The designer's ideas seemed to be based on white underwear such as Long Johns, BGDs and tank tops, and the old fashioned "combination" jump suit culled from Edwardian days, even though the jump suit was done in loose white knit.

For evening, Courreges drops hemlines to the ankle and fills in geometrical shoulder triangle sections with gold sapphire sequins.

Cardin Shows Molded Dress In Stretch To Fit Any Size

By LUCIE NOEL

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Cardin presented 300 models and showed them to Japanese string music, beat rhythms and hurdy gurdy French street singers. He kept his audience on its toes, going from one surprise to the next for his fall showing.

The show started with the first surprise, a group of moulded dresses, seamless and done in a stretch synthetic. The same dress can fit any size figure and Cardin intends promoting and selling it all over the world. The fabric appears textured in a variety of deeply grooved geometric designs: squares, honeycombs, diamonds, or circles.

Cardin is the first couturier to use this yarn. The feel is crepey and they claim it spells comfort.

Second surprise is a group of television clothes for men and girls called "telerobes". They are cut in soft plain wool jersey with oversize batwing sleeves and have trousered legs gathered tightly onto the ankle in the Oriental mood. Models are barefoot.

CARDIN IS conscious of the importance of gloves this season. With one black evening sheath he shows shoulder-high silver kid gloves, tightly sheathing the arm.

Besides the batwing sleeve that runs dramatically into evening Cardin shows a low pegtop drape on skirts, and one-sided cowls draping on soft cocktail dresses.

"FASHION DOESN'T have to be way out and shocking to be young" says Madame Gres. And she backs up this statement with her young elegant collection spelling the best in haute couture tradition.

Classic Cape Catching On

One of them is the mood for the cape, which has horned into almost every collection of any note in the women's ready-to-wear field.

Always a smattering of New York's pace-setting designers have included capes in their collections, with the good hope that the classic covering would catch on.

But this year, the cape literally and figuratively sweeps across the fashion scene. It is as though the industry has said, "Now that we've brought back waistlines, settled on hemlines above the knee (except for a few of the maxi-lengths), what else can we do with clothes?"

The answer is capes in lengths from fingertip to that maxi (about 11 inches from the floor) and on down to the floor when it gets into evening clothes. The cape is as casual as a Sherlock Holmes tweed, as elegant as a floor length velvet covering an elaborate evening gown.

Why everyone should discover the cape shape suddenly is one of those mysteries of the garment industry; there must be ideas floating in the air and everyone latches onto the same one at once, as the designers did last spring with ruffles.

THE CAPE, though, is not new to Pauline Trigere. This French-born designer who has had her own firm on Seventh Avenue for nearly three decades always shows capes.

Typical of hers for fall '68 is a daytime cape-dress combination done in shades of green and brown cable tweed. Both the cape and the pleated dress feature wide, horizontally striped patterns, bold as any you'll see for the new season.

Miss Trigere's firm is one of the more than 110 individual designers and manufacturers displaying their new wares for the nation's visiting fashion reporters. By the time the shows conclude Friday, the reporters will have seen all phases of women's apparel, and some of the trends in the men's wear field as well.

JOHN MOORE, the Texas-born designer who made Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's inaugural ball gown, showed rain capes in water-repellent velvet. All-purpose capes came in combination with coats, caps in pink for instance topping green coats. Capes were detachable.

In the collection of Chuck Howard, a designer branching out now to his own manufacturing, the opening number of the show was a wide yellow cape closed with black frog braiding. It topped a black dress with the yellow repeated in a band down the front and around the waist.

Donald Brooks produced the "Inverness" cape in giant plaid, its fingertip length topping a straight coat which came to the knees, and in turn topping wide legged tweed trousers. Again the capes were detachable.

Jacques Tiffeau of Tiffeau & Busch coupled capes with pants, put removable hoods on the capes and in some cases cut the pants to above the knee lengths, about the same as Bermuda shorts. Other Tiffeau capes fell to mid-calf for day.

BILL BLASS, designer for and partner in the Maurice Rentner firm, did big circular-cut capes in giant plaids, as in a tweedy number in brown and beige tones, repeated in the above-knee skirt, the skirt topped with a solid brown jersey blouse.

Among those featuring capes for formal wear was Adele Simpson, who showed a floor length number in sharp red wool, worn over a slinky, low cut black wool dress, the bodice outlined with jewelling.

The cape looms even larger in influence when you look into the sportswear field. One firm, Mister Pants, inc., showed them both short and mid-calf, usually paired with trousers. They came in plush fleeces, soft camel's hair, meltons, tweeds and herringbones.

Edwardian Era Revisited

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—King Edward VII had more fun than most British monarchs when he ruled the misty isles shortly after the turn of the century. He was a big party man, especially during the Gay Nineties before he became king, and a real snappy dresser.

As a matter of fact they named an entire era after him and called it the Edwardian Era. It stood for high living including the champagne and peaches bit with maybe a few pretty chorus girls thrown in and it also stood for elegance, with men given more to velvet than to broadcloth.

Now it seems the Edwardian Era might be returning to he look of men's clothing as the logical successor to the Nehru jacket with its standup collar and close-fitting lines. Maybe not so much velvet, but with the same close-fitting look.

The jackets in those days were mostly double-breasted with perhaps as many as eight buttons fastening high up on the chest. This didn't leave much room for lapels so they were short and very wide, something like those on a coachman's coat. The collar was high like a bal or Balmaccan collar that you see on most present-day raincoats.

Many American manufacturers after careful soul-searching and considerable research have decided to add an Edwardian-type suit to their 1968 fall line. And many more next spring are expected to follow suit, if you'll pardon the expression.

Petrocelli, which has introduced many avant garde items in the fashion shows it give from time to time in European capitals, is one of the major manufacturers which has added an Edwardian look to its fall lines, convinced it is the next look in men's wear.

Oscar Somerfeld, the president who runs Petrocelli on an equal basis with executive Vice President Sam Silverman, explained how a completely non-Edwardian firm would add a line some Ivy League diehards would consider pretty far out.

"With us it comes pretty simple," Somerfeld said. "We're a fashion house and have to be on the lookout for the new. It started with the Nehru and was a natural outgrowth. The body line is almost identical, with extreme shape, the variation being in the lapels and crossover."

Leg Styles–From Nude To Glitter

Color preferences anticipated for fall hose range around grays, navys, brown, with bone and nude for evening. A coffee shade also shows up strongly for future selection.

Glitter yarns make a major contribution to the fashion look of hosiery this fall, with silver and gold the classic favorites and new iridescents scoring high. The look is lacier and softer, with softness.

NORELL BY DAY—AND THEN BY NIGHT

Underslip Is Cut To Fit Costume

THE CHEMISE is giving way to fit in lingerie: to slips with shaped bodices in crepe-like fabrics as well as in tricot and taffeta; to slips cut like 1920's dance dresses with a low swing into godets; to slips fitted like dresses themselves, in the colors of ready-to-wear.

In half-slips, the story is movement — via flounces and ruffles and pleats — to give bounce to mini-length dirndls and grace to midi-length gowns.

There are lots of culottes and pantslips to wear under pant-suit and dresses. Short and tailored, or full and soft, leggy lingerie can be had in prints and plain colors to coordinate with outerwear.

The shape theme carries over from daytime to sleep-time, in slinky pajamas and gowns with a Thirties look, and in spare contemporary shapes that are body-related. Examples of the latter are T-shirts with matching boy shorts, in stretch fabrics.

Worldwide View By Designers

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Place eight international designers together for a "speak-in" to discuss fashion and their views of its course are differing as their backgrounds.

Example: Rudi Gernreich of California says that, "Clothes must make an opposition statement to seriousness of situations. I think that people really want to forget the serious problems that we are involved with and want to play act a great deal with what they wear."

"THE WAY YOU DRESS yourself is a way of stating a point of view for both men and women," says Nora Aponte of Rome. "As people are definitely less articulate than they were . . . they state their point of view with clothes."

"I think there's a great division in fashion today," says Eve Stillman, of New York. "We can't forget the woman who still loves her home and her family, and her bridge games, and her television, and who likes to dress well and becomingly, but never can really express the individual taste of just a few. She is still in the great majority. . ."

Simonetta, who made her first success as a designer in Italy and now works in Paris, believes, "There will always be a general, simple, plain classical trend . . . but today you are free to build up your own personality more than ever. I mean, you want to wear pants for the evening, when there's a ball. All right, you wear embroidered pants . . nobody would be astounded by it or suprised by it. This is new freedom that we should have in fashion."

OR, CONSIDER the views of Clodagh O'Kennedy of Ireland. Miss O'Kennedy says, "There's going to be a new kind of war between the sexes . . . in dresswise, vying with each other. We can't use men as accessories anymore.

"I think that women are going to dress much more excitingly because the men are dressing up."

The designers were among eight from the United States and Europe who participated in a recent symposium sponsored by Montgomery Ward & Co.

Some felt that nudity in fashion would increase; others that it would not or the subject didn't really relate to clothes freedom.

AS GERNREICH, who rocketed to fame with the topless bathing suit and has been featuring nudity ever since, phrases it: "I think a trend towards nudity or trend towards covering up are both completely legitimate. But also they interrelate because whether it is completely covered or not, there is an underneath freedom which is fairly new . . . there is a great deal of body consciousness and the body is freer ever underneath a totally covered look because you are not restricted . . . corseted . . . bound."

Miss O'Kennedy confessed with laughter to a recent experiment she had tried. "I was in the south of France," she said, "and I decided that I'd been far too influenced by fashion . . . by seeing things being worn around me . . . so I went off to a nudist colony and I came back totally convinced that the body should not be exposed."

Other points the designers made:

— Simonetta saw "two worlds that are getting more and more apart . . . the young ones, and the older ones. The big fight for the older ones is too look younger, and the young ones couldn't care less, they have their own world, their own mentality, and their own way of dressing and thinking."

— THE HIPPIES have had "enormous influence" on fashion. As Miss Aponte put it, "first of all in color and then the whole trend . . . costume jewelry, chain belts, chains for men . . . flower prints, certain type of fabrics, even the midi length is a hippie invention."

— Said Heim of Paris, "I think . . . 95 per cent of the women of the world, they do not dare enough . . . they are . . . too much in fact conservative."

Dig Out Some Old Coats, And You Will Be Right In Style

By JOAN DEPPA

PARIS (UPI)—The Paris look hasn't been so easy for the average woman to copy in years.

With a good long dig through the attic, a clever bit of sewmanship and a few small expenditures she should be able to look in the height of fashion.

First of all, that old duffle coat that refused to wear out can be dry-cleaned and maybe given a fresh touch like new toggle fastenings. If it's light-colored, it could be dyed black or dark brown.

St. Laurent, Dior and half a dozen other houses showed ones just like that for wear from early morning right through evening.

A trench coat-style car coat will work just as well and if all your old ones are past rescue, a new one in a dark color would be a good investment. When the look fades away it will still be great for wearing with slacks.

A wrap-around coat that ties like a bathrobe is also a good start towards the new look, providing the shoulders are fairly wide and padding can be removed without letting them collapse.

Most of the ones shown in Paris were stitched down on the hips or were wrap-around kilt styles, and all stopped at least an inch above the knees.

The tunic blouse that goes with the skirt also goes with the slacks. It is all-important to the look and is the one thing you may have to break down and buy unless you sew.

It is almost always high-necked and sometimes buttoned down one side of the bodice Russian-style. Its long sleeves are generally bloused on to a wide cuff.

The belt is narrow, either a chain belt or a simple tie belt of leather or fabric.
